OWN here in the country cooking, canning and preserving is a sort of a ritual. For years exhibits of the culinary art of Jersey feminine farm folk have been major attractions at state and county fairs. And—just about thirty-one years ago Edgar F. Hurff (himself a farmer—and a mighty good one) decided to pack and market a few of the most famous Jersey specialties.

On his own farm, Mr. Hurff had devoted most of his attention to the growing of superior tomatoes—tomatoes so extraordinarily good that first his neighbors and then farmers far afield came to him for seeds. The fame of Hurff tomatoes was well established long before the Edgar F. Hurff Company was ever thought of. So—when Mr. Hurff decided to "put country fair food on city tables" the women-folk at Swedesboro developed a tomato "cookery" to match his growing skill.

It was natural to start with the favorite dishes on which they had been raised—tomato soups; tomato catsups; beans, and spaghetti, with special sauces made from Jersey tomatoes. How well they did their work—and how well Hurff "pedigreed tomatoes" met their needs—is reflected both in the popularity and in the growth of the Hurff line. For, while it remains a line of Jersey specialties, it now includes other products in which tomatoes have no part.

But, friends and customers continue to speak of us as "Hurff—The Jersey Tomato People". And—we're proud to have them do so! For, Jersey tomatoes—like Idaho potatoes, or Baltimore oysters, or Maine lobsters—are just about tops!

Drop everything until you have assured yourself a copy of this book. All you have to do is mail the coupon! Its contents would cost over $100.00 if you could purchase the individual volumes.

Out of all the words set down in all languages and in all ages—these have been selected for you as the most important, the most enduring, the richest, rarest and best. Thirty-seven of the most important human documents—the basis of present-day enlightenment. Forty-one of the greatest novels and tales, masterpieces of story telling so basically entertaining, so real, so true, that they will live as long as there are human beings to read them. Fifteen poems—only fifteen—but all so brilliantly expressive that the spirit of an entire nation, the history of an era or—still greater—the full secret of a human heart is made permanent in each one.

Eight plays—Greek tragedies, Shakespeare, Moliere, Ibsen—the finest thought ever presented on any stage! All this has been put in a single, beautiful volume, of 849 pages, condensed for your brief moments of leisure by Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, Ph.D., New York University, and his staff of associates. And to give you further insight into the creators of these great classics, the editors have written a brief biography of each author.

Now you will find time to do that vital reading you have promised yourself. In this carefully edited, scholarly abridgement of The 101 World's Classics you can read from three to five of these masterpieces in the same length of time you would formerly have spent on a single one.

Mr. Chadwick's Bathing Suits

Sirs:

Frank Chadwick of The Bronx, whose foresight has given him perennial pictures of his daughter (LIFE Sept. 13), has something there. I note with extreme envy and amazement the fact that since 1922 Mr. Chadwick has had only two swimming suits. The first one lasted eleven years by photo deduction, and the newer, perforated, streamlined model appears to be good for many more nautical excursions.

How does Mr. Chadwick do it? In 18 years, moths have devoured no less than ten of my swimming suits.

JAMES R. HANLEY
Perry, N. Y.

Sirs:

The annual record of pictures of Mr. Chadwick and his daughter denotes what an excellent housekeeper Mrs. Chadwick must be. She is able to preserve each of her husband's bathing suits from being eaten by moths for six years!

CHARLOTTE WARING
Philadelphia, Pa.

Sirs:

Regarding Mr. Chadwick and his little girl who grew up in 18 years, it is interesting to note that papa saved on his swimming suits, while daughter changed more frequently. Inasmuch as he wore his first suit six years, his second four years and the last one five, while she wore her first two years or three, the second two years, the third three years, the fourth two, the fifth one, the sixth two, seventh two and the eighth one.

G. KISS

Chicago, Ill.

Sirs:

Why doesn't the manufacturing company use Mr. Chadwick's testimonial as advertising? No bathing suit has ever lasted yours truly for eleven years.

Sucker List

Sirs:

In your issue of Sept. 13, you erroneously state, "Prize exhibit was the 'million-dollar sucker list' displayed by William Dan Bell, promotion manager of the Cleveland Better Business Bureau," and captioned the picture with, "Better Businessman Wm. Dan Bell and his sucker list."

This list was compiled by Manager Fred Willson of the Rochester Better Business Bureau who has, for years, spent a great deal of time, trouble and money in collecting the products of fraud and swindles in the world. Credit should go to Mr. Willson and not myself for this display, and my presence in the picture was entirely as an accommodation to your photographer, who had a heck of a time trying to photograph this 30-foot list between gusts of wind.

W. DAN BELL
Promotion Manager
The Cleveland Better Business Bureau, Inc.
Cleveland, Ohio

LIFE gladly restores full credit for the "million-dollar sucker list" to Manager Willson, thanks Manager Bell for holding it for LIFE's photographer—ED.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin and Your Doctor

Each performs a vital function. Bayer Aspirin in relieving headache, neuralgia and other muscular pain. Your doctor in locating the cause and correcting it. Intelligent people do not hesitate to call on both.

THIS may sound like strange advice for the maker of a headache remedy to give. But, nevertheless, we give it.

If you are subject to frequent headaches, go to your doctor and tell him about it. He may find the cause of your headaches, correct it . . . and make your life far more pleasant.

On the other hand, if you have an occasional headache; step into the nearest drug store; the moment you feel it coming on; and get a box of quick-acting BAYER ASPIRIN. Take one or two tablets with a full glass of water, and see for yourself how quickly relief comes.

We refer to Bayer tablets as "quick-acting," for one reason, because they disintegrate or dissolve in the stomach almost instantly you take them. Hence are ready to go to work almost instantly.

Just drop a real Bayer Aspirin tablet in a glass of water and you'll get the point at once. You'll see it disintegrating before it reaches the bottom of the glass! And that's the way one acts in your stomach when you take it.

Try it . . . real BAYER Aspirin. Ask for it by its full name, "Bayer Aspirin" when you buy and not by the name "aspirin" alone. You pay only 15¢ a dozen—or a quarter for a pocket tin of two full dozen now in any drug store in the United States.

Circus Fans

Sirs: Members of the Circus Fans Association were tremendously interested in the Robert Riggs photographs (LIFE Sept. 13) as evidence of an appreciation of the art of the big top. Some 12 years ago nearly one thousand business and professional men organized this association for the purpose of preserving the circus as an institution.

By an interesting coincidence, the same Sept. 13 issue carried advertisements of Camel cigarettes and Beech-Nut chewing gum based on the circus motif. Richard J. Reynolds, of Camel, is one of our valued members and George Duffy, of Beech-Nut, is our Eastern Vice President.

Washingtons of China

Sirs: Your ridiculous reference to Chiang Kai-shek and his wife as the "George and Martha Washington of China" reveals the same incredible ignorance of actual conditions in China, as well as of the character of Chinese leaders, that is common in America and that in itself intensifies the Far Eastern problem.

Sirs: I have just finished reading your article in the Sept. 13 issue of LIFE headed, "Home-Coming American Tourists Find Europe Prepared For Peace." It is not my nature to be a pessimist. Sirs:

Yesterday I wrote you stating that I had a very good lawyer friend who had just returned from a stay in Germany and his views were quite different from those expressed in your Sept. 13 issue.

Sirs:

So often in reading LIFE I have noticed articles and pictures of prominent or interesting persons, and I sometimes am a bit amused when thinking how much more interesting and better reading would be an account of my life, as you may yourself realize should you turn to Who's Who in America which would give you a bare outline of my life.

You don't have to be rich to RETIRE at 55 on $200 a month

"I'LL DRAW an income of $200 a month for the rest of my life, as soon as I'm 55," said a certain man talking of his plans for the future.

"How can you manage it?" asked another man.

"It's easy," said the first man. "I'm buying a Retirement Income on the installment plan. My income of $200 a month begins when I'm 55, and it's guaranteed for life.

"What's more, if I should drop out of the picture before my retirement age, my wife would get a regular monthly income for the rest of her life."

"That sounds good," said the other, "but what if you're totally disabled, and can't make your payments?"

"I don't have to worry about that either. If, before I reach 55, serious illness or accident stops my earning power for six months, then—so long thereafter as I remain disabled—I don't have to pay any premiums that fall due, and I'll get a Disability Income besides."

"Fine. Can you tell me how much this new Retirement Income Plan would cost me?"

What Does it Cost?

"How much you need to save each month depends on how old you are, when you want to retire, and the size of the income you will want.

"Why don't you write for the book called 'The Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan'? They'll mail you a copy free. It tells all about how the plan works and what you get."

Here's your chance to find out how simple it is to retire at 55, 60, or 65 with a monthly income of $100, $200, $300 or more guaranteed to you for life. (And there are also special plans for women.)

Write the necessary information in the coupon and send it now. You will be mailed a 24-page book that tells all about this plan. It tells how you can provide money to leave your home clear of debt, money to send your son to college, money for special needs. It tells how this plan is backed by the Phoenix Mutual, an 86-year-old company with over half a billion dollars of insurance in force. Send for your copy of this free book today. No cost. No obligation. The coupon at the right is for your convenience.

How a man of 40 can retire in 15 years

It makes no difference if your carefully laid plans for saving have been upset during the past few years. It makes no difference if you are worth half as much today as you were.

Now, by following a simple, definite Retirement Income Plan, you can arrange to quit work forever fifteen years from today with a monthly income guaranteed to you for life.

Here is what $200 a month Retirement Income, payable at age 55, will do for you:

It guarantees when you are 55 an income of $200 a month for life. This income cannot stop until at least $20,000 has been paid, and you can get as much as $25,000, $30,000 or more, depending only upon how long you live.

This important benefit is available alone; but if you are insurable, additions can be made to your plan by which—

It guarantees upon death from accidental means before age 55 a Cash Payment to your beneficiary of $40,000. Or a monthly income for life.

It guarantees upon death from any other cause before age 55 a Cash Payment to your beneficiary of $20,000. Or a monthly income for life.

It guarantees in the event of permanent total disability before age 55 a Monthly Income for you.

The Plan is not limited to men of 40. You may be older or younger. The income is not limited to $200 a month. It can be more or less. And you can retire at any of the following ages: 55, 60, 65, or 70.

How much do you have to put in? We'll be glad to tell you the exact amount as soon as we know your present age, how much income you want, and how soon you want to retire.

For details, mail coupon below for free illustrated booklet.

Baptism & Sins

Sirs:
In your issue of Aug. 30 on page 32 you have an explanatory notation over a picture of the baptism of a girl that would lead the reader to believe immersion baptism "washes away sins."

This is as incorrect as anything could be, and as a Baptist layman I am taking the liberty of advising that Baptists who know their Bible do not believe that water baptism has any such "washing" power. They do believe, however, that sins are washed away by the shed Blood of Christ and place their dependence of a future life solely on that.

Your error is one that is prevalent today on the part of persons who do not take the trouble to examine the Scriptures.

Pityrosporum ovale, which causes dandruff, as it looks under the microscope, magnified many times.

LISTERINE

THE MOST EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR DANDRUFF
I EVER USED...
AND SO DELIGHTFUL

Kills Pityrosporum ovale, the germ which causes dandruff, removes unsightly scales, allays itching and brings new life to the scalp. In New Jersey hair clinic 76% of patients got quick relief.

After ten years of research, dandruff has been stripped of its mystery. There is new hope for millions of sufferers.

Laboratories find that a stubborn germ, Pityrosporum ovale, causes dandruff. Clinical tests show that treatment should be antiseptic to kill the germ. Otherwise the chances for permanent recovery are slight.

No Guesswork—Clinical Proof

And now, to countless men and women, Listerine is bringing quick relief from this humiliating condition. Never before, they say, a treatment so positive in results—so beneficial to scalp and hair—so invigorating and delightful—and so easy to carry out. All you need to do is apply Listerine right from the bottle or with a medicine dropper, then follow with a vigorous, persistent massage.

And remember, such personal experience is corroborated by impressive clinical evidence. Such evidence is the guide of medical men. Let it be yours, also. Read carefully the brief outline of this amazing research.

Curing Rabbits of Dandruff

Rabbits given dandruff by inoculation with Pityrosporum ovale were treated on one side only, with Listerine Antiseptic, once a day. The other side was untreated.

Within four days improvement was noted, and at the end of fourteen days, on the average, a complete cure was effected. No scales, no crusts.

The sides not treated with Listerine showed evidence of dandruff nearly a month later.

Relief in Two Weeks

In a noted midwestern skin clinic, men and women dandruff patients were chosen for the Listerine treatment. A majority were instructed to massage their scalps once a day with Listerine Antiseptic. The rest of the group used a non-antiseptic solution. We ask you to note carefully the convincing results again achieved:

A substantial number of the users of Listerine Antiseptic obtained marked relief in the first two weeks, on the average. In many other cases, scalps were found to be clear and free of dandruff in from three to eight weeks—itching stopped, dandruff scales were eliminated, and in some cases falling hair was terminated. Virtually none of the persons using non-antiseptic solutions showed improvement.

76% Got Relief

Meanwhile, in a New Jersey clinic

other dermatologists were cross-checking the results of the midwestern clinic. Fifty men and women, all with definitely established cases of dandruff, were undergoing treatment twice a day with Listerine Antiseptic.

At the end of three weeks, 76% showed either complete disappearance of, or marked improvement in, the symptoms of dandruff, i.e., itching, scaling. Only three failed to respond to the Listerine treatment, possibly due, as a research report suggests, to irregularity in applying the treatment.

Try the Proved Method

If you have the slightest evidence of dandruff, start now with Listerine and massage, once a day at least. Twice a day is better. Don't expect over-night miracles. Remember, dandruff is a germ disease, requiring persistent and systematic treatment, which should be antiseptic. Do not rely on ointments, salves or solutions, which may relieve symptoms only momentarily. Remember, Listerine's results against dandruff are a matter of laboratory and clinical record. We know no other remedy of which the same may be said.

LAMBERT PHARMACAL CO., St. Louis, Mo.

Her story reflects the ringing enthusiasm of thousands of users:

"I had a persistent case of dandruff on which I tried several remedies with only temporary success. I wondered how I could get rid of the condition when I popped Florence Casey. She is up on everything."

"If you want to cure dandruff you'd better use an antiseptic," she said. "Don't you know that doctors have found that a germ causes dandruff, and that Listerine is a simply marvelous treatment for it?"

"Here goes for your first treatment," she said. "Exactly the same one that got results for 76% of the dandruff patients in a New Jersey clinic." Applying Listerine, she followed with vigorous massage.

"Listerine gets results," she continued, "because it really kills germs that cause dandruff." So I kept the treatment up for about three weeks, once a day, and found I didn't have a trace of dandruff."

"Let it lay...we've never had a fire"

He delayed adjusting his fire insurance to the full insurable value of his house and its contents. And, with like indifference to danger, he neglected to clean up that pile of rubbish in the cellar. So, he learned by bitter experience the two-fold lesson of Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 3-9): help prevent fire...and protect what you have with adequate insurance.

FIRE is recognized by a national prevention program as property's Enemy Number One. If you carry any property insurance, you no doubt have a Fire policy, because you appreciate its importance. Do you realize that other hazards can destroy the property you so carefully protect against fire?

Since a loss is a loss, no matter what the cause, it may save you a lot of money if you will check up on the risks you are now running. Find out the various ways insurance can economically and dependably protect you. Ask a North America Agent, or your broker, about it. Consult him as you would your doctor or lawyer. He will gladly advise you, without the slightest obligation.

North America Agents may be found in the Classified Telephone Directories under the name and identifying "Eagle" emblem of Insurance Company of North America.

North America Protection includes practically every form of insurance except life. Here are some of the coverages available for protecting the home:

RESIDENCE CONTENTS covers damage to household furnishings by fire or other specified hazard.

SUPPLEMENTAL CONTRACT covers damage by explosion, windstorm, hail, riot and civil commotion, falling aircraft and wild animal violence.

RENTAL VALUE pays rental value of home while being made habitable following damage by fire or other specified cause.

BURGLARY covers loss and damage to property by burglary or attempted burglary.

OWNERS, LANDLORDS & TENANTS LIABILITY covers claims for injuries to the public sustained on the premises.

George Hossfield won the World's Typewriting Championship for the 10th time when he typed 139 net words a minute for one hour establishing a new world's record under Official International Contest Rules.

SHATTERING two long-standing, world's typewriting records, winning every championship on the program, Underwoods swept everything before them in the typewriter classic of the year...the Canadian National Exhibition International Typewriting Contests held at Toronto, Canada, August 28th.

Thus for the twenty-seventh time the Underwood has demonstrated its complete mastery of the field. Yet only because of the applause that echoed from the rafters was the performance any different than that which business offices are witnessing every day.

George Hossfield, in hanging up his new world's record of 139 net words per minute (highest speed ever attained under official International Contest Rules), simply proved what practically every typist knows... that the Underwood does more work in less time and with far greater accuracy. Place a Champion on every typewriting desk in your office. Every Underwood typewriter is backed by nationwide, company-owned service facilities.

SPEAKING OF PICTURES . . .

A hopper car is a bad place to sleep even though it looks snug. The hobo above is taking a dangerous chance that no dingbat would care to risk. The hopper door is sometimes insecurely fastened. It may open, dump the hobo down on the tracks beneath the wheels.

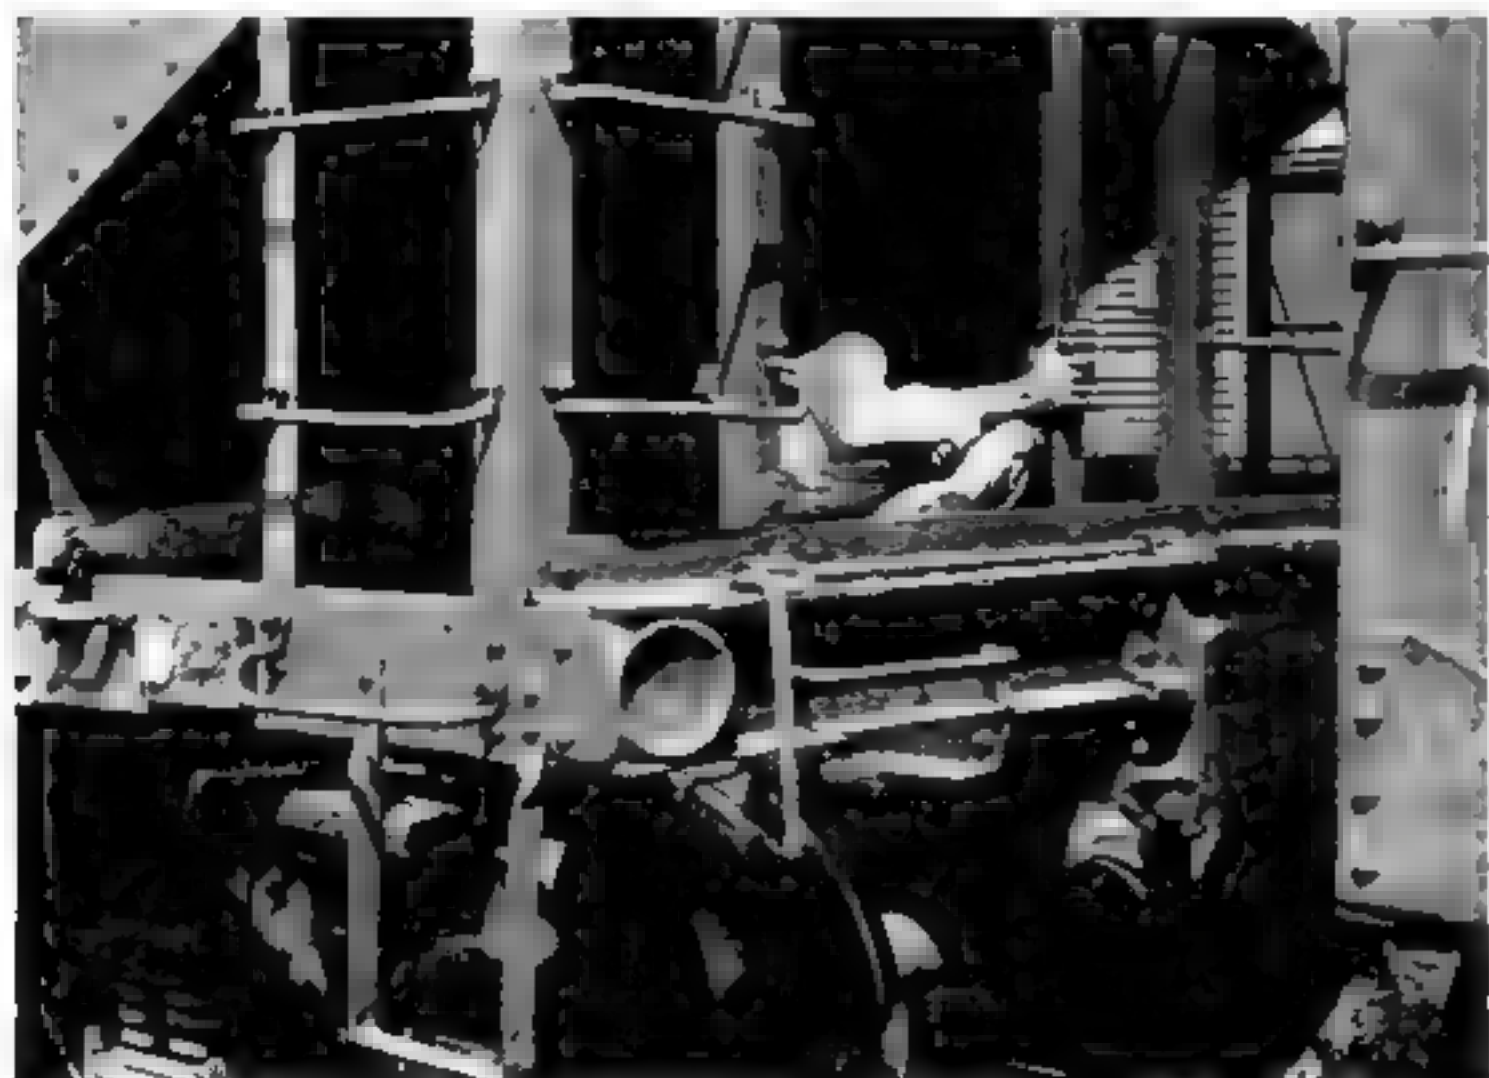

A loose load, like the scrap iron above, is another bad place to choose for even a brief nap. When the train rounds a curve, the unstable load may easily shift, tumble the sleeping hobo from his hard bed, toss the heavy iron on top of him, crush him to death.

Riding the rods (above) is the traditional way for hobos to travel but it is not a very good way. A fast "manifest" or through freight may whiz by, toss a painful shower of rock and gravel on the unwary sleeper. Freight cars today are being built without any rods.

A freight-car top has two disadvantages as a bed. The hobo can easily roll off, can easily be seen by the ever-watchful railroad police. Hobos do not usually sleep in transit. Since it is more discreet to ride at night, they get their sleep in hobo jungles during the day.

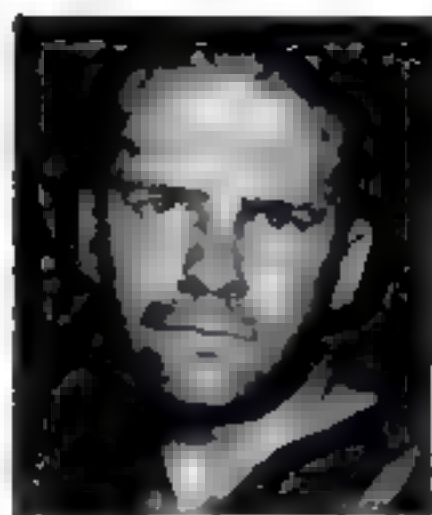

A good place to ride is at either end of a hopper car. Here a hobo can stretch himself across the car's underbracings, hold tightly to one of the uprights and be reasonably sure of a safe journey. Only a very hard jolt while his grip is relaxed can throw him off.

The "reefer" or refrigerator car is a fine place to sleep. The hobo going down into the ice compartment will carefully prop the door open with the rod. Locked doors have trapped many hobos, starved them to death behind the reefer's thick, insulated walls.

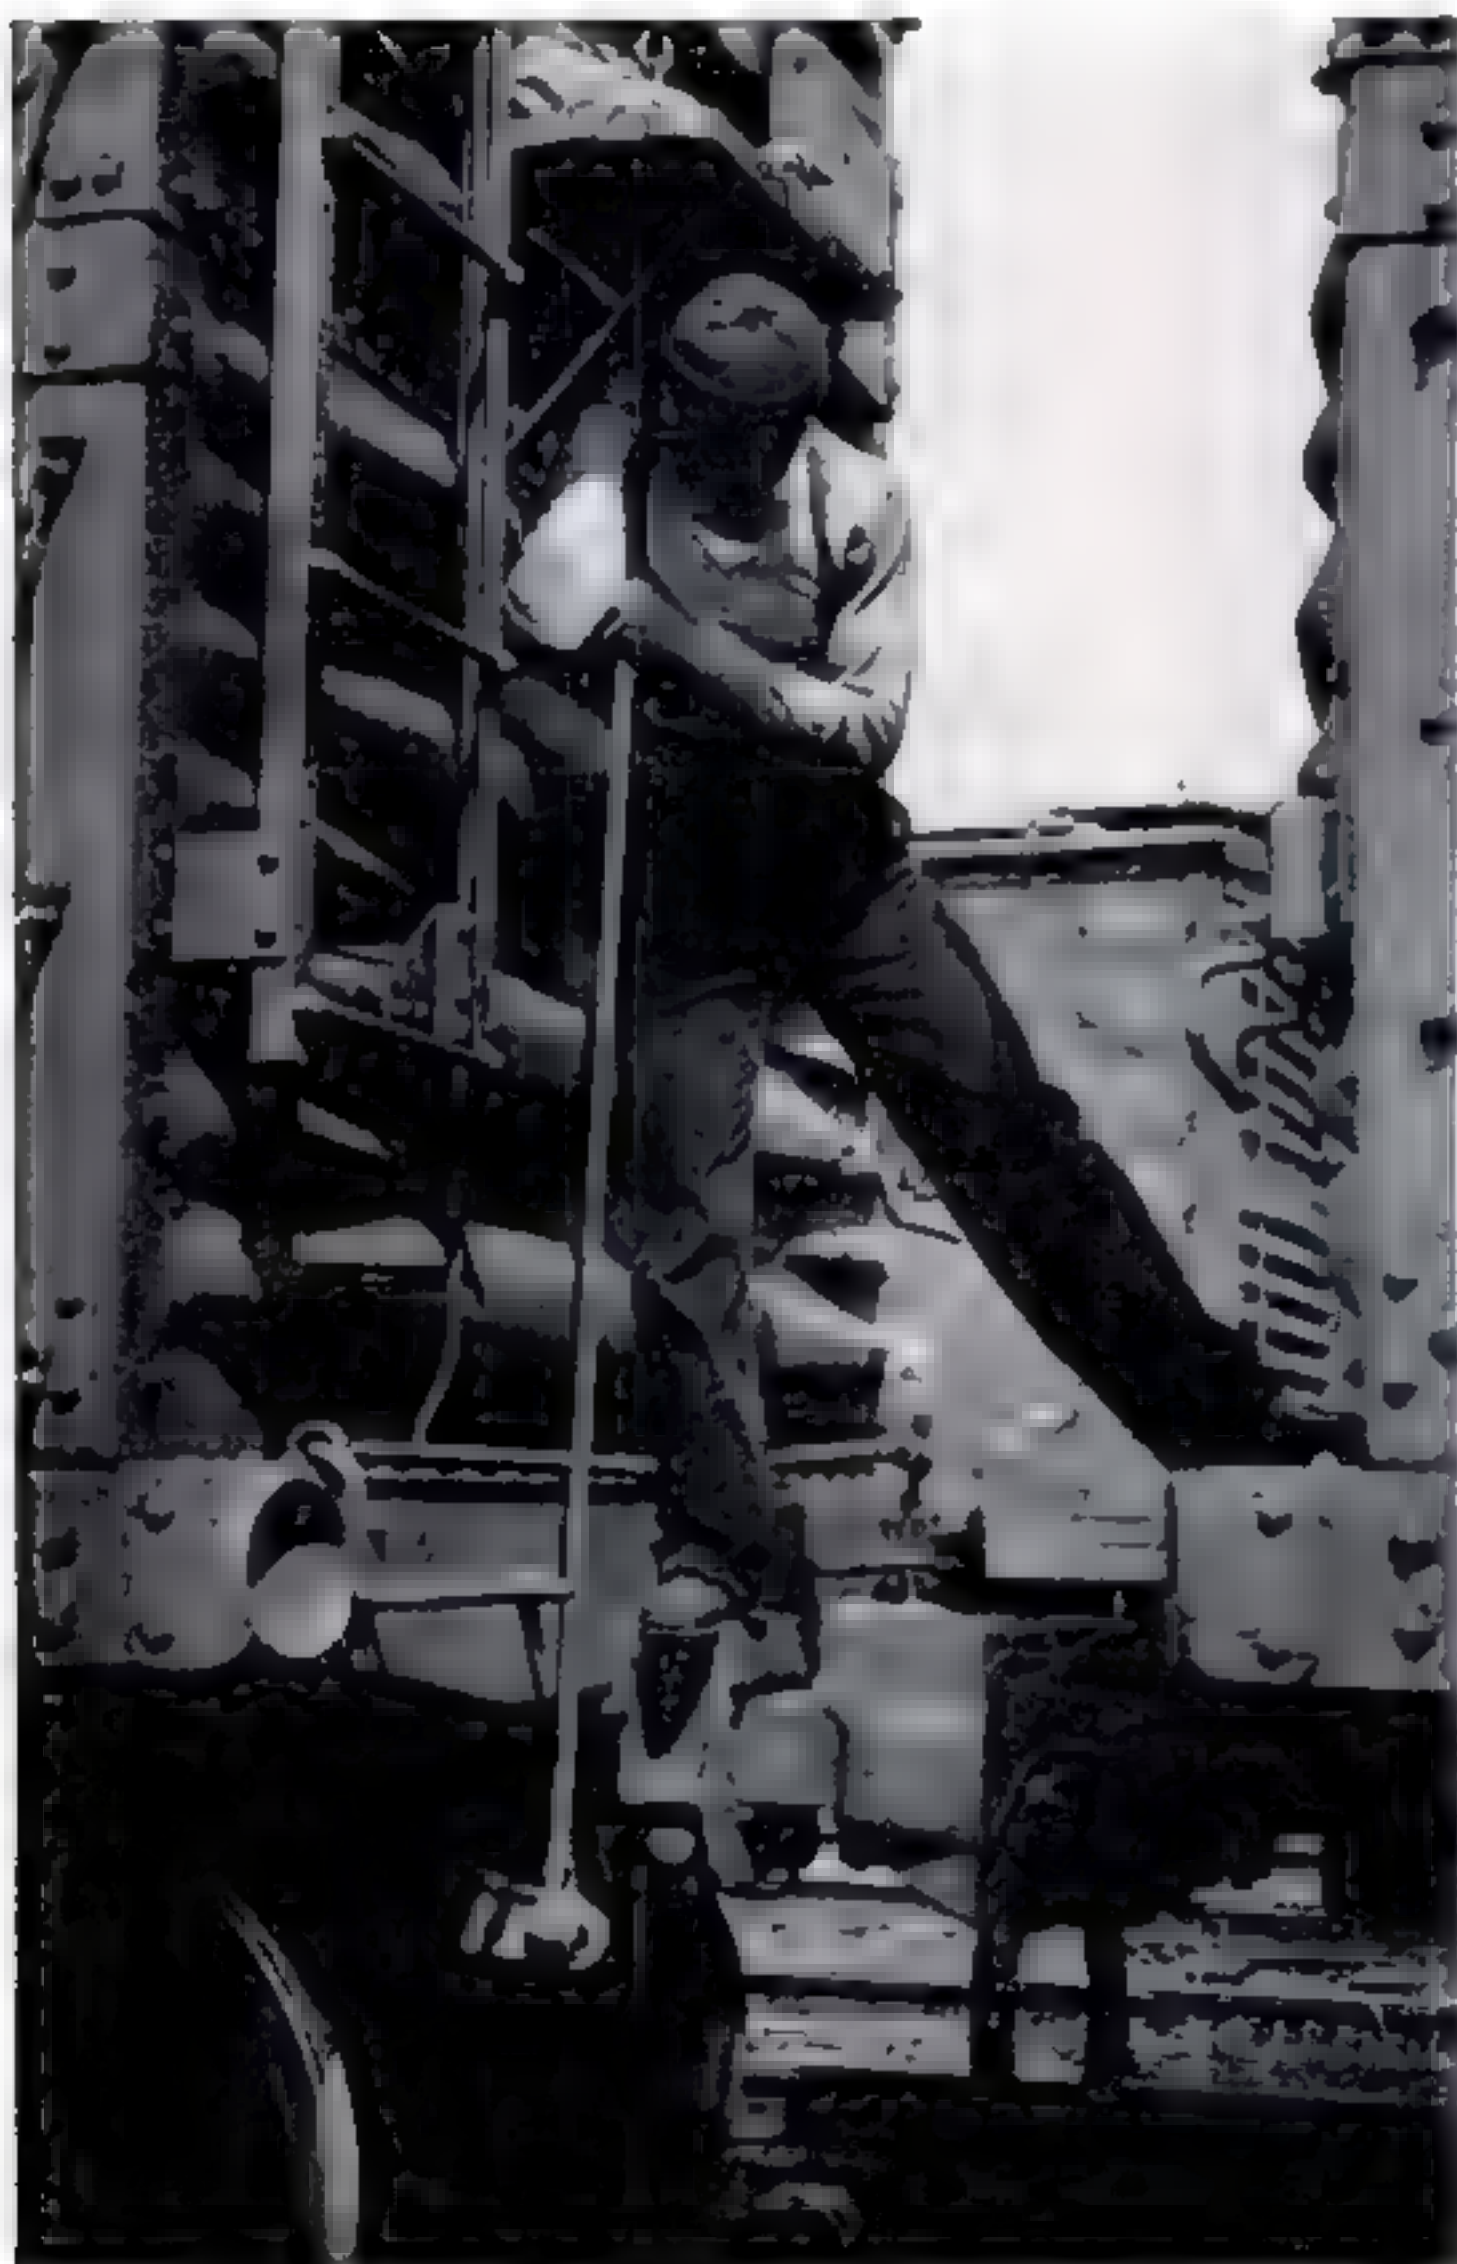

... THIS IS A PRIMER FOR HOBO "GAYCATS"

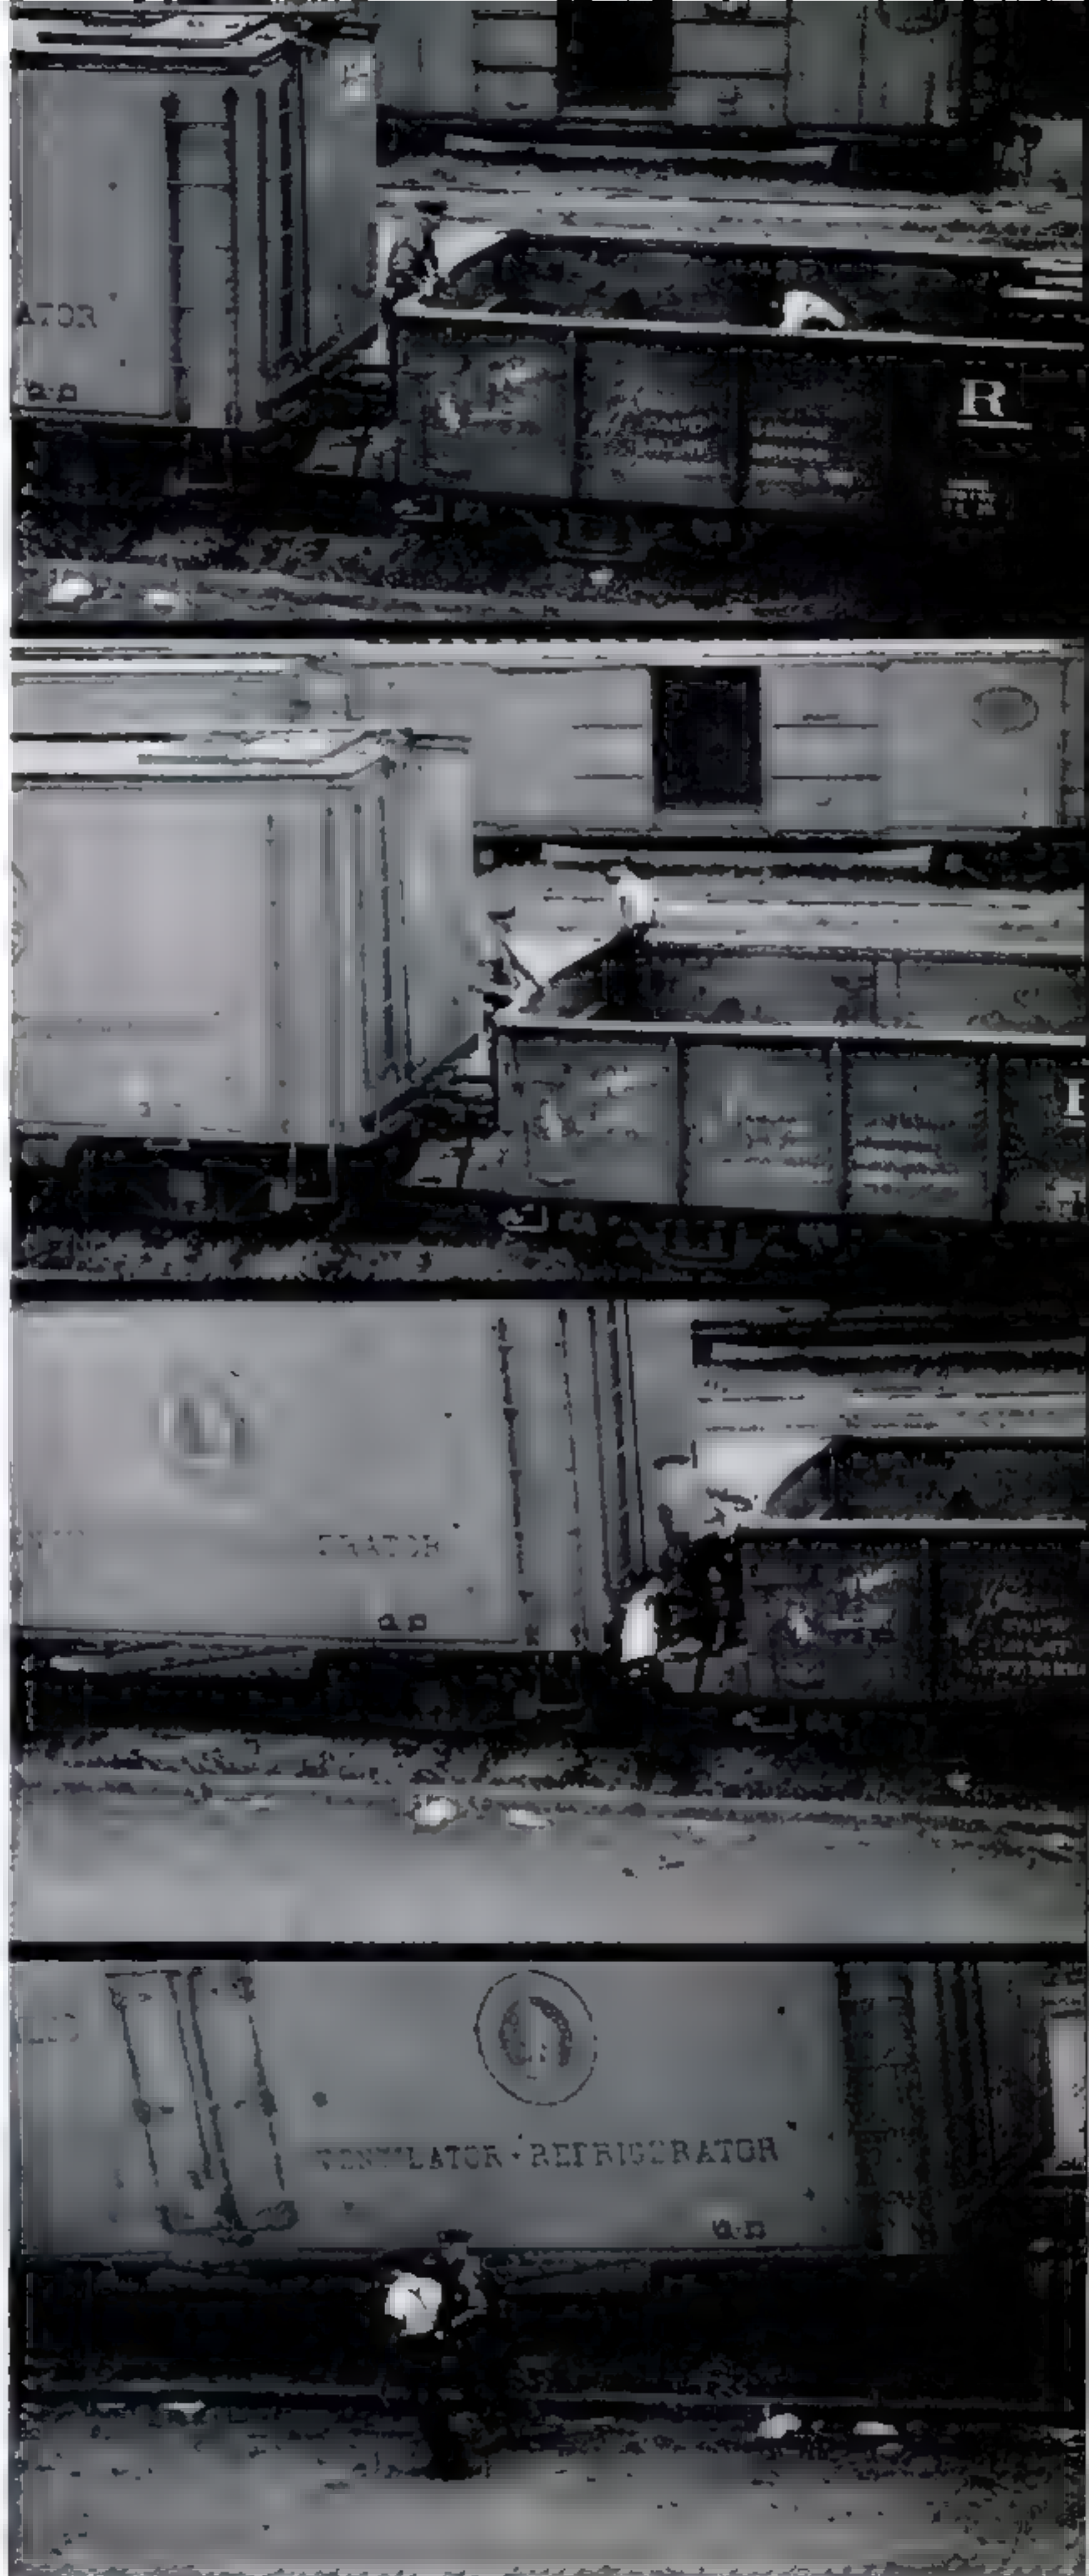

Dan O'Brien, who calls himself King of the Hobos, often belittles the danger of a hobo's life. Every year, unrecorded hundreds of tramps fall to death beneath the moving wheels of the freight trains they ride. Dan O'Brien, however, dismisses this lightly. "More men," he says, "are killed by jobs."

But King Dan, like every other "dingbat," or experienced hobo, has a well-learned set of rules for riding the road. Some of the rules are presented by the photographs on these pages, which make up a primer for gaycats. A "gaycat" is a novice hobo who, if he wants to grow up to be a real "dingbat," will follow the suggestions set down here. These photographs were taken by Louis Van Dyke, younger brother of famed Photographer Willard Van Dyke. Van Dyke, who had some amateur experience as a hobo, put on tramp clothes, let his beard grow into a dirty stubble (see photograph above) and took two hobo tours out of New York City with his camera. He found most hobos averse to being photographed but one gaycat (the Negro in skull cap, below) obligingly demonstrated what he was learning. All the photographs without him are unposed. The "pinch" series at right was taken with a telescopic lens from behind another freight car.

A safe way to ride is shown above. The 'bo straddles the coupling with one foot on each car, his hands holding firm to the brake rod. A fairly comfortable place to stand, it is also an easy place to leave quickly if a railroad policeman happens to spot you.

A gaycat is pinched by a railroad policeman (called a "yard bull") in the Albany yards of the New York Central Railroad. This will teach the unhappy novice a lesson that every experienced dingbat knows: an open freight car is a poor place to hide from cops.

Don't sit on the small wooden brake-rod platform like the hobo above. You can be too easily jolted off your perch.

Don't get on at rear of moving car. You may swing into gap between cars. Get on front. If you swing, you hit carcase.

Don't take short cuts beneath trains. The danger is obvious. If the train starts, you will be caught under the wheels, meet the unmerciful death of the man below.

The penalty of incautious riding is shown above. Ray McArthur, 38, a Chippewa Indian, was bumming out of Detroit Lakes, Minn., one night recently and this is how Editor C. W. Meyer of the Detroit Lakes Tribune found him next morning.

SUSAN: Hear that, Matilda? She's been crying ever since the bridge club left.

MATILDA: She heard the girls whispering it would break my heart, too, if anybody said my clothes had tattle-tale gray.

SUSAN: But the poor thing works so hard. It's not her fault.

SUSAN: It's that lazy soap she uses. It leaves dirt behind. We ought to tell her how we got rid of tattle-tale gray.

MATILDA: Sh-h-h! That's why I've been saving this ad about Fels-Naptha Soap. Let's slip it under her door.

SUSAN: Wait, Matilda—does that ad say Fels-Naptha's richer golden soap and lets of naptha chase out every speck of dirt?

MATILDA: Yes, indeed, Susan. But keep still—or she'll hear us.

FEW WEEKS LATER

GUEST: But, Doris, these linens look brand-new! How do you ever get them so white?

DORIS: Sh-h-h! Two sly little birdies showed me the way to banish tattle-tale gray with Fels-Naptha Soap. I haven't thanked them yet, but, as a bit of a reward, I'm treating them to the movies!

[UNTIL SHE SMILES]

"SURELY," you say, "surely the world's at this girl's feet!" Blessed with beauty and dowered with grace—life seems to have given her its best.

But there is a thief that robs her loveliness, steals away her charm. That thief is her dull, dingy smile. Tragic? Yes, but that's the price she pays for neglect—a penalty she could have avoided.

NEVER NEGLECT "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

Play safe—don't pay the penalties of tender gums and dull and dingy teeth! When you see that warning tinge of "pink" on your tooth brush—go and consult your dentist immediately.

She evades close-ups . . . Dingy teeth and tender gums destroy her charm . . . She ignored the warning of "Pink Tooth Brush"

While there may be nothing seriously wrong, don't take chances—let your dentist decide. Often, however, he will explain your condition as a "simple case of sensitive gums—gums that are the victims of our modern menus—gums robbed of work by today's soft and creamy foods." And his advice will probably be "more work and resistance for lazy gums" and, often, "the helpful stimulation of Ipana Tooth Paste and massage."

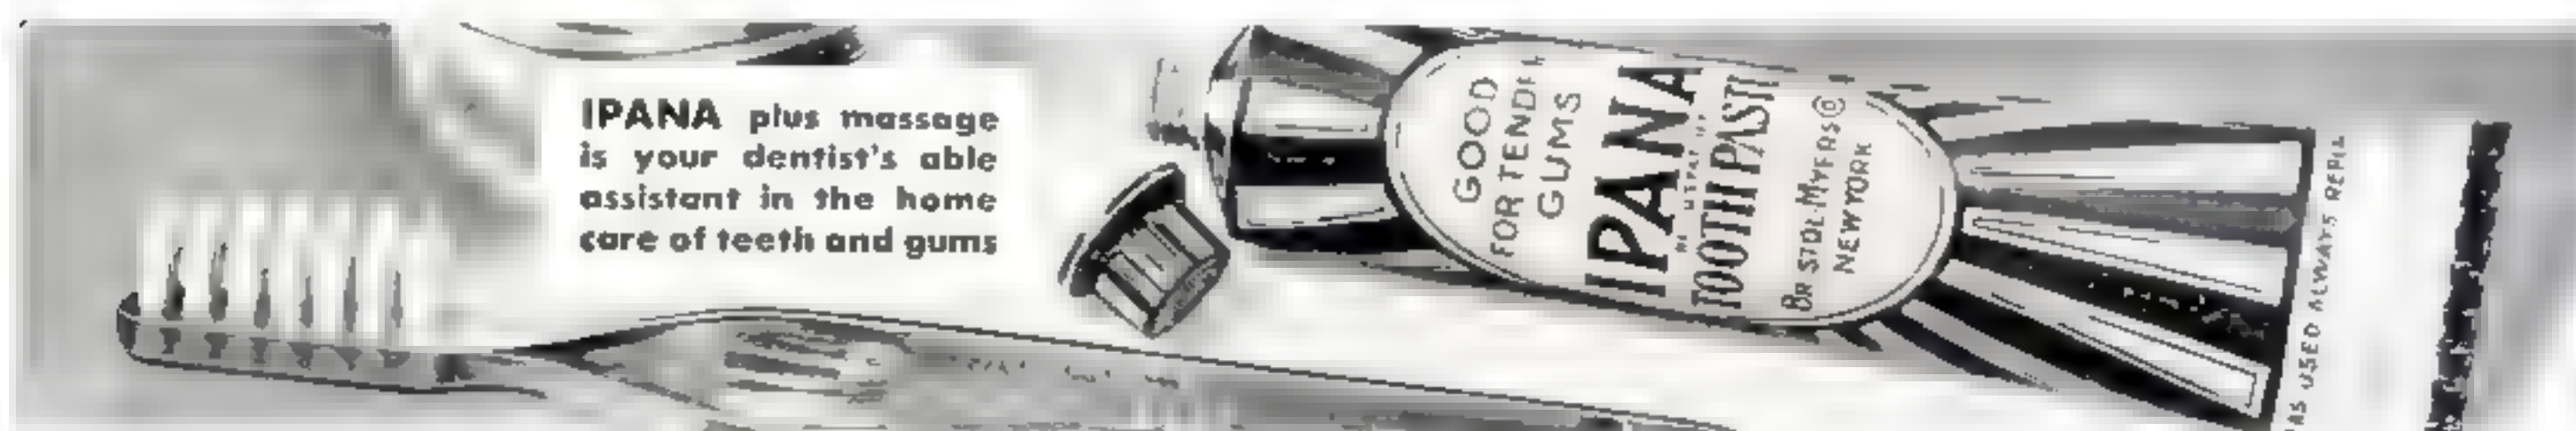

For Ipana, with massage, is especially designed to help the gums as well as keep teeth clean and sparkling. Massage a little extra Ipana into your gums every time you brush your teeth.

Circulation quickens in the gums. Gums tend to become firmer—teeth brighter, more lustrous.

Millions of people already have adopted the Ipana and massage dental health routine. It's one simple way of helping to prevent dental disorders—and with your gums more vigorous and healthy, your teeth sparkling—you need never be ashamed of your smile!

THE AMERICAN LEGION TAKES NEW YORK CITY

Greatest mass spectacle in American life is the annual convention of the American Legion. The 19th Legion convention, in New York Sept. 20-23, was the biggest ever. The biggest city swallows most conventions, but 110,000 Legionnaires, wives, children and camp followers, swept in like an invading army and took the city, to the blare of half a thousand bands and the banging of innumerable firecrackers and toy cannon. Between tunes a few serious ones assembled, resolved for peace, for a Big Navy, for neutrality in Labor disputes, against all alien "isms." But the great thing was the show—a peacetime army of middle-aged men in vari-colored uniforms behaving like boys and marching like heroes up Fifth Avenue again. The dramatic parade picture (above) of a strutting drum major framed by a crippled Legionnaire's leg and crutch, was taken for LIFE by Victor de Palma.

In this issue LIFE devotes the following 21 pages to the American Legion, its parade, its high jinks, its history and one of its typical members. For LIFE on the American Newsfront, see page 104.

BACK FROM THE WARS: THE BIOGRAPHY OF THE AMERICAN LEGION

In the winter of 1918-19, the A.E.F. high command was growing anxious about the sullen restlessness of doughboys stuck in France and eager to get home. There was talk of forming some kind of veterans' organization to bolster morale. On Feb. 16, 1919, Lt. Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. invited 20 officers to a dinner at the Allied Officers' Club in Paris, made the proposal. A seconding speaker was Lt. Col. Bennett Champ Clark, now the rotund senior U. S. Senator from Missouri. The diners responded warmly, went out to spread the word. On March 15, an organizing caucus of 1,000 officers & men met in Paris (right), adopted the name "American Legion."

In 18 years the Legion has grown great and million-strong. Though it claims less than one-fourth of U. S. World War veterans, it has come, popularly and politically, to stand for almost all of them. It has been revered as a legion of heroes, earned just praise for its work in disaster relief, child welfare, civic betterment. And it has been fiercely denounced as a greedy Treasury-raiding machine and a potential Fascist nucleus.

Observers conscious of history have wondered whether the Legion is to become another such self-seeking political incubus as the Grand Army of the Republic, which took a quarter-century after the Civil War to reach full bloom. To a broader question, no nation has found answer since Alexander's legions marched back from Carthage. That question: can a body of men uprooted, toughened and disillusioned by war ever be returned to normal citizenship?

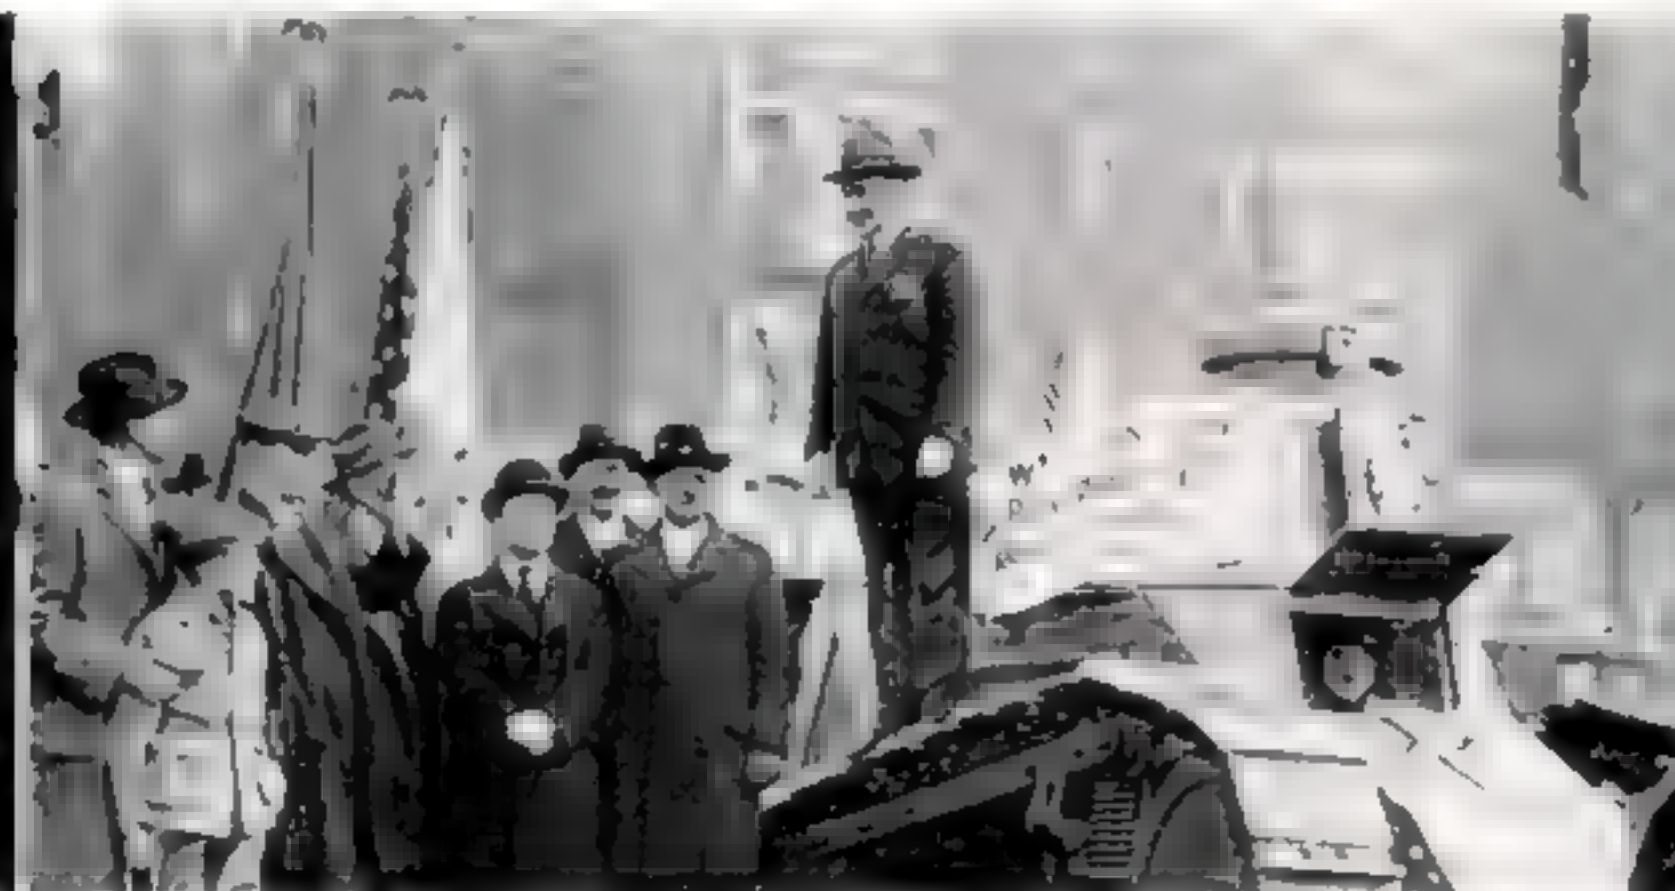

1 1,000 members of the A. E. F. met in Paris, March 15-17, 1919, to organize the American Legion. This picture of the closing session in the Cirque de Paris was taken while some of them were out for lunch. Presiding officer was Lt. Col. Bennett Champ Clark, whose reflection can be seen in mirror on rear auditorium wall, over First Division placard.

2 Lt. Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. sped home to begin U.S. organizing.

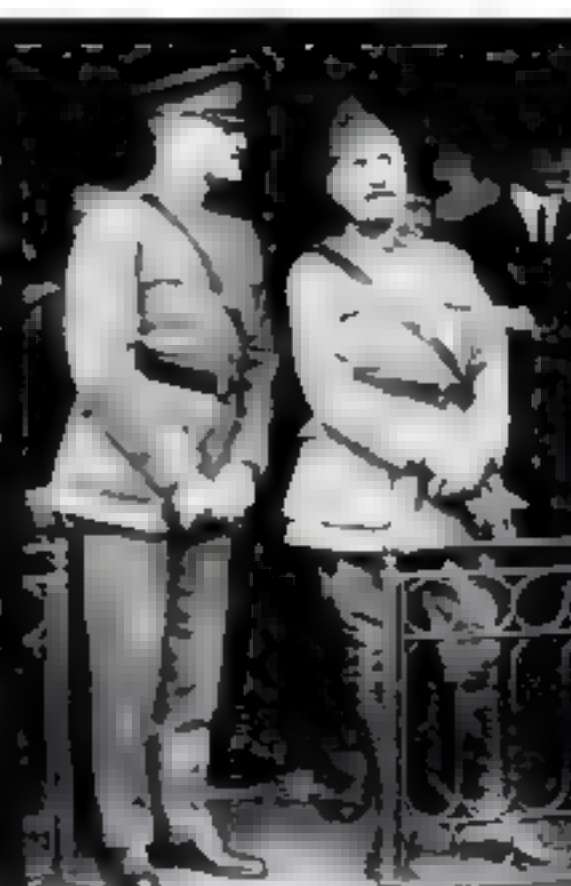

3 Tanks and other reminders of War were used in the Legion's early, high-pressure recruiting drives. By the end of 1920, the Legion had 845,186 members. Within four years more than a quarter of them had dropped out. But with the Bonus drive, the membership curve began to rise again.

4 Franklin D'Olier, D.S.M., now vice president of Prudential Insurance Co., was elected first national commander at 1919 convention. Later he opposed the Bonus.

5 The 20,000 Legionnaires who marched at the second national convention in Cleveland in 1920 still wore their Wartime khaki. Year before, the Legion had scorned "legislation in its selfish interest." At Cleveland it demanded the Bonus ("adjusted compensation").

6 Legion prestige rose when Marshal Foch (right) came to join General Pershing at 1921 convention.

7 During 1921 depression the Legion opened employment offices in its 11,000 posts, got jobs for 500,000 veterans. Note recruiting legend on blackboard at right.

8 An original Legion Washington lobbyist was A.E.F. Lt. Col. Thomas W. Mader. He went to prison in 1928 for taking a bribe while Alien Property Custodian.

9 Another early Legion lobbyist, A.E.F. Col. Luke Lea. He went to prison in 1931 for plotting to defraud a bank.

10 The Legion's present high-powered Washington lobbyist is benedict A.E.F. Capt. John T. Taylor.

11 The Legion's Washington headquarters, home of its potent lobby, is this 23-room brick mansion on K St. It is tax-exempt.

12 The Veterans' Administration Building in Washington, where the paying of the nation's $800,000,000 annual veterans' bill is tended, has long been a centre of Legion interest and Legion influence.

13 First concern of the Legion, as of the G. A. R., was disabled veterans. Above one makes poppies.

14 Began in 1920, poppy sales by the Legion Auxiliary bring in $1,000,000 per year for Legion rehabilitation and child-welfare work. Disabled veterans in an Oklahoma hospital made this mountain of poppies.

15 The Legion Auxiliary of women relatives was formed in 1921, now has 440,000 members. Above: San Francisco, 1923 convention.

16 Indiana gave the Legion this $400,000 National Headquarters building in Indianapolis, part of a five-block State War Memorial. Like Washington headquarters, the building is tax-exempt.

17 Seeking civic usefulness, the Legion has concentrated from the beginning on child welfare. Above an Ohio Branch of the 40 & 8, Legion funsters, prepares to deliver food baskets.

18 Undernourished school children fill up at a Legion kitchen in Calexico, Calif. This year the Legion has spent $3,242,756 on 381,274 needy children, one-tenth of them no kin to veterans.

19 As Legionnaires achieved fatherhood, sentiment rose for a junior organization to carry on Legion ideals. Sons of the American Legion now has 50,000-odd members.

20 To develop sound American character through sport, the Legion in 1926 began a Junior Baseball program, which now engages 500,000 boys. Above: "flag education."

21 Parisians cheered lustily as some 27,000 members of the Legion's "Second Expeditionary Force" arrived on their "sacred" and sentimental pilgrimage amid scenes reminiscent of ten years before.

22 In 1927, Vice President Charles Gates Dawes saw fellow Legionnaires off on a great mass pilgrimage to Paris.

23 Down the Avenue de l'Opera marched Legionnaires carrying their State placards in a 4-hour parade. This month, another ten years later, 5,000 Legionnaires are going to France again.

24 Standing where he did not say "La Fayette, we are here," General Pershing, with the Legion's National Commander Howard P. Savage (at his right) helped by a Legion wreath on La Fayette's tomb.

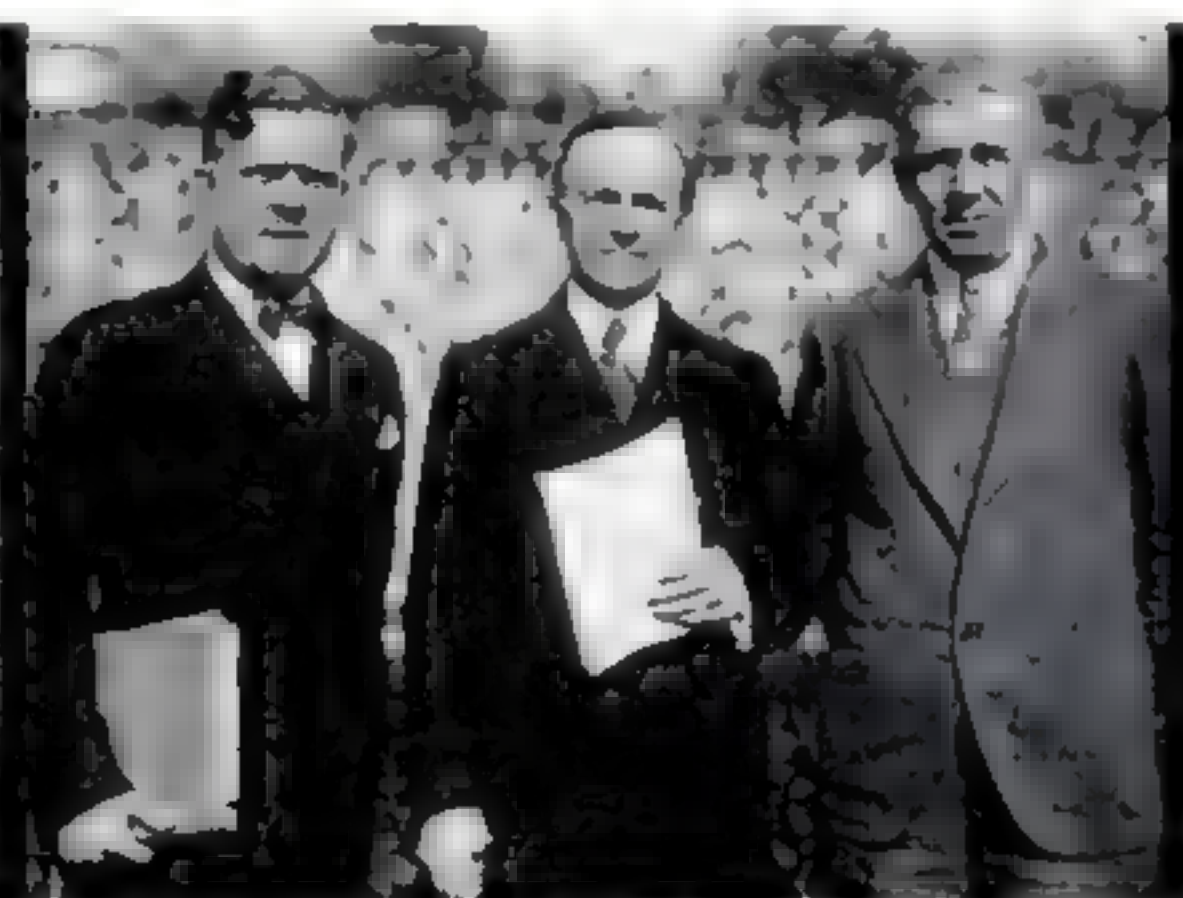

25 The Paris Legion post calls its handsome headquarters Pershing Hall. The Legion has posts in 11 countries.

26 Prize souvenir of the Paris convention was one of the taxes which took Joffre's soldiers to the Marne. Legionnaires of the Portland, Ore., 40 & 8 are shown rolling it out of its Paris garage.

27 Proud to drive the famous taxi when it arrived in Portland was Oregon's Senator Frederick Steiwer, one of the Legion's many Congressional members & friends.

28 The Legion has defeated in Congress every President in its lifetime. ~~There~~ President Coolidge with Lobbyist Taylor (left) and Commander Savage. His Bonus veto was beaten.

29 President Hoover (shown with Lobbyist Taylor and Commander Henry L. Stearns Jr.) stood by the permit but bonus loans on Bonus was overridden.

30 Perennial author of cash bonus bills, Texas' Congressman Wright Patman, Legionnaire.

31 At the 1930 Boston convention, President Hoover pleaded for good citizenship, warned Legionnaires. "Demands upon the Government should not exceed the measure which justice requires and self-help can provide."

32 Also on the Boston platform sat ex-President Coolidge. He made a one-sentence speech: "You have paid your debt to La Fayette but you still owe a debt to yourselves and to the nation."

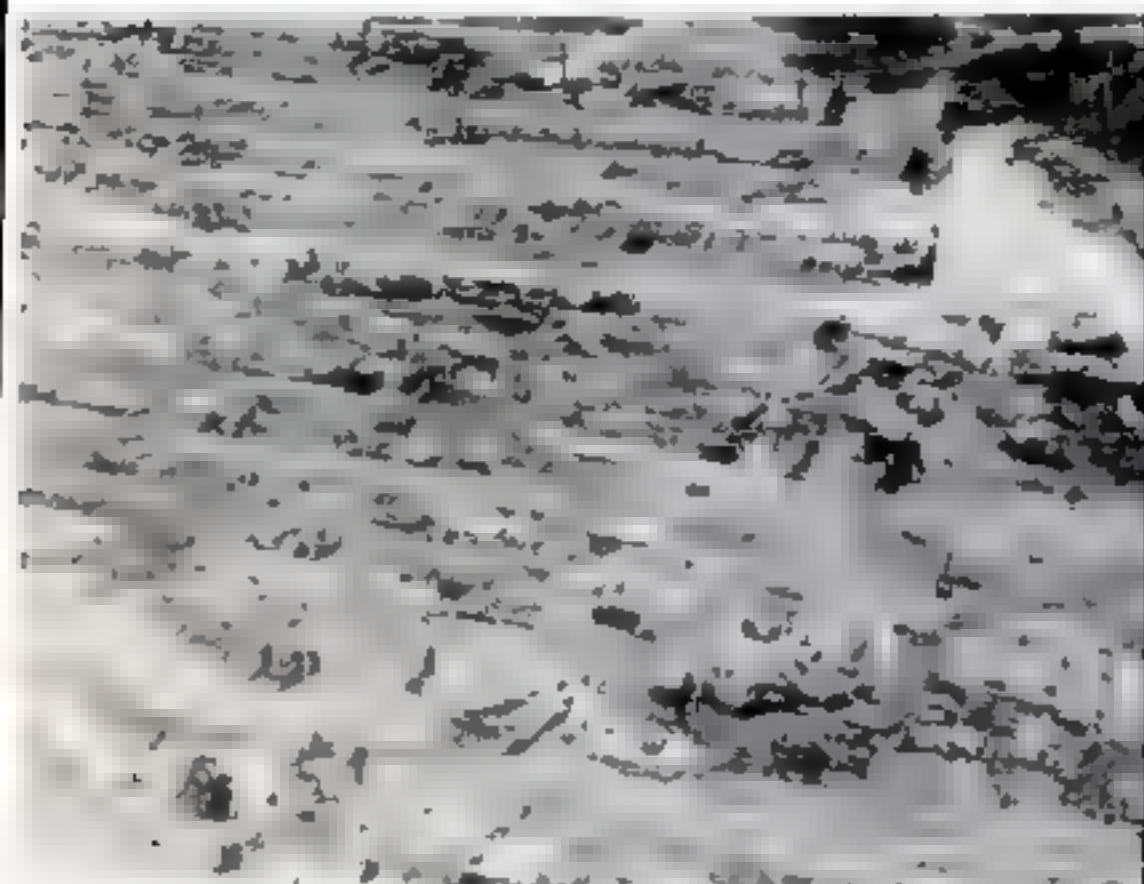

33 In April, 1932, Legionnaires besieged the Capitol demanding Bonus cash not due until 1945.

34 Next month Washington was invaded by the ragged Bonus Army, 8,000 strong and demanding cash. Some of them settled in old Government buildings. When police tried to evict them, they fought back with bricks.

35 Riots in which two Bonuseers were killed by police caused President Hoover to order the U. S. Army to drive the veterans out of Washington. General Douglas MacArthur (left) supervised.

36 When the U. S. troops got through, the Bonus Army's camp was a smoldering ruin. President Hoover was bitterly criticized. The Legion disclaimed the Bonus March.

37 First Legionnaire to be elected President was Franklin D. Roosevelt. Eligible because of wartime service as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, he belongs to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. post.

38 A 1933 Bonus March was turned off harmlessly by President Roosevelt, who shunted marchers down the Potomac to this camp at deserted Fort Hunt, Va.

39 When Congress passed a bill for full cash payment of the Bonus in 1935, President Roosevelt delivered a vigorous veto in person. It was sustained by the Senate.

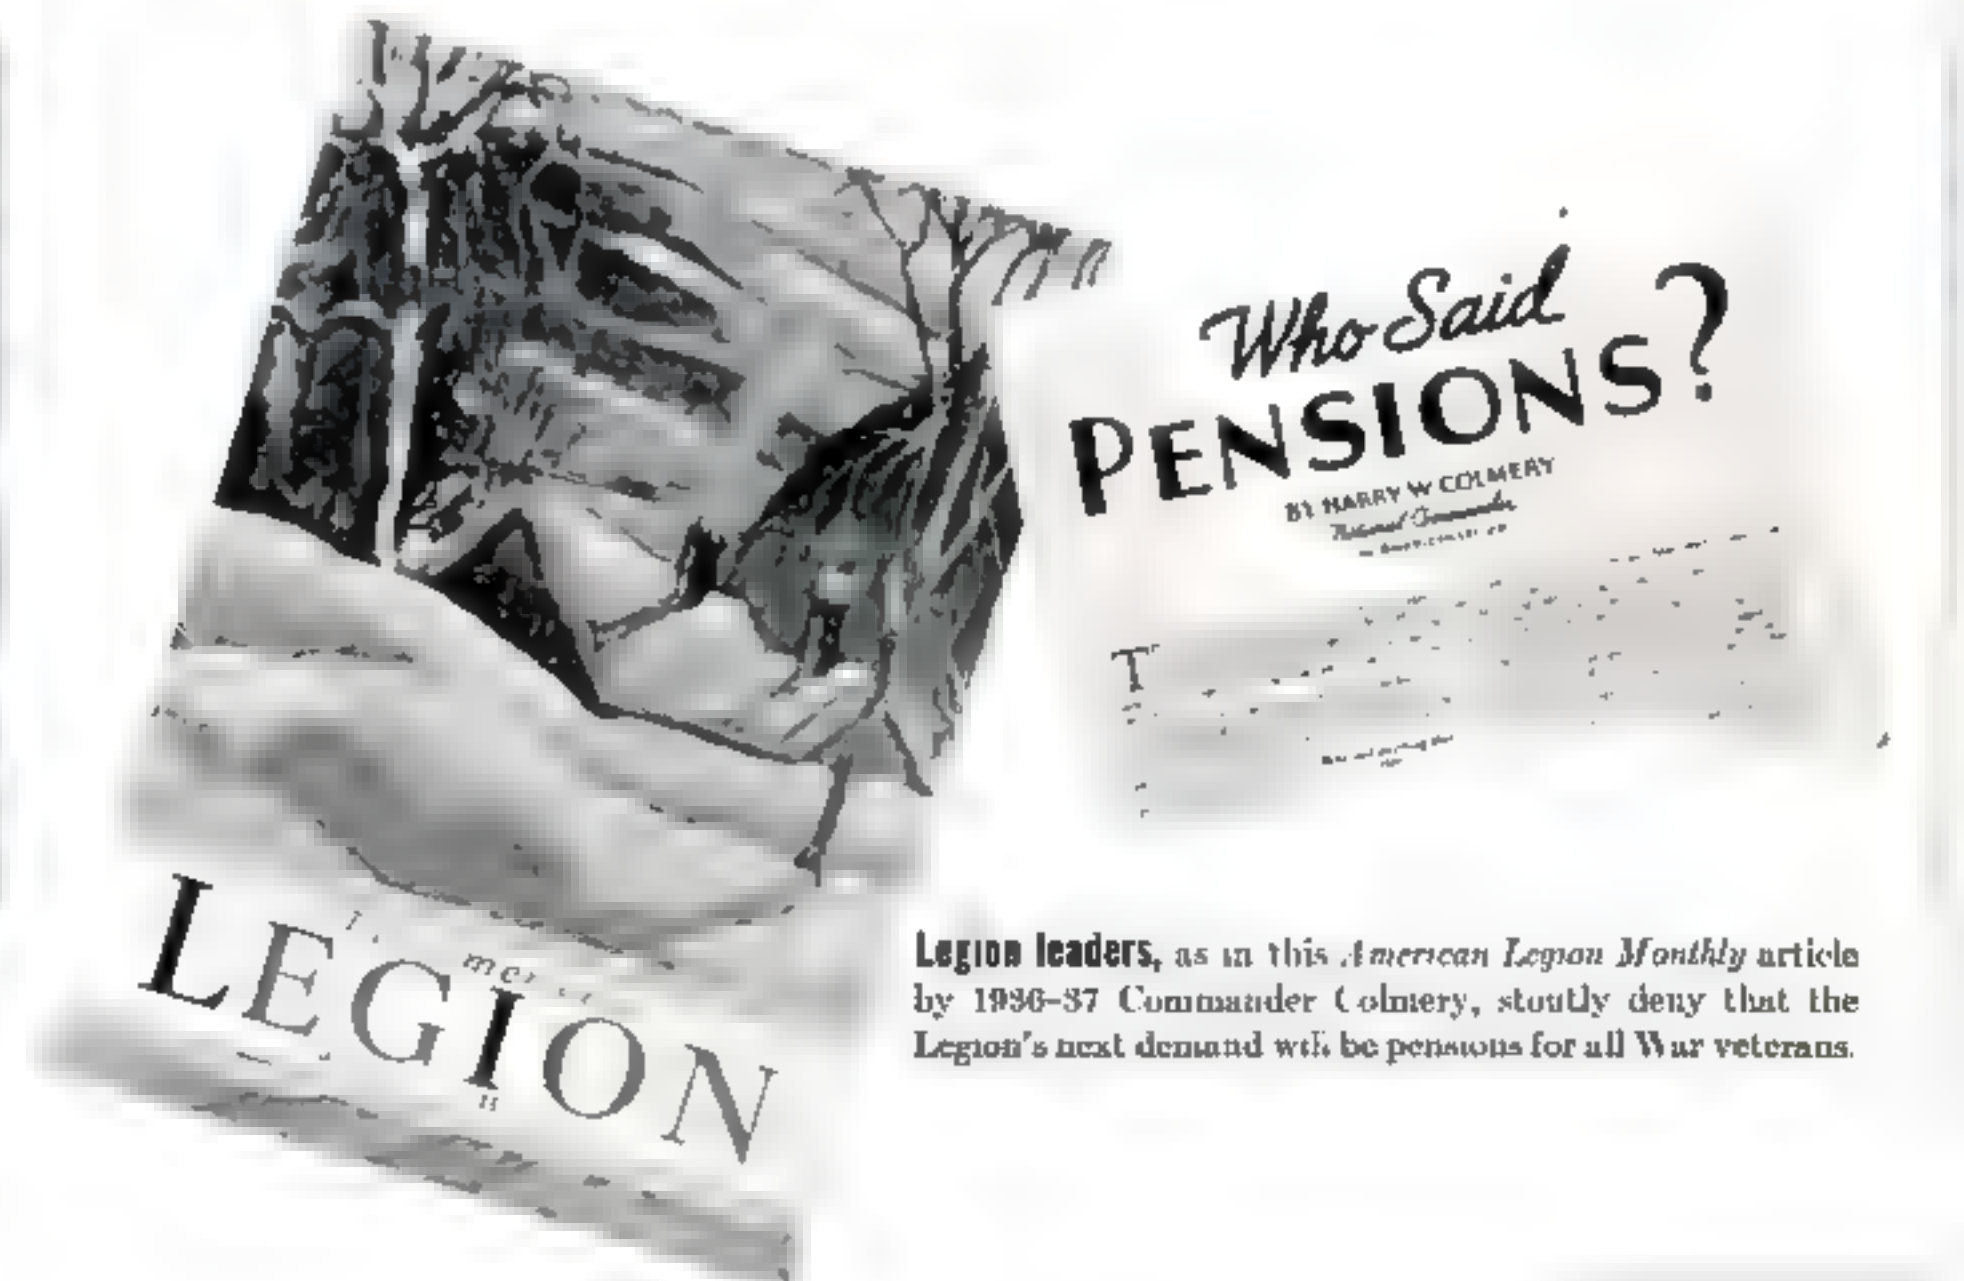

40 Next year the bill was passed again. A second Roosevelt veto was overridden. Above: Legion Commander Ray Murphy (second from left) grins as Senate Secretary Halsey signs bill.

41 On June 15, 1936, the Treasury began mailing out $2,490,000,000 in Bonus bonds. By mid-September veterans had converted half of them into cash.

42 In the library of Lobbyist John Thomas Taylor in Washington, shelves bulge with copies of the 2,000 bills prepared and sent to Congress by the Legion. Passed, many without the change of a comma, have been $100.

Legion leaders, as in this American Legion Monthly article by 1936-37 Commander Colmery, stoutly deny that the Legion's next demand will be pensions for all War veterans.

WHO SAID PENSIONS? THE VETERANS OF EVERY WAR IN U. S. HISTORY

General George Washington said it first. During the Revolution he proposed half pay for life as a bribe to keep his downhearted officers from quitting the war. Thus was born in the U. S. the idea that fighting in the Country's wars is not a patriotic sacrifice but simply a type of dangerous work which should be adequately paid for in cash. That idea reached full flower in the spectacular Treasury raids of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Civil War aftermath of pensions-for-everybody has established the premise that, for the U. S., the major cost of war begins when the fighting is finished (see below).

By 1884, 19 years after Appomattox, Union veterans and their dependents had cost the U. S. taxpayers only half a billion dollars. What World War veterans will eventually cost them depends upon how successfully the American Legion continues to improve on the example set it by the G.A.R.

WIDOW OF 1812

The American Revolution is bought & paid for. The last pensioner, a veteran's daughter, died in 1911. But 122 years after it ended, U. S. taxpayers are still paying for the War of 1812. Mrs. Caroline King (above) was 19 when in 1869 she married ex-Private Darius King, late of Captain Stevens' Company, New York Militia. He was 73, had served just 53 days in the War of 1812. He died in 1886. His widow began drawing a $12-per-month pension next day.

Half century later, Widow King, 87, is still drawing her pension, now $50 per month. She lives at the Evangelical Church Home in Cheektowaga, N. Y. Only other surviving 1812 pensioner is Esther Morgan, 80, of Independence, Ore., a veteran's daughter. Reckoning from these two, U. S. taxpayers will still be paying for the World War in the year 2040.

WALLACE RAMSEYER, LEGIONNAIRE

Wallace Ramseyer is the Legionnaire whose dining room appears on the front cover of this issue. He lives in the town where he was born 41 years ago, Fairbury, Ill. (pop. 2,500) on the Toledo, Peoria & Western R. R. about 100 miles southwest of Chicago. He is vice commander of Fairbury's American Legion post.

The national convention is the Legion's one big blowout of the year, but people who know the Legion only by its conventions do not know much about the average Legionnaire. Of the Fairbury post's 150 members, only District Commander Ed Yeagle went to New York this year. While he and a gregarious fraction of the Legion frolicked, the Wallace Ramseyers stayed quietly home about their business.

Legionnaire Ramseyer earns a humdrum living as a rural mail carrier. But the things he really lives by are rich and satisfying—the memories of his War days and the comradeship of those days preserved in the American Legion.

In 1920, the year after he got back from the A. E. F., 24-year-old Wallace Ramseyer wooed & won Lottie Rickeltes, a Fairbury farm girl. He had been a farm worker before the War.

Ramseyer's job is that of Fairbury rural mail carrier. He was three years settling down to it after the War. The hands with which he sorts mail still tremble from War shocks.

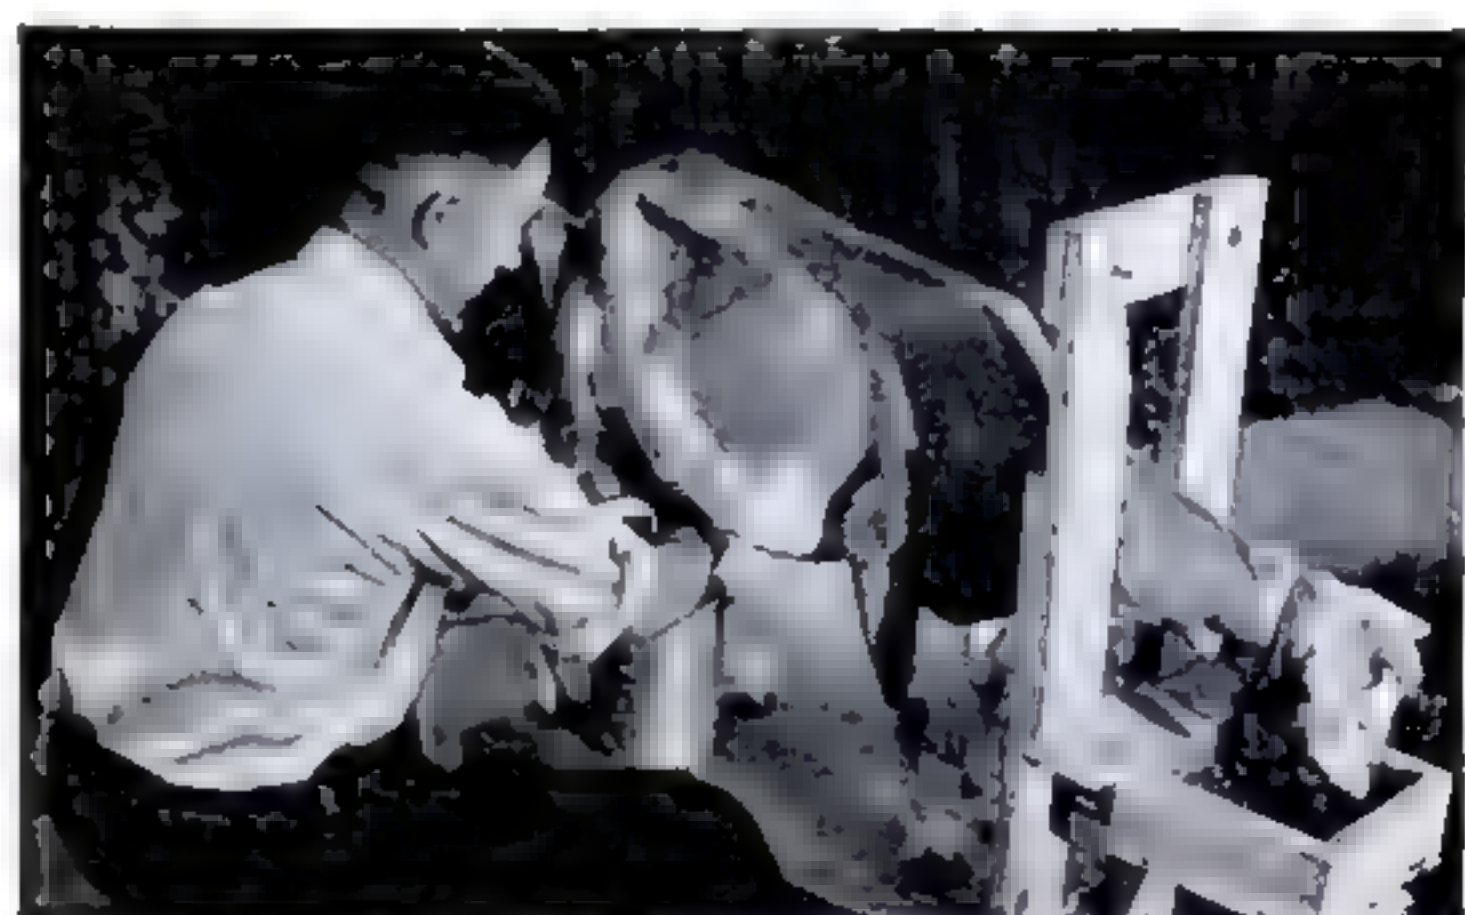

The Ramseyer family dines well off fruits and vegetables from their garden. Rosemary (facing) is a 14-year-old high-school freshman and Nina Lou, 11 (right), is in sixth grade.

This chrome record of Private Wallace Ramseyer's Wartime appearance and service still hangs over their stairway. He bought it for 25¢ at Camp Grant just before his discharge.

Ramseyer drives 34 miles a day on his route, gets $1,880 a year and 5¢ a mile for his car. He finishes up by 12:30 p.m. in summer, 3 p.m. in winter, spends afternoons gardening.

Ramseyer has wanted a goat all his life. He bought this one last year on the excuse that Nina Lou's eczema might be caused by cow's milk. He milks the goat twice daily.

Legionnaire Ramseyer's House

The Ramseyers have always lived in rented houses. They pay $15 a month for this eight-room, cream & brown one where they have been living for three years. But soon they will be moving into their own home. It cost $3,000. Wallace Ramseyer says he could not have bought it without his $970 Bonus money.

Almost every Sunday the Ramseyer family goes to Fairbury's Presbyterian Church. Ramseyer is a Mason and Mrs. Ramseyer belongs to the Eastern Star. But they are chiefly devoted to their only other organizations, the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary.

Almost every family living close to small town respectfully gives its Legionnaire a piano lesson. Rosemary Ramseyer's teacher comes to Fairbury from Bloomington, 100 miles once a week, charges 75¢ per lesson. Rosemary also plays concert on the school organ.

War Memories

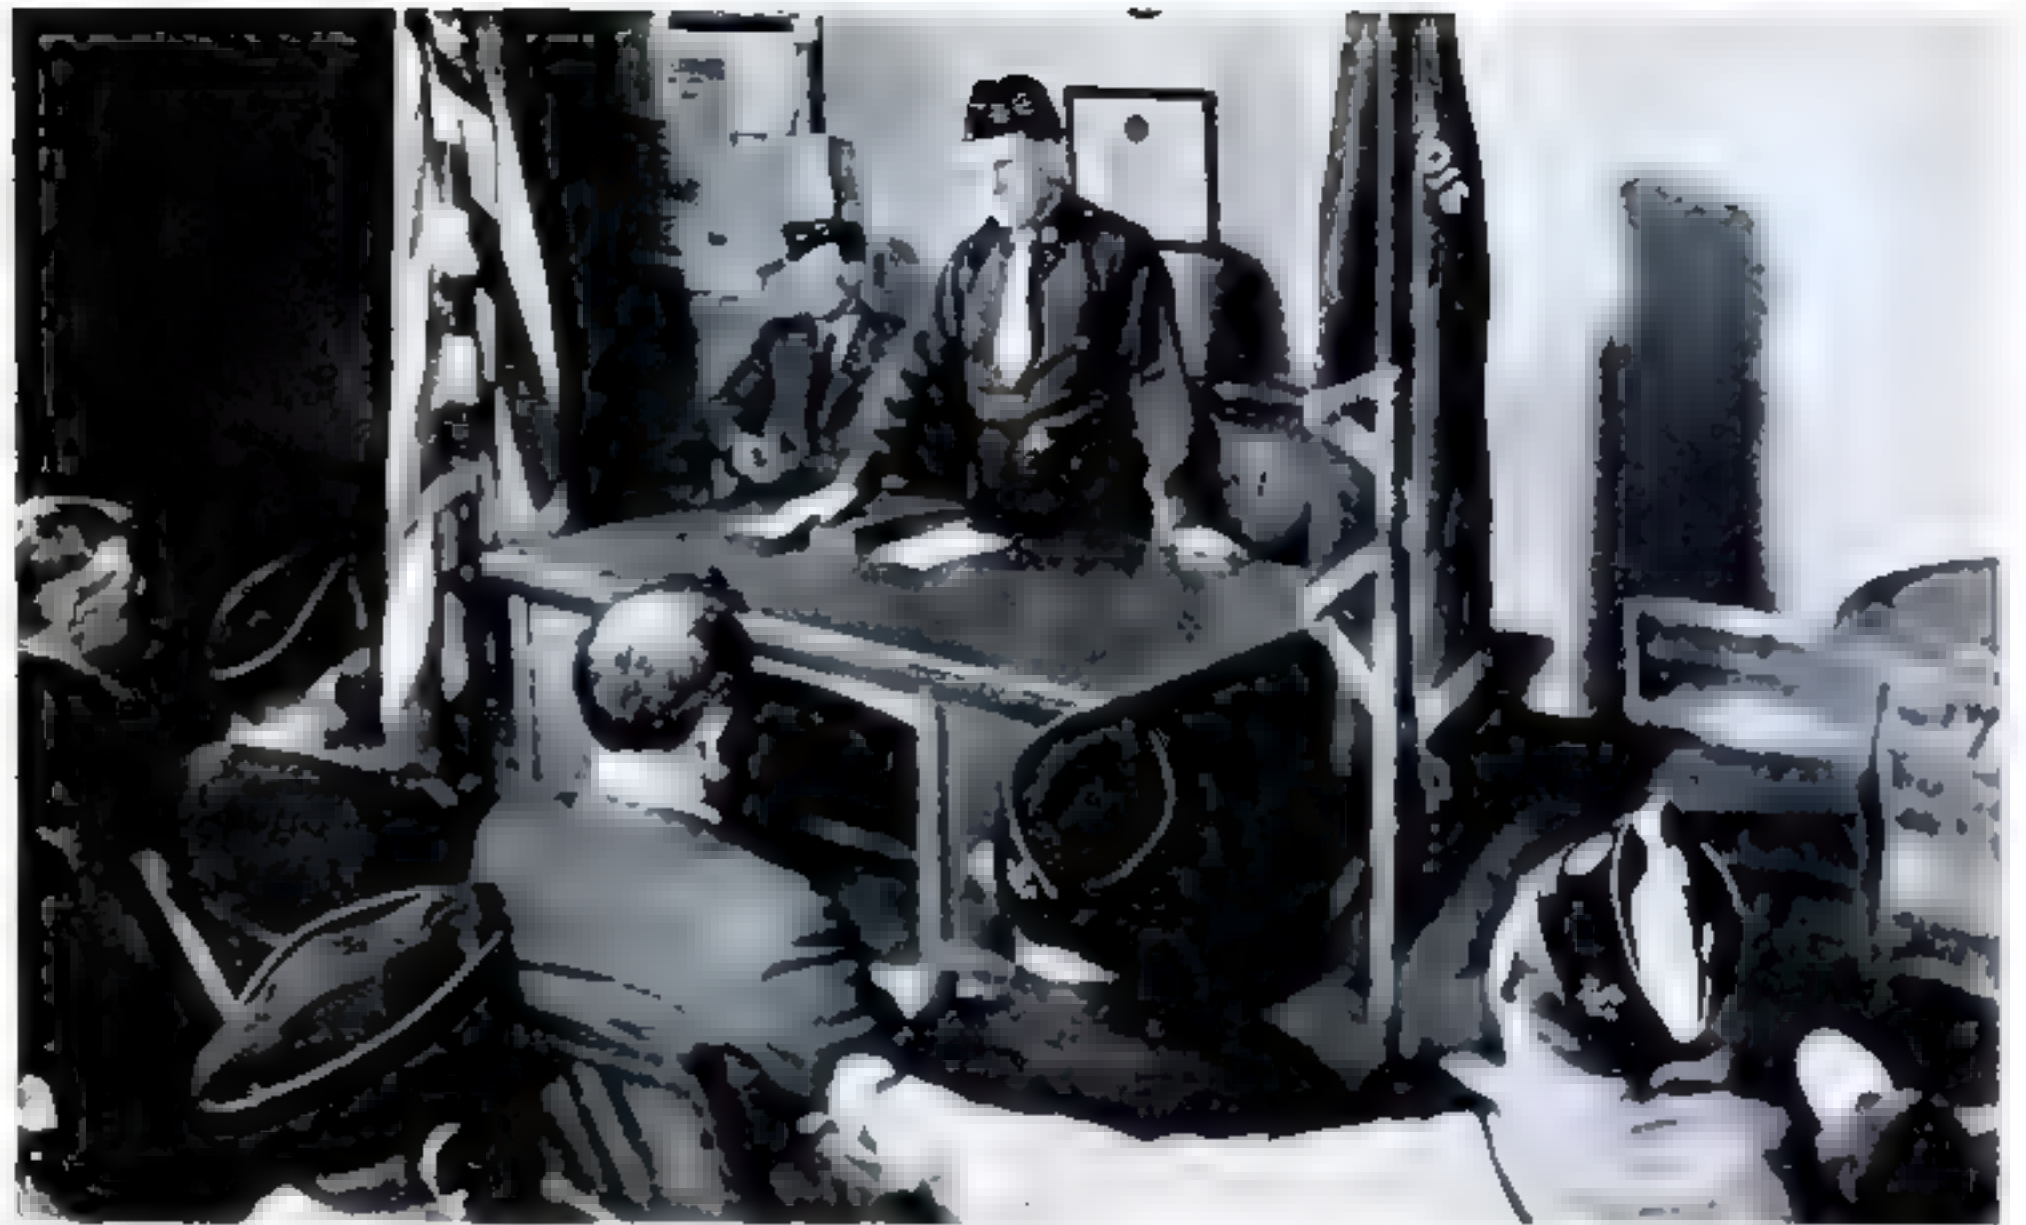

Wallace Ramseyer does not drink. Above he is simply showing, for perhaps the 101st time, how he was slammed against the side of a 40 & 8 car while jouncing from Boulogne to Amiens during the War. His thumb was badly sprained. Near Mont St. Martin in the Aisne-Marne sector he was hit by a shell one night, crawled a mile to town under fire, rode 50 miles sitting up in a jam-packed ambulance. The wound hospitalized him for seven months, left a hole in his back as big as a teacup. He draws $17 per month disability pay.

First Fairbury man killed in the War was John Joda. To its heroes who came back and formed a Legion post which they named for him, Fairbury donated a downtown building.

The Fairbury Legion meets every other Monday night. About a third of the members, including Wallace Ramseyer (second from right in front row) who joined in 1919, attend regularly. In towns of less than 10,000, where Legionnaires live, the Legion post is apt to be—as in Fairbury—not only the best club but the most active civic body

August Sieg, 42, painter & paper hanger: "I figure the Bonus was due us. It wasn't nothing that they gave us. They owed it to us. As for pensions, I don't know where they're getting the money but I think when a man gets old the Government should provide for him."

Perry J. Keck, 58, insurance agent: "There's no reason why we should get into a war in the Far East. I'd never again leave the country to fight. The Bonus was right. Thirty a month for War service wasn't enough."

Edward Yeagle, 41, garage mechanic (through his wife): "We've never discussed radicals or men like John L. Lewis and Hitler and Mussolini but I don't suppose Ed would be in favor of them. Do you?"

Clayton Hetherington, 46 (behind Yeagle), Legion post janitor: "Pensions should be given to ex-soldiers. A guy over 40 can't get a job."

Wallace Ramseyer: "The Bonus was a just debt. But I don't believe in pensions except for the disabled. This country is pretty sure to get into another war. Just let one of our merchant marines get bombed in the Far East and there'll be the devil to pay. I wouldn't want to go again but I probably would. Protect your country and you protect your home."

Jacob Peters, 44, trucker and welder: "Something's got to be done to stop the radicals. Do it before they get too hot."

Ruben Fuller, 45 (second row, with glasses), mailman: "I got $1,570 Bonus money. I didn't need it but as long as it was there I took it. I would rather have taken a pension later like the Civil War veterans got."

William Callaby, 48, farmer: "I think Roosevelt is a wonderful man. Them Wall Street fellows aren't going to pull Roosevelt into war."

SCIENCE & INDUSTRY

A CAMERA LOOKS INSIDE AN EGG

Every second, 960 U. S. chickens each lay an egg, cackle triumphantly. Constant repetition of this simple act produces 30 billion eggs a year, gives farmers an annual income of $1,000,000,000 from the sale of eggs and poultry. To insure this income against innumerable adverse factors, the farmer turns to science and its resultant technological procedure. Thus, the modern poultry establishment is no longer a farm but an egg-and-chick factory, the hen, a highly-specialized tool for the mass production of eggs which are hatched in incubators. In place of green foods they receive rations of vitamins.

Despite science, 35% of the eggs die before they are hatched. To show the growth of an unhatched egg and what practices should be followed to obtain higher hatching percentages, the Research Department of Ralston Purina Co., St. Louis, Mo., in conjunction with Cornell University, filmed growth of a chick and took the following color pictures for LIFE. Below you see how embryos were prepared for portraiture.

Photographer Elmer S. Phillips prepares to take pictures of newly-hatched chicks. He broke 2,000 eggs in various stages to get the pictures on these pages.

An egg is broken into a watch glass by Dr. Alexis Romanoff, research assistant professor of Poultry Husbandry at Cornell, who supervised the work. All embryo color pictures were taken thus.

Photographic merits of several egg specimens are discussed by Dr. Romanoff and Meade Summers of Ralston Purina Co.

Top of eggshell is removed in preparation for placing the embryo in large watch glass on table, where it is washed.

Washing the embryo with a salt solution which is drawn off with a pipette serves to clear away any bloody material.

IT TAKES 60 DAYS FOR THIS SNAKE TO HATCH OUT OF AN EGG

Birds, in prehistoric times, branched off from reptilian forms and thus inherited the property of laying eggs. While modern reptiles, including snakes, have undergone numerous physiological changes, the majority of them are still primitively oviparous. Below you see the hatching of a Ringelnatter, or Ringed Snake. The mother snake deposits her eggs—usually 20 to 30 at a time—in a sheltered spot and keeps them warm within the coils of her body. The incubation lasts 46 to 87 days depending on the temperature of the egg clutch and the development of the embryo at laying. The eggshell, lacking calcium, is soft and rubbery. When ready to hatch, the embryo snake develops an "egg tooth" on the foremost bone of the skull with which to pick its way out of the shell.

A TYPHOON WRECKS SHIPS IN

On the evening of Sept. 1, the Observatory at Hong Kong warned ship captains that a typhoon from the Philippines was making straight for the British city on the China coast. Hong Kong's beautiful harbor (below) was more crowded than usual because of the Japanese blockade of China. At midnight the typhoon struck, registered 125 m.p.h. on the Observatory instruments before the instruments broke. It screamed across the harbor until early morning, registering as high as 160 m.p.h. on privately-owned anemometers.

The typhoon sank at least 20 ships, lifted ocean liners from their storm moorings and slammed them

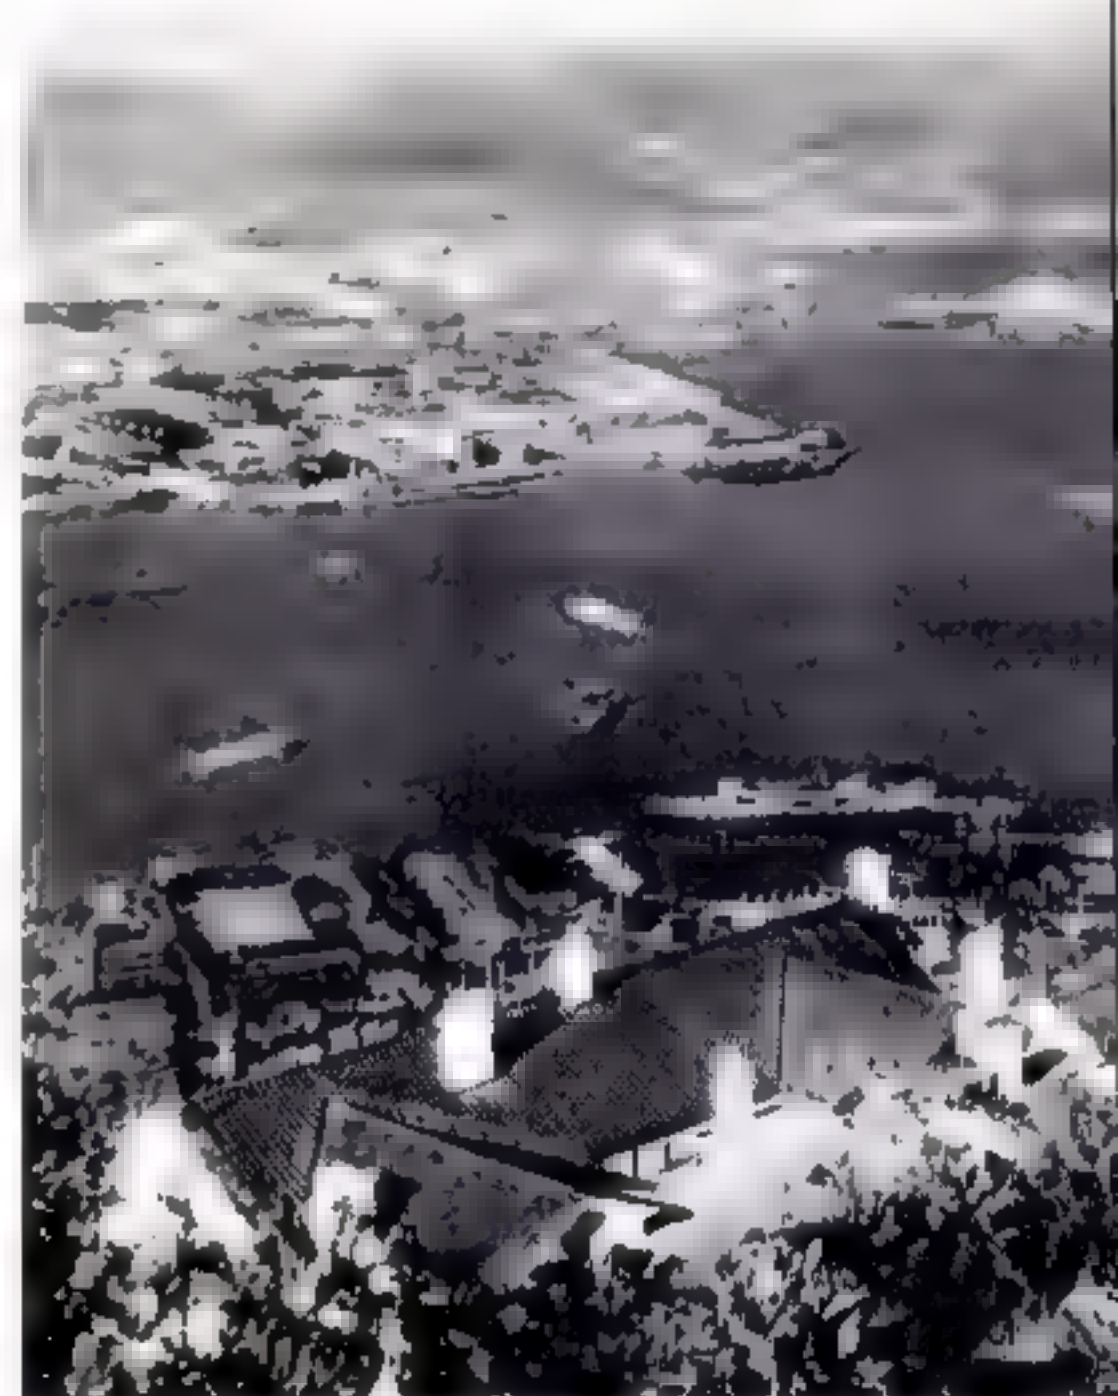

S. S. An Lee was torn from her moorings, tossed helplessly against the steel flank of the British cruiser Suffolk, bounced back and into the British destroyer Diamond, caromed off the British destroyer Duchess and wound up stern foremost on Hong Kong's waterfront boulevard, the Praya. When she hit the Suffolk, three of her crew managed to jump safely from the An Lee to the deck of the Suffolk. The An Lee is a Chinese coastal steamer of 1,600 tons.

S. S. Van Houtse (above), a twin-screw Dutch K.P.M. liner of 4,500 tons, carrying 1,200 refugees from the war in Shanghai, had dropped all her anchors outside the western entrance to harbor. The passengers were dramatically rescued after she blew ashore on Green Island but the Van Houtse was badly hurt. The Japanese 17,000-tonner Asama Maru (below), had no passengers aboard when she went aground at the eastern entrance to the harbor in Saiwan Bay.

A calm day in British Hong Kong harbor shows some freighters, a British destroyer and a yacht at anchor. In background is the main-land on whose Kowloon (Nine Dragons) Point are Hong Kong's against Hong Kong's granite shore. Most of the big ones could be refloated later. But scores of junks, houseboats and steam launches were sunk beyond recovery and hundreds of their Chinese owners drowned. At the height of the storm a block of tenements caught fire, burned out with a roar despite a heavy rain.

holding bottom. It is protected to the west by Green Island and Kellett Bank, north and south by the granite mountain ranges visible in picture at top. This picture is taken from Victoria's Peak.

S. S. Tumeric, 5,000 tons out of Glasgow, built in Newcastle, ended up like this in Hong Kong harbor, in a nest of mooring piles. Biggest boats manhandled by the typhoon were Japan's Asama Maru (lower left, opposite page) and Italy's Conte Verde, an 18,000-tonner. Of a different class is the 4,000-ton Hong Peng (below) which plies up the Chu estuary to Canton. Like the Tumeric, it too was built in England—in Middlesbrough, 38 years ago.

S. S. Hong Peng (above) foundered in Hong Kong Roads against the mainland mountains seen also in the pictures at left. The British India liner Talamba (below) piled up on the rocky shore. Talamba, an 8,000-ton liner built by Hawthorn, Leslie & Co. of Newcastle in England, broke her moorings at the eastern entrance to Hong Kong harbor and was holed. Notice that three of the lifeboats on the port side have been swung clear and one has been lowered.

This Chinese died, not in war but by drowning, when he tried to outswim the Hong Kong typhoon with a life belt. The live Chinese are busy looking for salvage from the storm

Wreckage in such solidly-built Hong Kong business streets as this was superficial. Few ventured out the morning after into this usually busy street, as five inches of overnight rainfall flooded it

Hong Kong looks like Chinese war scene when typhoon hits

One Chinese city that has a good chance of being spared in the Sino-Japanese war is the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong. The nearest the war has come has been in Hong Kong Chinese riots against Hong Kong Japanese. Since the nearest great Chinese city, Canton, is 75 miles away, there is no reason for Japanese air bombs to land on Hong Kong. But the typhoon that hit Hong Kong between midnight and dawn, Sept. 2, did more damage than a day of war. At right, the framework plastered by the wind against the front of Hong Kong's swank Jockey Club was a temporary shelter for war refugees from Shanghai. They had been evacuated in time. The typhoon blew down old houses, tore off new roofs, bent iron street lamps double, started several landslides from Victoria's mountain peak into its crowded tenement districts. Most of the damage was of a sort easily repaired. With absolute impartiality another typhoon on Sept. 11 struck Japan, destroyed crops and shipping but did not seriously interfere with the war

The Central Praya is Hong Kong's great waterfront boulevard. After the storm it was flooded and strewn with wreckage, not so irreparable as Shanghai's man-made destruction.

A steam launch sank next to the O.S.K. (Japan's Osaka Shosen Kaisha) wharf on Hong Kong's Central Praya boulevard. Scores of such improperly-moored boats were left a total loss after the typhoon

Announcing the new 1938 PACKARD SIX

The Touring Sedan, one of five beautiful Packard Six models for 1938

...and no other 1938 car

INTO the new 1938 Packard Six and Eight have been crowded more really sensational improvements than usually come to light in a five-year period.

Below, in all sincerity, Packard makes you a series of promises that cannot be matched by any other 1938 car, regardless of size or price.

We promise you an absolutely new sensation in riding comfort; the gentlest ride ever built into a motor car; a ride that actually makes bad roads seem smooth, and smooth roads seem even smoother than they are.

We promise you the surest rear-wheel traction ever found in an automobile. The rear wheels level the road as if they were grooved there. Your Packard rounds turns as though it were running on rails, like a train. This vastly increased 'sure-footedness' is the greatest contribution to safety since the advent of four-wheel brakes.

NOTE: The foregoing promises are made possible by, not one, but THREE epochal improvements in the rear suspension. Working together, these developments produce advancements in comfort and safety that go far beyond the fondest drifting board dreams.

We promise you that you need lubricate the new Packard Six and Eight chassis only twice a year. And there are only 15 points that ever require lubrication.

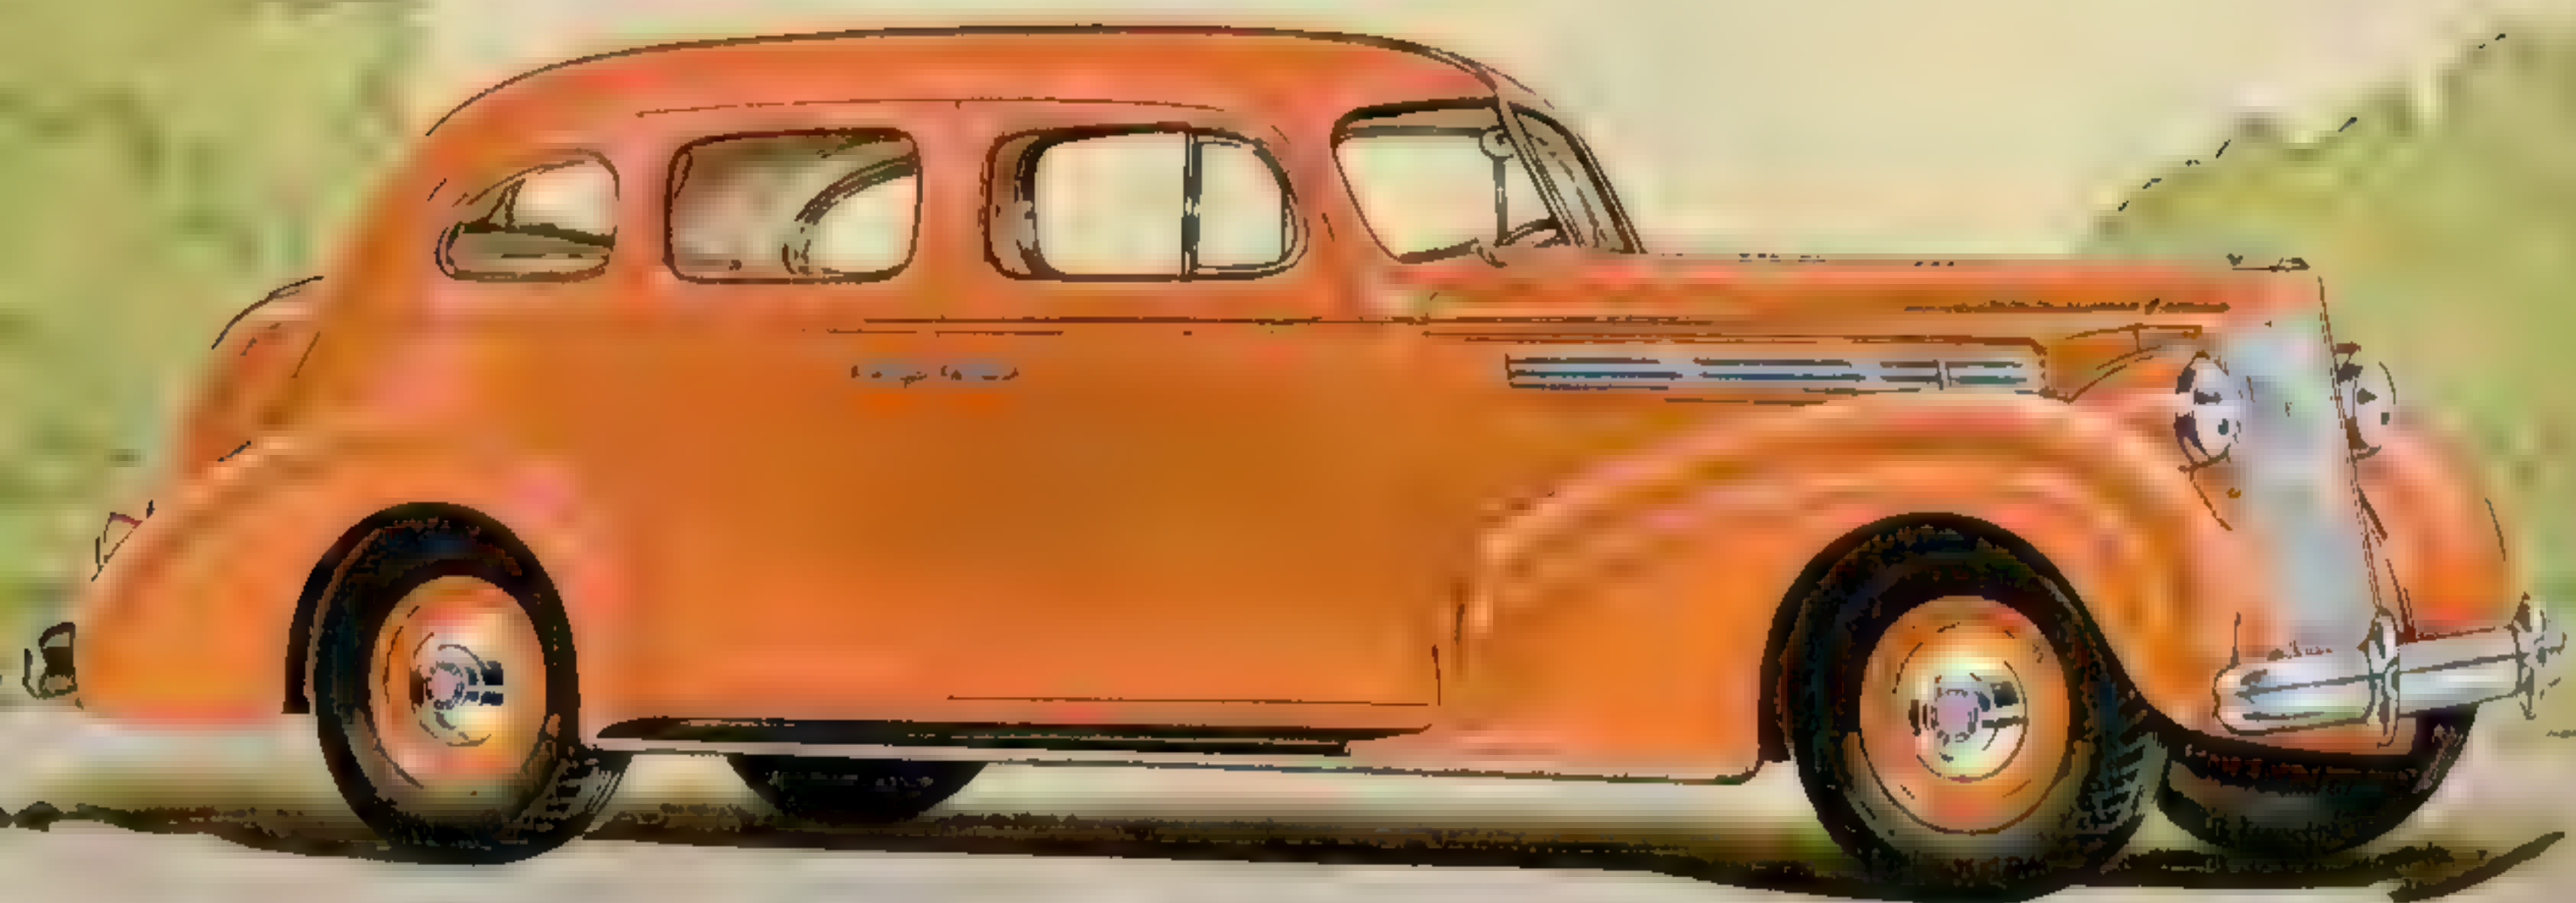

We promise you the first really quiet all-steel body with an all-steel top. Packard has discovered how to eliminate body noises in steel bodies through long and patient research in co-operation with a great University.

We promise you just about the roomiest cars of their respective prices you have ever stepped into. Bodies are far wider. The wheelbase of both the Packard Six and Packard Eight has been increased seven full inches. And the enlarged trunks will hold enough luggage to carry you round the world.

We promise you two lives—long style life and long mechanical life, and no other car can

FORMERLY CALLED THE PACKARD 120

The Touring Sedan, one of the nine beautiful Packard Eight models for 1938 can make all these promises make this promise. This year's Packard lines are more smartly streamlined than ever, although they still preserve their Packard identity, still proclaim your car a Packard, still guard it from early style obsolescence. And Packard's famous long mechanical life has been still further lengthened.

We promise you that there is no pride of ownership equal to that of driving the car that bears the most distinguished name in motoring.

We promise you that no other cars can equal these new Packards in all-around excellence—an excellence that could only come from 38 years of experience in making the world's finest motor cars.

We promise that if you can afford any new car you can afford a Packard; because, your present car will probably cover the down payment, and convenient monthly terms can be arranged on the balance. And in economy of operation and maintenance these new Packards challenge the lowest priced cars.

So far these are only promises. All we ask is the chance to make good on every one of them. Go to your Packard showroom, and drive one of these 1938 Packards. Test it against every promise we have made. Do it as soon as you can—and we promise you the greatest motoring satisfaction you've ever had in your life.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

AND WHAT ABOUT PRICE?

Naturally, you are eager to know how much these new Packards will cost, delivered to your doorstep. May we suggest that you visit your own Packard dealer, who will give you the exact local price on whatever model you are interested in, and show you how easy it is to own one. This much we can assure you, these new Packards are the greatest dollar value in Packard history.

Each Tuesday night at 9:30 E.S.T. over the NBC Coast-to-Coast Red Network, Lanny Ross and Charles Buttersworth have as their guest one of the topmost stars of radio, stage or screen. Don't miss Packard's big star-studded full hour show.

Uncle Hank knows where his next meal is coming from —

"I DIDN'T know what in the world to give you kids for a wedding present. Happened to be passing a store one day and there in the window saw this Toastmaster Waffle-Baker. 'That,' I said to myself, 'looks like just the present I'm looking for.'"

"Besides," he chuckled around his next bite, "NOW I know where to come for waffles that are waffles on a Sunday night, even if you are just learning how to cook."

Do YOU know someone who is having a wedding or a birthday or a wedding anniversary? Or some fair co-ed who'd like to break rules and serve a mid-night spread of waffles? Then hop along to the nearest store displaying Toastmaster Waffle-Baker. And send one posthaste with your love and esteem. For here's a gift that carries more thoughtfulness with it than you'd find in a month of Sundays, for a modest $12.50. Don't worry if the lucky girl can cook or not. She CAN with a Toastmaster Waffle-Baker.

All SHE does is mix the batter. This fully automatic waffle-baker does the rest. Plug it in—the red light glows. When it's hot enough to waffle, the red light goes out. Pour in batter. Light flashes on. When the waffle is done to a golden airy tenderness, out goes the light again. That's all—except butter, syrup or honey—with maybe a brace of juicy young pork sausages on the side. Isn't it time you took your wife a present—just on general principles? On sale, with other fine Toastmaster Products, wherever quality appliances are sold.

MOVIE OF THE WEEK:

Victoria the Great

A few days before his abdication, Edward VIII concluded that his great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, was too priceless dramatic material to be denied any longer to the British stage and screen. By lifting a ban which would normally have held until the deaths of Victoria's three surviving children, Edward started a dramatic avalanche. Victoria the Great, which had its British premiere on Sept. 18, follows in the wake of Victoria Regina, the Broadway hit, which has been playing on the London stage all summer. Early in September, Victoria the Great won the top award at the Fifth International Exhibition of Cinematographic Art in Venice.

As the careful, pageant-like biography of a world figure, Victoria the Great is a superb job, calculated to delight historians and bind Empire ties. Statesmen talk in their own words and even such trivia as the fact that Victoria washed her spaniel on her Coronation night are grounded on solid historical fact. As a photoplay, Victoria the Great is episodic, pedestrian and lacking in either the imperial sweep of Cavalcade or the intimate sparkle of Victoria Regina. That the picture has entertainment value can be credited to an excellent performance by Anna Neagle as Victoria and to the many scenes which are almost identical with scenes in Victoria Regina.

Victoria is awakened early on June 20, 1837, to be told by the Archbishop of Canterbury (left) and the Lord Chamberlain that she, at the age of 18, has become England's Queen.

VICTORIA THE YOUNG QUEEN AWAITS HER FUTURE HUSBAND, PRINCE ALBERT OF SAXE-COBURG-AND-GOTHA

The Love Story of Victoria and Albert

The meeting of Victoria and Albert occurs in Buckingham Palace, under the auspices of the Prime Minister, Lord Melbourne. Each is resolved not to like the other.

"Courage, cousin," says Victoria to her shy relative, "I am not going to eat you." Albert (played by Anton Walbrook) perches gingerly on the opposite end of the sofa.

Romance begins when Albert moves closer. Since he cannot propose to a queen, Victoria finally has to ask him if he thinks he "would be happy" with her. He does.

The royal honeymoon is a trip to Windsor behind an early locomotive, with a coachman stop the first car. The actual wedding train was loaned by the Liverpool Museum.

Life as a Prince Consort proves boring. When Victoria refuses him permission to smoke in the palace, Albert makes her jealous by playing for the ladies-in-waiting.

Albert's death, hastened by overwork, occurs in 1861. For his 21 years of conscientious effort, he had been chiefly rewarded by attacks on "the meddling foreigner."

Gladstone and the Widow of Windsor: Albert's death sends Victoria into 18 years of deep retirement, passed mostly at Windsor Castle. Once Gladstone, the Prime Minister, comes to warn her, in florid Gladstonian periods, that the people want a more active Queen. "Mr. Gladstone," replies Victoria, "do not address me as if I were a public meeting."

Disraeli and the Queen-Empress: In her old age, Victoria emerges from retirement, a kindly grandmother who immediately wins back the hearts of her people. On April 28, 1876, her favorite Prime Minister, Disraeli, proclaims her Empress of India (below). Anna Neagle has not aged as convincingly for this scene as Helen Hayes did on the New York stage.

SCIENCE & INDUSTRY

300,000 CCC BOYS GET PNEUMONIA VACCINE

Every year 100,000 people in the U. S. die of pneumonia. Of the 32 different types of pneumonia germ, Types I and II cause more than half of these deaths. To curb this toll has long been the aim of stocky, gray-haired Dr. Lloyd Derr Felton of Johns Hopkins Medical School. He has now developed a vaccine which he hopes will prevent pneumonia caused by Type I and II microbes. Mass test of his product occurs this month when all 300,000 Civilian Conservation Corps boys who do not object will receive inoculations. Average anticipated results if all CCC boys are treated: 300 cases of pneumonia where there are now 600; 10 deaths where there are now 55.

For the past two months chemists and bacteriologists at the Army Medical School, Washington, D.C., have worked day and night preparing Dr. Felton's vaccine. In sterilized glass cubicles they developed cultures of the antibodies which will kill the pneumococci. The solution will cost the Government 5c per injection, will cost civilians $1 a shot.

These husky CCC youths at Rosslyn, Va., are among the first to be treated. Here Dr. James S. Dryden, U.S.A., injects the one-half cubic centimeter of vaccine into Albert Mann's arm. Unlike a typhoid inoculation, the pneumonia vaccine requires only one injection, causes no painful after-effects, hence will probably prove more popular.

1 To make vaccine, bacteriologist transfers pneumococci from the small sealed flask to the test tube containing rabbit's red blood cells, horse serum and beef broth.

2 In the glass inoculation cubicle the operators wear sterile robes and caps, discard all their other clothing to avoid adulterating the precious pneumonia culture.

3 The large bottles, marked "beef broth," will soon be swarming with germs when the pneumonia-bearing contents of the smaller flasks are transferred to them.

The successive changes from one culture solution to another make the germs multiply rapidly, build up their resistance so they do not die when kept outside of living matter.

4 A masked bacteriologist carries the culture, which is now in liter bottles, from the glass inoculation cubicle to a cabinet where it is stored for a short while.

Does it mix?

It is a mixing gin, we think, when you neither smell nor taste it in the finished drink

A MARTINI COCKTAIL should be a tuneful flavor duet—played by gin and Vermouth. When gin is a mixer, it blends with its partner in smooth-flowing harmony—never overwhelms the drink with a heavy gin smell or gin taste.

Mixed drinks are an American idea. To meet the American taste for smooth mixed drinks, Fleischmann's Gin is distilled especially for mixing—from American grain.

Fleischmann's is the original American gin, established 1870. Our secret formula makes it the real American Mixer. Buy a bottle. And when you order a Martini, say: "Make it with Fleischmann's." (Copr., 1937, by The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation, Peekskill, N. Y.)

7 The solution residue resulting from the filtering is examined here, then redissolved and reprecipitated to remove all the impurities including calcium.

8 The putty-like vaccine residue is now wrapped in Turkish towels and pressed to force out the water content. The remaining liquid is removed chemically.

9 The millions of pneumonia antibodies in this bottle are dissolved in salt water, injected into the subject. The powder retains its potency for three years.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC COOKING

• For years good cooks have sworn by the dependability and economy of gas cookery. Now new gas ranges offer even greater efficiency in heat control, high-speed smokeless broilers, insulated ovens, summer burners. Smart designs, gleaming porcelain enamel finish make these ranges outstanding in beauty while amazingly low in cost. Let your Gas Company or dealer tell you how gas appliances can add to comfort and cut costs in your home.

COMPLETELY EFFORTLESS HEAT

• Just set the thermostat—and forget this automatic gas furnace all winter. There's no worry about fuel supply—no fuel to store. Gas heaters are installed at the lowest cost of any reliable automatic heat available. Because gas is clean heat there's no bother with soot and dust. You don't need a separate room for the compact, handsome heating unit! If it goes in the basement, you can make it part of an attractive "play room."

Look for the Seal of Approval of the Testing Laboratories of the American Gas Association when you buy gas equipment. Appliances bearing this seal comply with national requirements for safety, efficiency and economy.

U. P.'s NEW PRESIDENT ROSE FROM THE RANKS

At the age of 14, William Martin Jeffers, son of an Irish immigrant, left school and started work for the Union Pacific Railroad as a call boy at $20 a month. On Oct. 1, William Martin Jeffers, now 61 (right), starts work at $80,000 a year as Union Pacific's new president. He succeeds 70-year-old Carl Raymond Gray, who retires to become vice chairman of the Board. Mr. Jeffers is the first man in the line's history to rise from the trainyards to the presidential chair.

President Jeffers is noted for his pioneering efforts in safety methods, his ability to call several thousand U. P. employees by their first names, his devotion to work. In his 47 years with the line he has had only three months off, took no vacation for the first 40 years. He decided in 1905 that some day he would be head of the company. When notified of his appointment last April he declared: "I would rather be president of the U. P. than president of the U. S." The stages of his unprecedented climb to the top are depicted on this and the following pages.

William Martin Jeffers wins another promotion and smiles. For half a century he has been advancing steadily, post by post, within the Union Pacific's vast continental system. In 1932, the office of executive vice president in charge of operations, maintenance, engineering, purchasing, was created especially for him. Now he makes the final step up.

Birthplace of William M. Jeffers was a small frame cottage in North Platte, Neb. His father, a Union Pacific shopman, supported his wife, 9 children, on $55 a month.

At five, William M. Jeffers squares his jaw, looks determined "I can't remember myself as a boy," he says today.

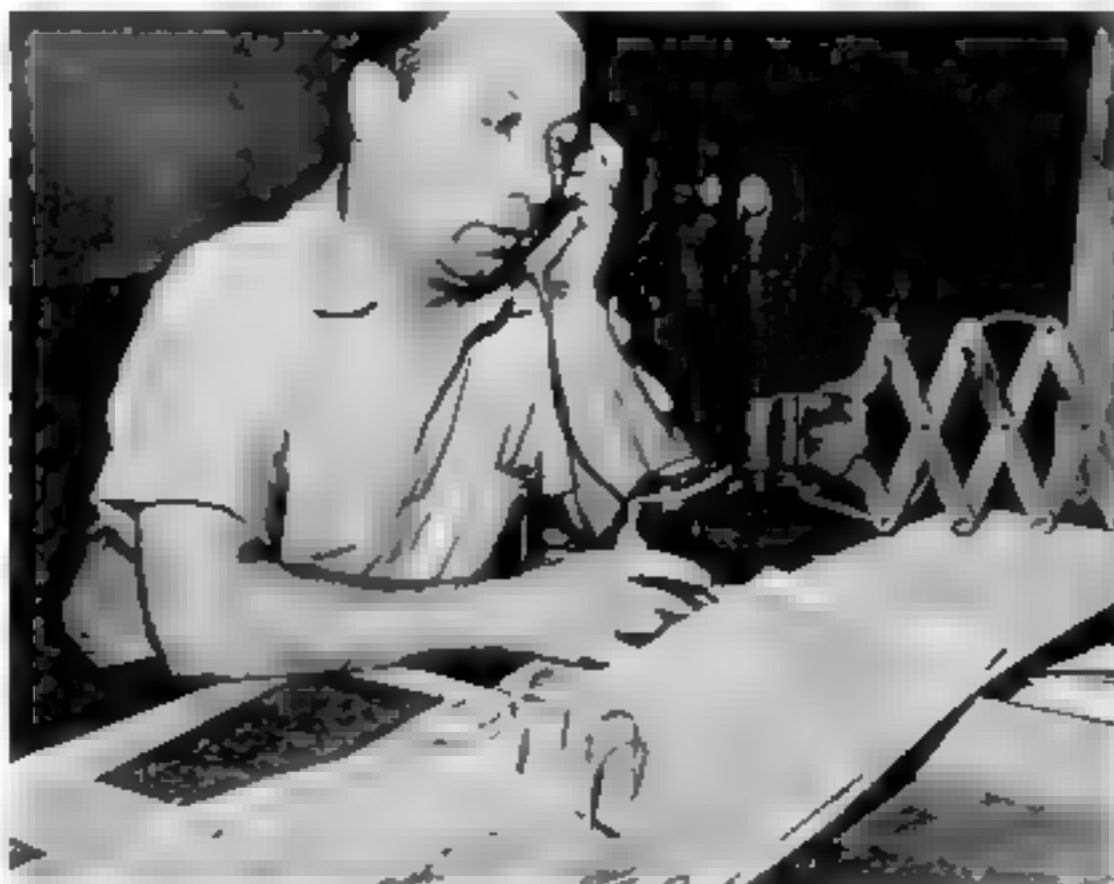

Present home of William M. Jeffers is a comfortable brick house in Omaha. Once it was the residence of the late Gilbert Monell Hitchcock, publisher of the Omaha World-Herald and longtime (1911-1923) Democratic U. S. Senator from Nebraska.

Jeffers climbed to top through jobs now held by these U. P. men Messenger Louis Balaban hustles for U. P. as William M. Jeffers did 47 years ago. Balaban is 20, has been railroading a little less than a year, makes $80 a month.

Roadmaster's Clerk Carl F. Krause, U. P. employe for 19 years, gets $147 20 a month. Jeffers became a roadmaster's clerk at 16, earned $40 a month at the post, moved up the ladder again the following year.

Timekeeper Park Smith checks the working hours of U. P. employes for pay rolls. Jeffers, at 17, held this job for a few months, then became steel-gang foreman.

BE SURE OF

Good Looking Hair

—and you'll be sure of your chances of success. It's really simple, this business of having . . . and keeping . . . a head of good looking hair. It means regular scalp cleansing and massage to keep the hair lustrous . . . daily grooming with 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic to keep it neat. Follow these rules:

DO THIS EVERY WEEK: Massage 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic into your scalp before shampooing...to liven circulation... overcome dryness and loose dandruff.

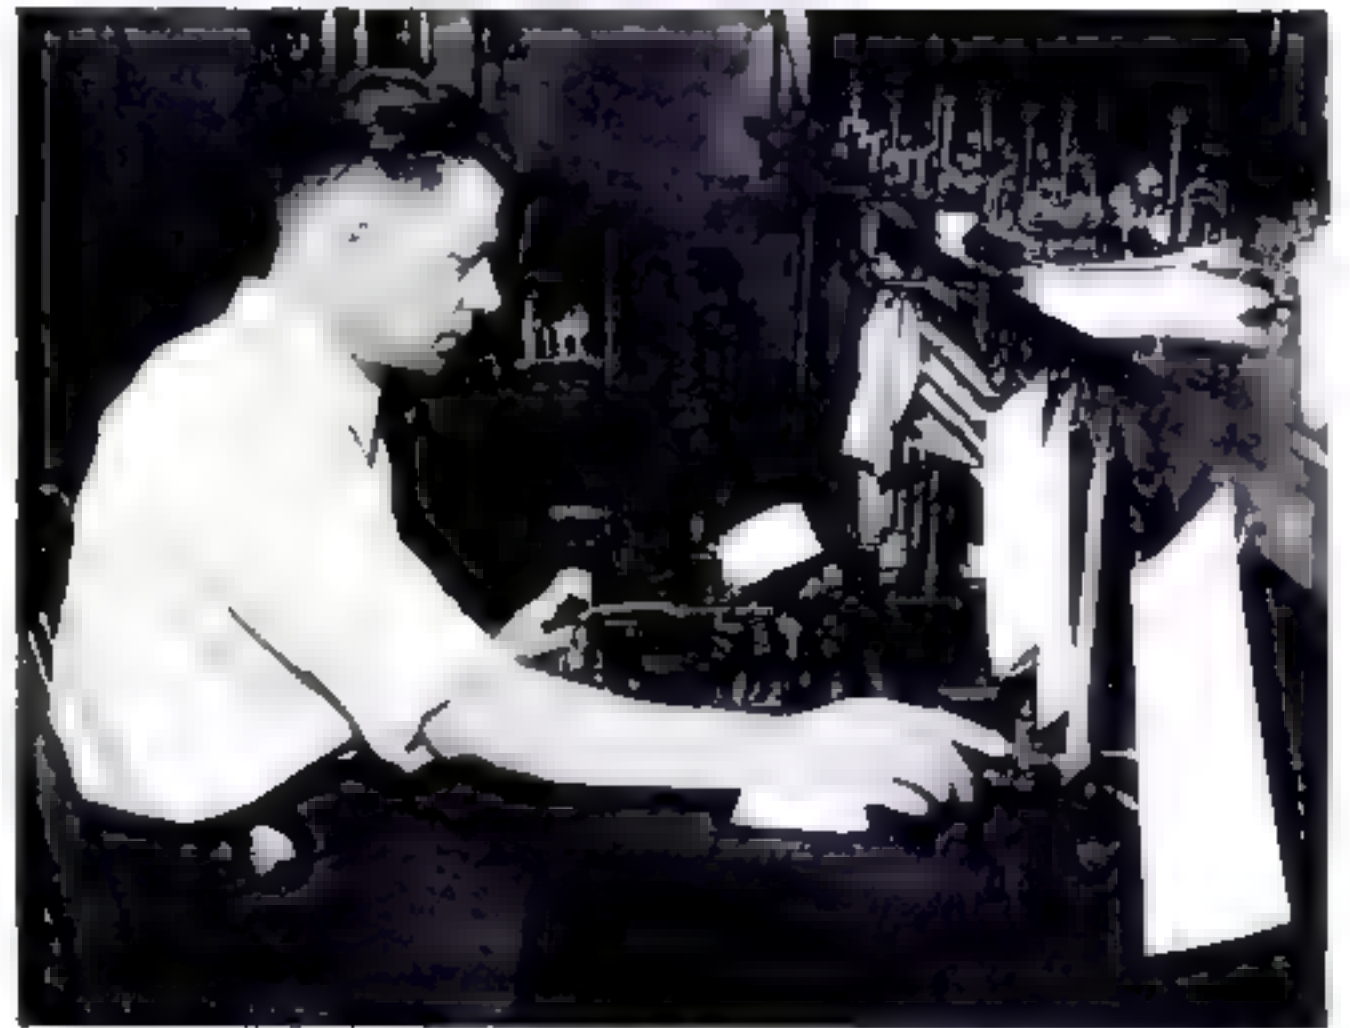

DO THIS EVERY DAY: Before brushing your hair shake on a few drops of 'Vaseline' Hair Tonic . . . to keep your hair neat, orderly and in place.

U. P.'s New President (continued)

Night Telegraph Operator J. H. Meschede has been on duty for 18 years. In 1894, William M. Jeffers held this job, saw service for four years in tiny U. P. stations between North Platte and Cheyenne, Wyo., got a salary increase to $50 a month.

Train Dispatcher J. T. Davis, veteran of 26 years' service, earns $265 a month. When Jeffers was advanced to this position in 1898 with a salary of $110 a month, he decided he was "one of the big fellows," married Lena A. Schatz of North Platte.

Trainmaster F. J. Mitchell (left), who gets $360 a month, talks business with Lloyd Cox, engineer. Jeffers became trainmaster in 1905 with a salary of $175 a month, after serving two years as a train dispatcher and five years as chief dispatcher.

U. P.'s New President (continued)

Superintendent of the Nebraska Division, J. E. Mulick was a brakeman when Jeffers was working as train dispatcher. Jeffers reached this post in 1915 after several years as assistant superintendent and superintendent of the Wyoming division.

Vice president in charge of operation, E. E. Calvin (right) is shown here on his retirement in 1928 congratulating Jeffers, his successor. Between 1915 and 1928 Jeffers served as general superintendent, then general manager of the U. P.

President Carl Raymond Gray, who reached 70 on Sept. 28, refused to let U. P.'s retirement rule be lifted for his sake. He yields now to Jeffers, but will retain a supervisory interest. He came as president to the U. P. from Western Maryland R. R.

"HERE'S MY CELLAR!"

You can always be sure of finer taste—
when the label says "Seagram's"

Four generations of skill and master craftsmanship have gone into the making of Seagram products—a tradition of integrity that dates back to 1857. Because of unvarying quality in every bottle that bears the Seagram name, the House of Seagram enjoys the complete confidence of the public. Wherever you buy—at the bar or in the package store—remove all possible doubt. Think before you drink—say Seagram's and be sure!

When you want a whisky of rare, distinctive character—you can make no better choice than that finer imported 6 year old whisky, Seagram's "V.O."... Or if your taste runs to a heavier whisky, try Seagram's Pedigree—an 8 year old Bonded Whiskey of superlative quality... Few "cellars" are ever without Seagram's popular-priced Crown Blended Whiskies—finest of the finer blends... And when it comes to gin drinks—there is a reason for the decided preference for Seagram's King Arthur Gin. It's "soft-stilled."

CROWN WHISKY SOUR For each drink use equal parts of lemon juice and Crown Whiskey (5 or 7 Crown, whichever you prefer). Add 1 teaspoonful of sugar, put in the drink in a shaker with ice. Shake well and strain into glass—decorate with orange.

A "V.O." OLD-FASHIONED Put 1/2 lump of sugar and a teaspoonful of water in an old-fashioned glass. Crush sugar. Add a dash of Angostura Bitters. 2 oz. of Seagram's V.O. a couple of cubes of ice and a twisted lemon peel.

PEDIGREE MANHATTAN For each drink use 2 parts of Italian Vermouth to 3 parts of Seagram's Pedigree Whisky. Add ice cubes, shake well, strain into glass. Add a Maraschino cherry.

SEAGRAM'S DRY MARTINI For each drink use 1 part of French Vermouth to 3 parts of Seagram's Dry Martini. Add ice cubes, shake well, strain into glass. Add a lemon twist and olive.

SEAGRAM'S "V.O." RARE OLD CANADIAN WHISKY—Distilled, Aged and Bottled under the supervision of the Canadian Government. 5 years old. 90 Proof. SEAGRAM'S PEDIGREE STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKY—Distilled in Canada. 8 years old. Bottled in Bond under the supervision of the Canadian Government, 100 Proof (Rye or Bourbon). SEAGRAM'S 7 CROWN BLENDED WHISKY—The straight whiskeys in this product are 5 years or more old, 37 1/2% straight whiskeys and 62 1/2% neutral spirits distilled from American grains. 90 Proof. SEAGRAM'S 5 CROWN BLENDED WHISKY—The straight whiskeys in this product are 5 years or more old, 25% straight whiskey, 75% neutral spirits distilled from American grains. 90 Proof. YOUR GAS*

You simply must see the new 1938 Willys before you buy any car. Owners save many dollars monthly.

"I have saved $224 on gasoline over the 33,000 miles I have driven" writes Mr. J. E. Taylor of St. Louis. "When I park or stop for gas, people still ask questions about the car. I know they envy me when I tell them I am getting between 33 and 35 miles to the gallon."

In the Willys National Economy Test conducted under normal driving conditions, the average rate of all drivers was 36.5 miles per gallon.

Mr. R. C. Dombough of Jacksonville says "I am saving better than $15 a month on operation costs alone... I am averaging better than 32 miles to the gallon of gasoline. As compared to... my former car, this saves me more than half of my gasoline bill."

You too can travel the road to the savings bank by driving the smart, new Willys. You'll save in first cost—in down payment and in monthly payments. And you'll save tremendously in upkeep and operation cost.

JOE DI MAGGIO, AT 22, EARNS $15,000 A YEAR WITH THE YANKEES

THE DI MAGGIO BOYS MAKE GOOD

Most notable parents in baseball are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul Di Maggio of Taylor Street, San Francisco. Three of their sons, all centerfielders, are making good in professional baseball. Their boy Joe, one of the best outfielders alive, was starring for the New York Yankees as they won the American League pennant. Joe was leading the League in home runs (44), was second in driving in runs (149), fourth in batting (.347). Meanwhile Brothers Vincent and Dominick proved themselves sound, though less spectacular, players.

Joe Di Maggio bats with a loose swing, getting great power from the snap of his strong wrists (above). This year he widened his stance (below), promptly began to hit more homers.

Vincent Di Maggio, up for his first big-league season, bats only .258 for the Boston Bees but has knocked out 12 homers. He is 25.

Dominick Di Maggio, playing his first year of big-time ball with San Francisco Seals (Pacific League), batted .303. He is 19.

Papa Di Maggio, a retired crab fisherman, lives in a house that Joe bought for him near San Francisco's famed Fisherman's Wharf.

Mama Di Maggio has five sons, four daughters. None is more dutiful than Joe who turns over most of his salary to his parents.

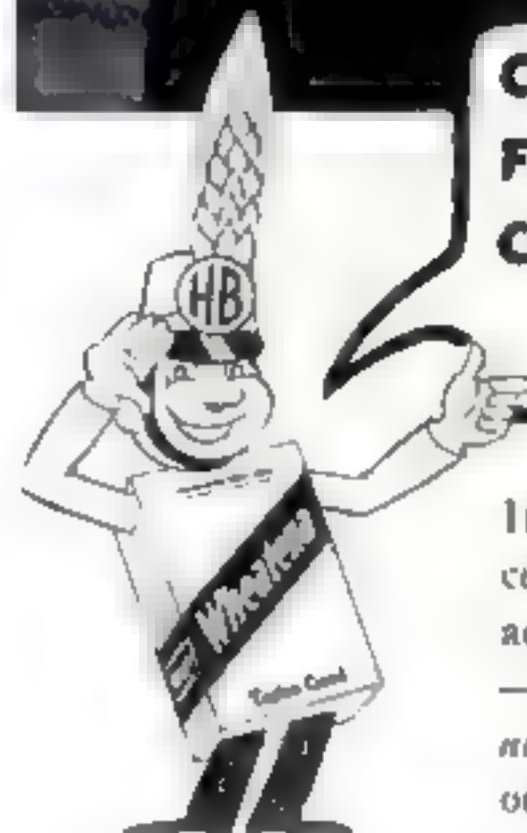

Joe's Grotto, a sea-food grill on Fisherman's Wharf, was built by Joe for his oldest brother Tom. Joe's name is very useful in attracting guests, especially from among San Francisco's Italians, who are fiercely loyal to Joe. Joe's other brother, Mike, is a crab fisherman.

VICTORIA'S GRANDSON DECORATES HIS HUNTING LODGE IN SCOTLAND WITH ANTLERS

Three thousand heads of stags from the highland forests of Scotland decorate the rafters of the detached, pine-walled hall (above) of Mar Lodge, hunting retreat of Britain's Prince and Princess of Connaught. Leftovers line the dining room (below) and the corridors of Mar Lodge. This fantastic collection of antlers goes back to the 18th Century when an ancestor of the Dukes of Fife bought this highland estate, near the King's castle at Balmoral from a dispossessed Stuart nobleman. The Princess of Connaught is the heiress of the Dukes of Fife. Her husband is a grandson of Queen Victoria. (King George VI is a great-grandson.) Most of these heads are at least royals (antlers having twelve points).

4. "Goodness no!" said the girl in the sheet department. "Lady Pepperell sheets don't cost any more than ordinary sheets of similar grade. And when you consider how much nicer they are and how they come already laundered in beautiful boxes . . . well, I just don't see how they do it, I really don't."

5. How do they do it? That would fill a book telling how Pepperell had made sheets for more than 80 years . . . how they have found better ways to spin and weave cotton . . . how they put extra threads into every inch . . . and finally how they sell so many millions of sheets that they can afford to keep prices right down where everyone can afford Lady Pepperell luxury on every bed.

1. "I'm sorry," said Mrs. Webb, "but the new paint isn't dry in our bedroom. So we'll simply have to sleep in the guest room". . . "Suits me swell," said Mr. Webb. "I've always had a hunch that our friends get better treatment than I do. Maybe you'll even serve my breakfast in bed!"

2. "I must be imagining things," said Mrs. Webb next morning, "but these sheets certainly feel a lot nicer than those on our bed." . . . "No, ma'am," answered Linda, "you ain't imaguin' nothin'. I put them Lady Pepperell sheets on the guest beds like you told me to yo'self when I fust come here."

3. "That's right," admitted Mrs. Webb on her way out. "I remember now. They were a gift and always seemed just too good for everyday. But perhaps they don't cost any more than our other muslin sheets. And after last night, I guess I'd better find out. I'll remember to ask when I'm in the stores."

6. Linda was mighty pleased when Mrs. Webb told her to put Lady Pepperells on all the beds. "I didn't want to do no com planin' . . . But thes' sheets sho' wash a lot better'n the others an' I kin do 'em quicker, too. They just keep on lookin' new an' white as snow . . . and how they do wear, lawdy!"

7. "What did I tell you?" said Mr. Webb when he heard about it. "Is that so?" countered Mrs. Webb. "And what do you know about sheets?" Mr. Webb didn't answer—he was the picture of a happy husband. He was sound asleep!

2,000 PEOPLE SEE PYTHON GET FED THROUGH HOSE

A crowd of more than 2,000 people recently thronged the St. Louis Zoo to see Maharanee of Wangkoo, a 22½-foot python, get her monthly meal. While eight sturdy zookeepers held the powerful, writhing body (above), another opened the python's jaws and another shoved a greased length of rubber hose several feet down her throat (right). Marlin Perkins, chief herpetologist of the zoo, then pushed seven pounds of fresh-killed rabbit meat through the hose into the python's stomach. The process was repeated three times to give Maharanee her monthly ration of 21 pounds. The python appeared discomforted but grateful. She has been unable to swallow normally since a tiger bite, sustained before her captivity, became infected.

ROEBLING'S "ALLIGATOR" FOR FLORIDA RESCUES

Shocked by the great Florida hurricane of September 1935, John A. Roebling of New Jersey's bridge-building family told his 28-year-old son, Donald, that some sort of amphibian vehicle might have saved many lives by transporting victims through swamps, over drowned roads, across debris-filled bayous. Donald agreed, went to work, after many expensive months produced the "Alligator," shown in operation on his Florida estate.

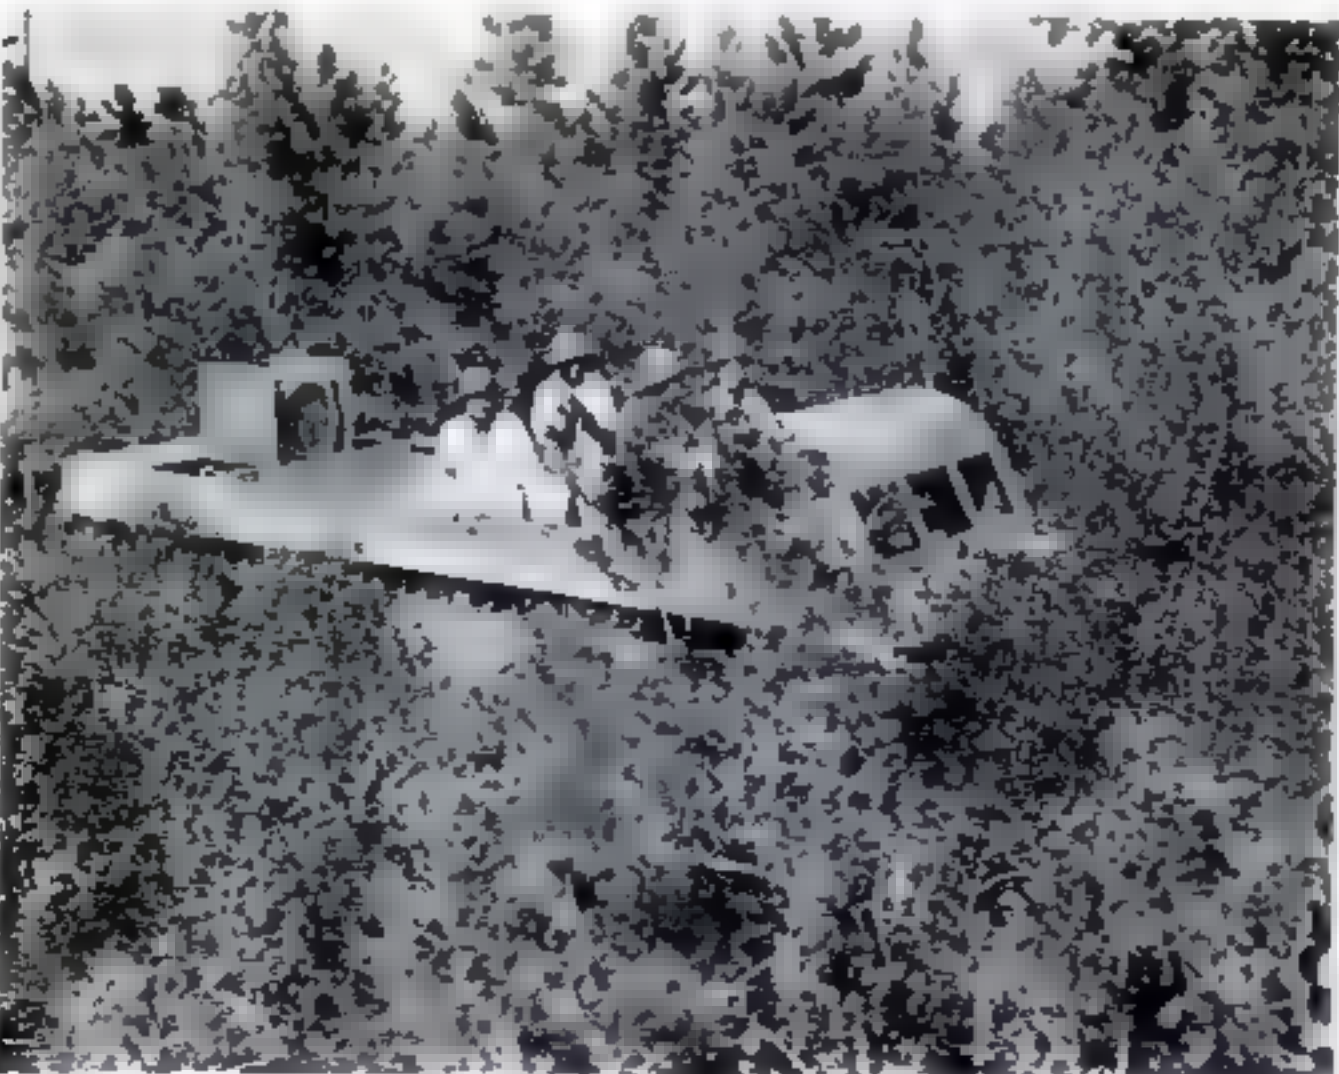

On Roebling estate at Clearwater, Fla., Donald planned, built his amphibian.

The 8,700-lb. Alligator leaves the Roebling's grounds by truck for a trial run. It is built of duralumin, three times as resilient as steel, one-third its weight.

Through a mangrove swamp the Alligator crashes without faltering, grinding whole trees and shrubs to matchwood. Its maximum speed on land is 18 miles an hour.

ON OCTOBER 3rd RADIO'S FOREMOST COMEDIAN WILL SAY "JELL-O AGAIN"

Waiting for "The Bee" in 1909. As first violinist in the Waukegan, Illinois High School Band, Benny learned to play "The Bee" by heart—would play it on the radio now if Music-Master Phil Harris didn't watch him like a hawk!

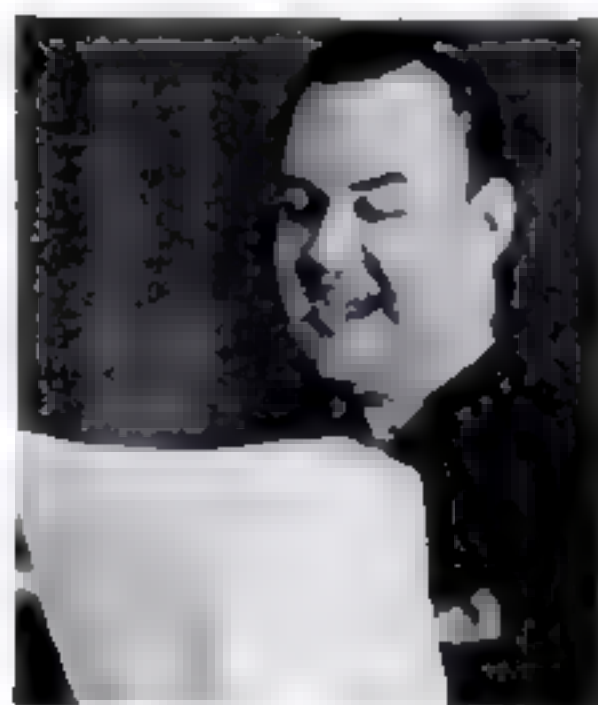

Quiet please, the show is on! 7 P.M., E.S.T.; 6 Central; 5:30 Mountain; 5:30 Pacific. Over N.B.C.'s Red Network.

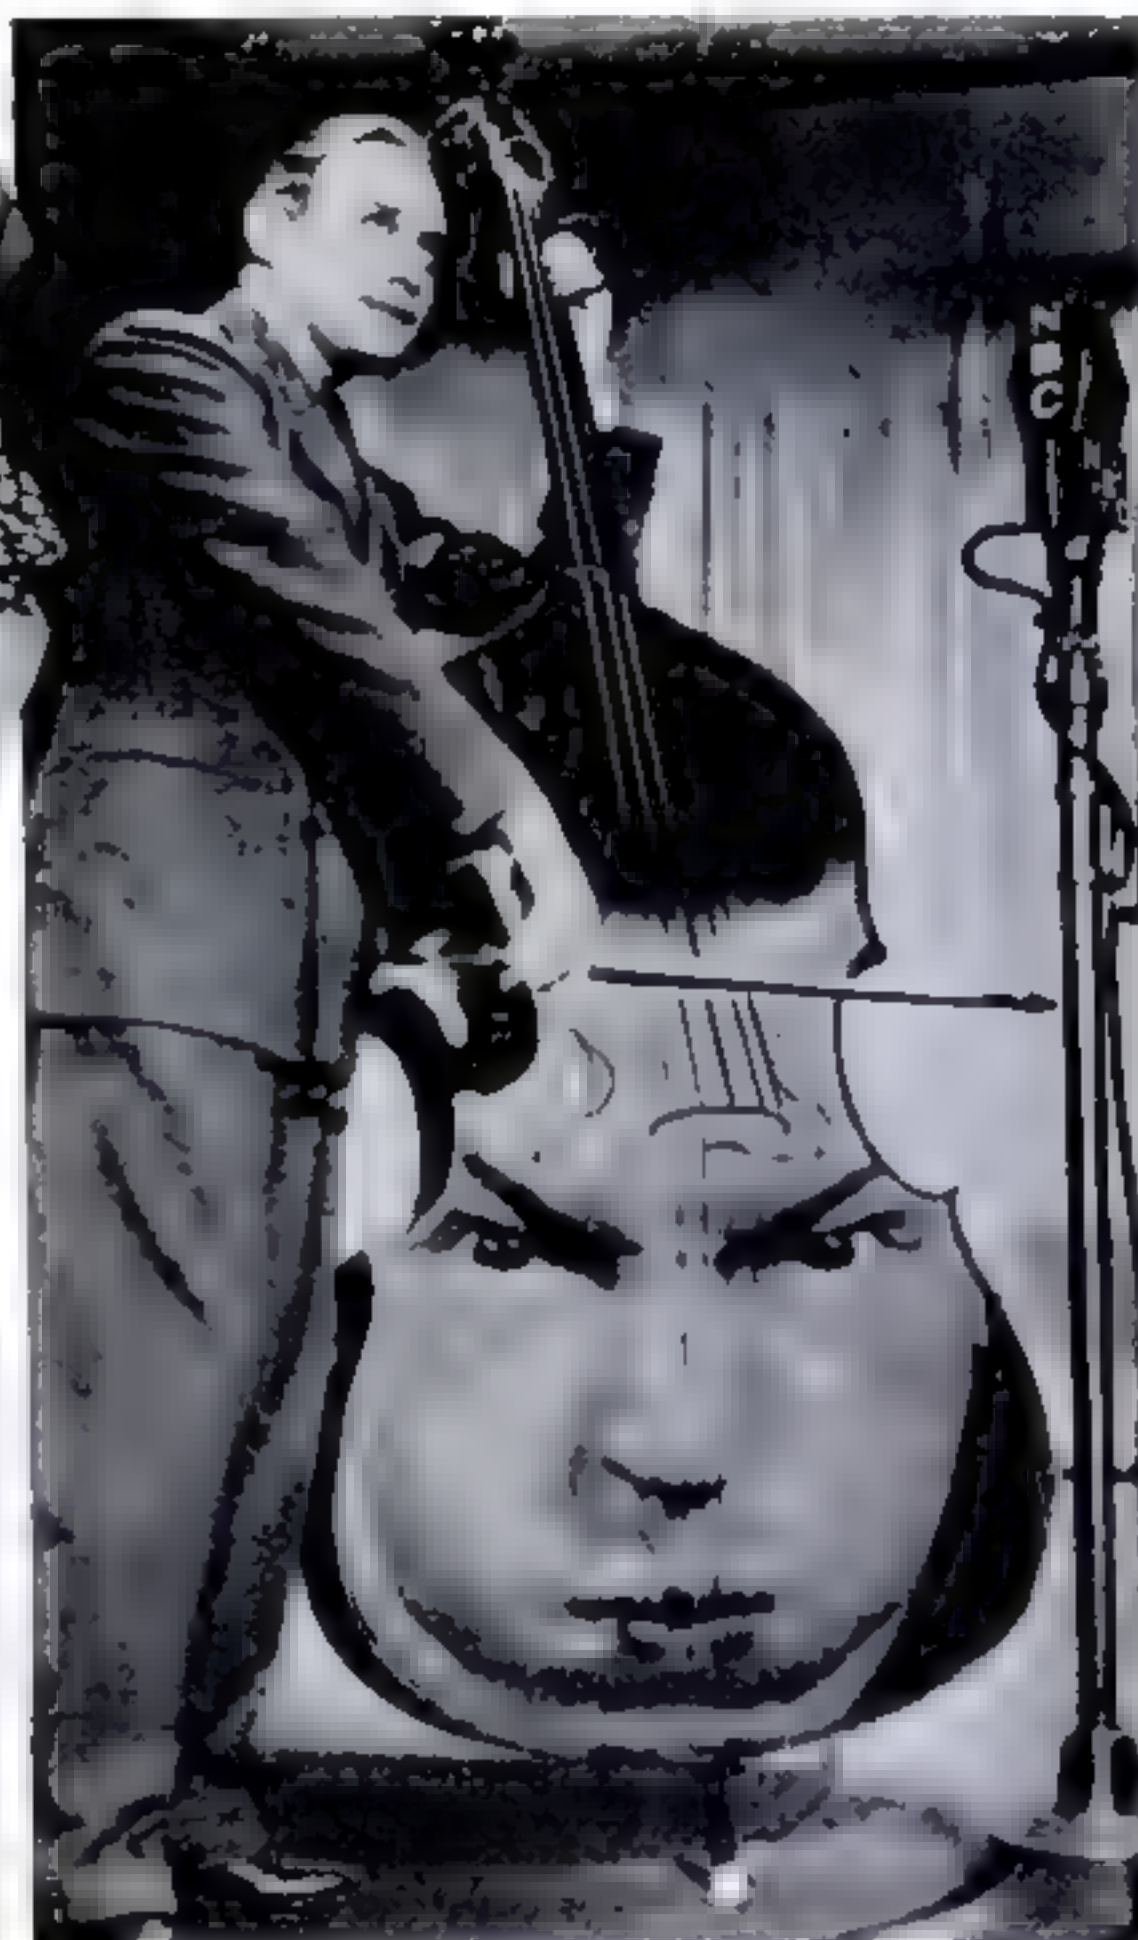

Static at the pool. Jack and scriptwriters concocting non-sense. Seems gags, like vegetation, flourish in a wet spot.

Mary Livingstone, America's favorite poetess, reciting that American quasi-classic, "Labor Day, O Labor Day." Mary's poetry and patter keep people in stitches, from coast to coast.

Extra-rich is the jovial voice of Announcer Don Wilson dwelling on Jell-O's six delicious flavors.

"They laughed when I first stood up to the bull fiddle," says Jack, about to render "The Bee" at long last. But isn't that Fred Allen frowning? Over 33,000,000 people heard Jack and Fred patch up their feud on the radio one evening last March.

Sam Hearn (Schlepperman), beloved dialect comedian, rejoins the show October 3.

Kenry Baker, the timid young tenor, sings lifting love ballads in an inimitable style.

Phil Harris, orchestra leader, plays sweet... plays hot...stooges when not batonning.

PILOTS SHERREN (LEFT) AND HILTON BEFORE RACE

The 27 entrants in Britain's annual King's Cup Race, Sept. 10, were required to make a low turn over Scarborough Castle to be identified. Several were observed to bump in a bad air current over the cliff. Wing Commander E. G. Hilton, an experienced flier of 42 who once raced to Cape Town, made the turn at 120 m.p.h. in a steep bank and then hit an air bump. As the plane went out of control, he was thrown clear (see top) to be picked up dead at the foot of the cliff. His pilotless plane crashed on Castle Hill (right), decapitating Owner Sherren.

THE CAMERA OVERSEAS: THE MEDITERRANEAN "PIRATE" PATROL STARTS FROM A SWISS LAKE

Sudden glory came to the undistinguished Swiss village of Nyon on Lake Geneva when, on Sept. 10, the bigwigs of the League of Nations motored out in a drizzle from Geneva to Nyon's Community Hall. The reasons Nyon was chosen were: 1) it was far enough (15 mi.) from Geneva to make its proceedings distinct from those of the League of Nations, and 2) it was near enough for the various nations' League delegates to double as Nyon Conference delegates. Most of them continued to live in Geneva, drove to Nyon for the sessions. Outside the aura of the League, the nine nations' delegates on Sept. 14 signed an agreement to establish a naval patrol against "pirate" submarines, planes and warships in the Mediterranean. Russia had openly charged that the submarines were Italian. Having indignantly snubbed the Conference, Italy at length opened "diplomatic conversations looking toward participation" in the patrol. But Italy wanted it clearly understood that she was a Class A Mediterranean Power, equally responsible with any other nations for order in the Mediterranean. The "pirate" submarines, meanwhile, had not been heard from for three weeks.

Sheikh Ali Mohammed Ibn Jussuf tried first to negotiate reasonably with Sheikh Ben Achmed for exclusive grazing rights in the oasis.

A German photographer, Werner Zibaso, vanished some time ago into the Sahara Desert west of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. From French Equatorial Africa, north of Lake Chad, Zibaso sent back the pictures on these pages. He was the only white witness of the story they tell: a quarrel between two Arab tribes over oasis rights, a wrestling match between the sheiks and a little battle on the oasis edge. It is a fact that feuds like this are an old story in this area, remotely policed by the French. The country would seem too poor to support life. But the Moslem nomads manage to maintain a few flocks of goats and horses and their wars for oasis rights are a struggle for survival. This year a great drought in the Sahara has sent hordes of starving Berbers pouring into the Mediterranean cities of French Morocco.

THE CAMERA OVERSEAS: 136,000,000 PEOPLE SEE THIS PICTURE OF SHANGHAI'S SOUTH STATION

After 16 Japanese bombing planes had flown home, Aug. 28, H. S. ("Newsreel") Wong, famous Hearst cameraman, was first to reach the dreadful scene at the Shanghai South Station. He got this picture-of-the-week—a Chinese baby amid the wreckage. A print of it was sent through International News Service to all Hearst newspapers, totaling 25,000,000 readers, and to 35 non Hearst papers totaling 1,750,000. It went in a mat reproduction to 800 other papers in the U. S., totaling 4,000,000. To foreign newspapers International distributed the same picture, adding another estimated 25,000,000 readers.

In the "News of the Day" newsreel, the sequence containing the baby was seen by some 25,000,000 movie-goers. Movietone News bought it, showed it to another 25,000,000. Together both newsreels are showing it to another 50,000,000 movie-goers abroad. This Chinese baby's potential audience: 136,000,000.

On Sept. 21 the U. S., Britain and France protested to Japan against the bombing of civilian populations in China. Occasion for this was the bombing of Nanking, China's capital, where the foreign embassies are. But civilian centres had been bombed in China before that—as in Tientsin, July 29 (right). A purely military (i.e., legitimate) bombing was the bombing of Tsangchow (bottom left) and shellfire leveled part of Peiping (right centre).

But Nantao, home of the Chinese baby (below and on opposite page), is a purely civilian centre, the teeming native quarter in Shanghai south of the French Concession. Some Chinese troops had marched through it, in circling the International Settlement from the southern to the northern lines around Shanghai, because there was no other way to go. The Japanese had announced that they might soon give warning of a bombing attack on civilian Nantao. Without warning, at noon Aug. 28, two Japanese bombing squadrons of eight planes each droned over Nantao and leisurely bombed the daylight out of it. At South Station, hundreds of poor Chinese, largely women and children, were waiting for an overdue train for Hangchow to the south. Some 200 were killed, including 15 babies. Foreign correspondents reported the planes seemed to have missed South Station but these pictures of the holocaust contradict them.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN NAP IN TIENTSIN BETWEEN BOMBINGS BY JAPANESE

The same Chinese baby as shown on opposite page in Shanghai's South Station wreckage was taken in charge by a Chinese Boy Scout and given first aid on the station platform.

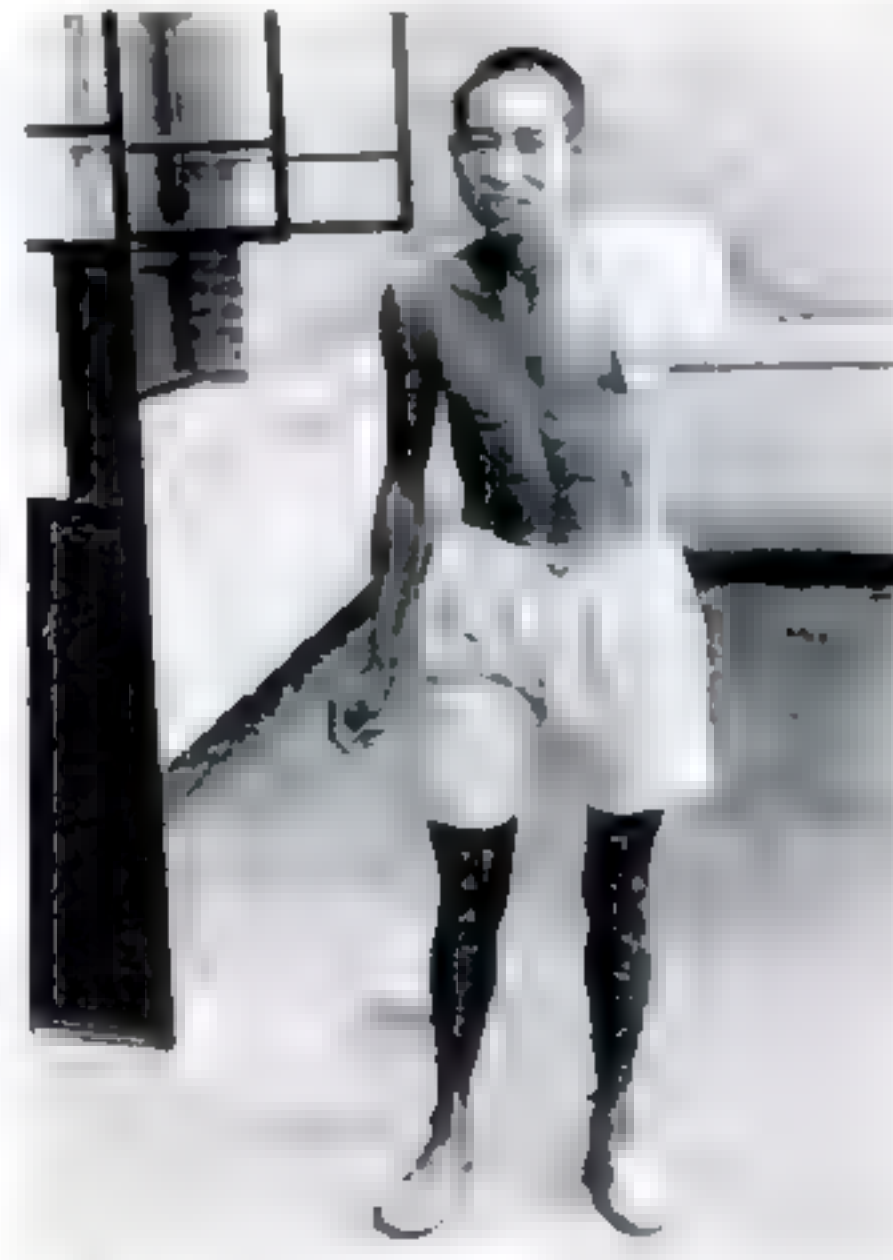

At Peiping, Aug. 1, survivors wander amid shelled ruins. These Chinese and those at Tientsin were penalized for guerrilla sniping by their countrymen against the Japanese invaders.

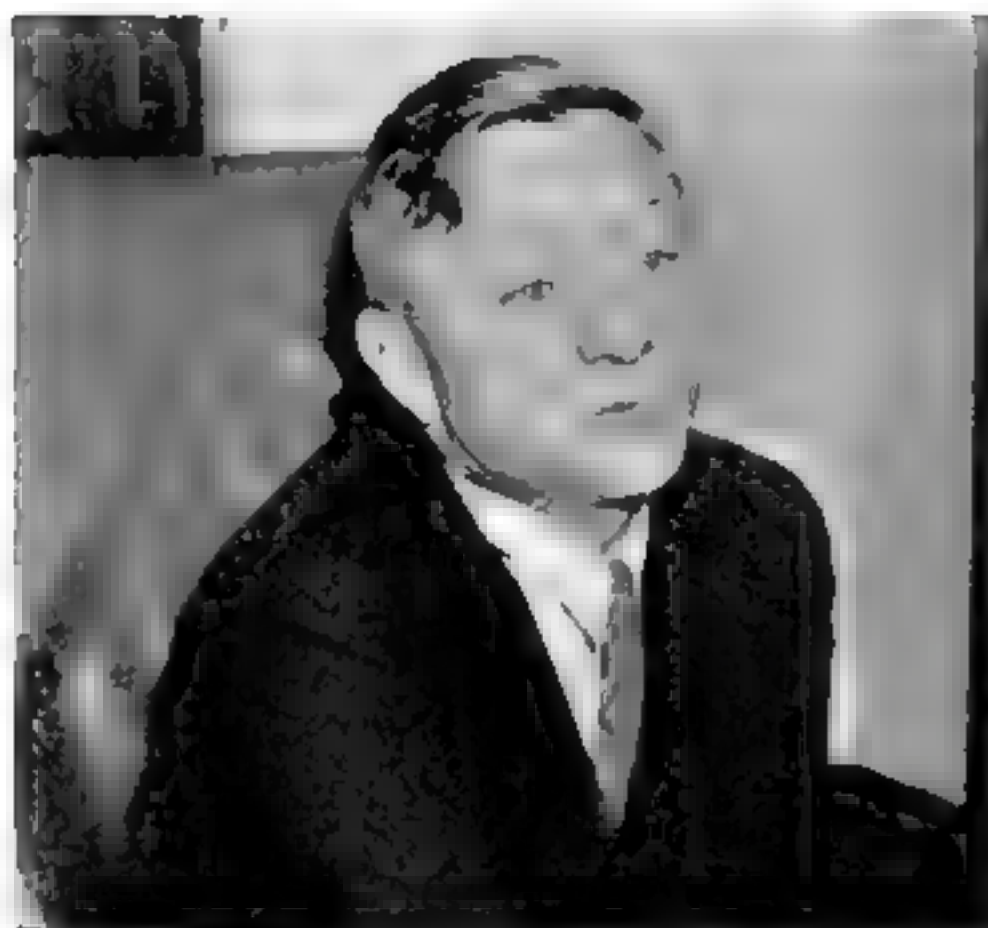

Tsangchow was naturally bombed, Sept. 10, because it was a link in China's heavy fortifications across Hopeh Province in northern China. This picture was taken by a Japanese pilot. On Sept. 24, Japanese invaders captured Tsangchow.

LIFE ON THE AMERICAN NEWSFRONT: WALL STREET GETS A NEW GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

The face of William O. Douglas (above) will be studied from all angles by anxious businessmen because on Sept. 21 he was made chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission.

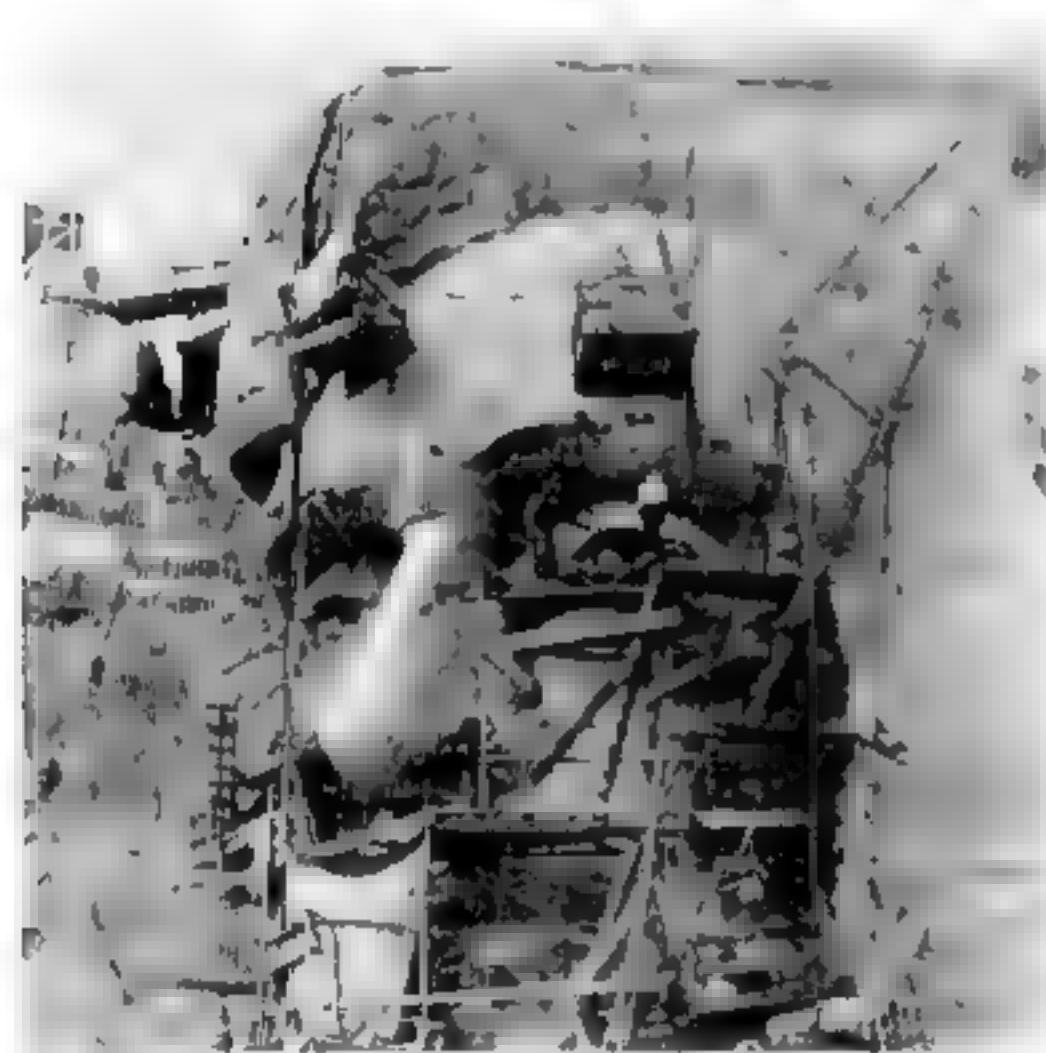

In his first day as the Government's watchdog over Wall Street, he exhibited the same flair for publicity as his two brilliant predecessors, Joseph P. Kennedy and James M.

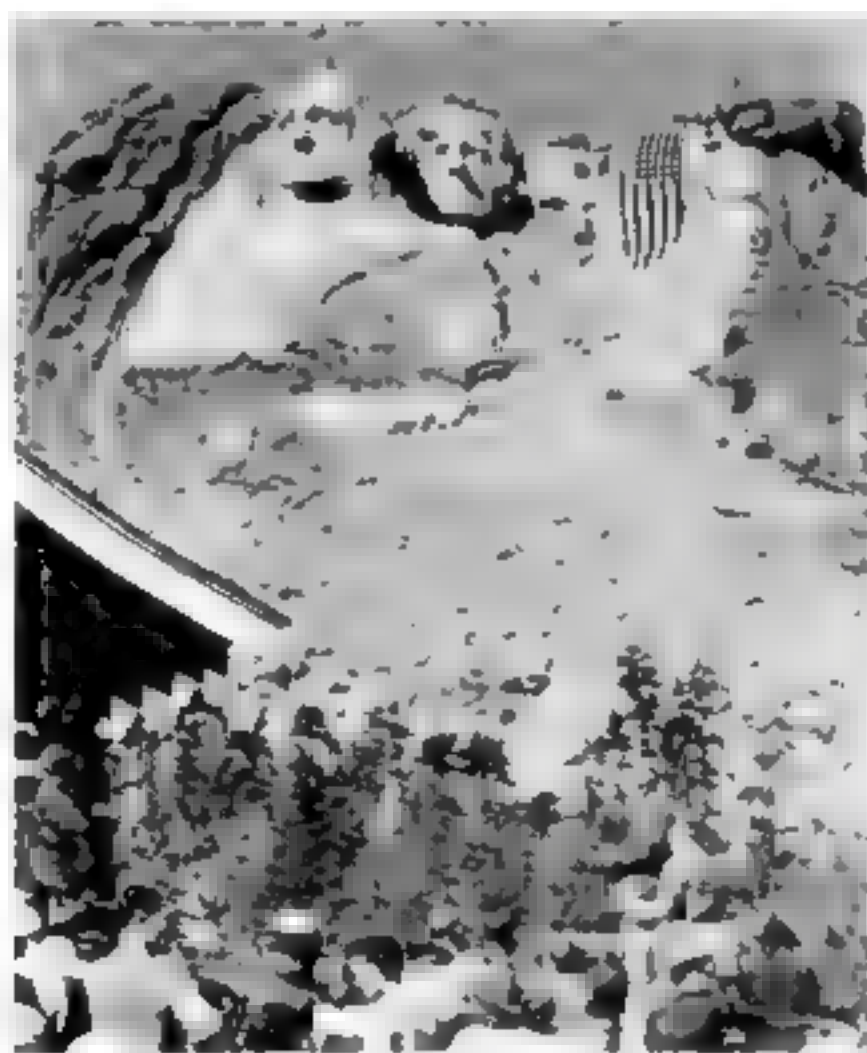

Landis. Calling in reporters, he began: "What kind of a bird am I? Well, to tell the truth, I am a pretty conservative fellow." His platform for Wall Street: "No monkey business."

LINCOLN JOINS WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON IN THE BLACK HILLS

On Mt. Rushmore, in South Dakota's Black Hills, a 60-foot head of Abraham Lincoln is being carved from the granite by famed Sculptor Gutzon Borglum and assistants (on scaffolds above).

At the dedication, Sept. 17, 3,000 people saw an American flag drop, revealing Lincoln beside Washington and Jefferson. Borglum stands below (right).

Lincoln's face is third to appear in this "Shrine of Democracy," paid for by Federal, State and private funds. Theodore Roosevelt will be next, between Lincoln and Jefferson.

FOLSOM PRISON CONVICTS KILL WARDEN IN SAVAGE FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Warden Clarence Larkin was knifed twelve times when seven convicts tried to flee the State penitentiary, Folsom, Calif., on Sept. 19. Infection proved fatal five days later.

The warden's hat, slashed, bloodstained, is retrieved after the battle by a guard. During the fighting in the prison yard a guard and two convicts also were slain.

Weapons used by the convicts were nine knives, a dummy pistol, a steel bludgeon, all secretly made in the prison. Here they are being inspected by District Attorney Babcock (left).

LIFE ON THE AMERICAN NEWSFRONT: THE STRANGE CASE OF THE KENTUCKY GENERAL

Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt was a burly soldier who fought in two wars, served as Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, was divorced by his wife and settled down in 1936 on a farm in Oldham County. There he took up with Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, a widow renowned as "the most beautiful woman in two counties" (Oldham and Henry). They became engaged but did not marry. Late one evening almost a year ago, Mrs. Taylor was found by a lonely roadside, shot to death, and a few hundred feet away was the General, stamping around in the road. General Denhardt said it was suicide; Mrs. Taylor's family said it was murder. At the trial her three brothers sat grim-faced in the front row, never took their eyes off Denhardt. When the jury disagreed, it was whispered all over the two counties that "the Garr boys" were out to "get" the General. Get him they did, in front of a Shelbyville hotel, on Sept. 20. He died on the steps, in a burst of pistol fire.

Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt served in the Spanish-American and World Wars. In later years his only active service was leading the National Guard in putting down Kentucky strikes.

The General's fiancée, beautiful Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, was believed to have aroused his jealousy by encouraging the attentions of a younger rival.

On a country roadside near LaGrange, Ky., on Nov. 6, 1936, Mrs. Taylor was found shot to death. She and the General had been sitting in their stalled car in the driveway of the distant farmhouse.

The General was arraigned in November as he sat toying with his glasses (centre) in the courthouse at New Castle. His trial in April was Kentucky's most sensational in a generation.

Mrs. Taylor's daughters attended with their uncle, E. S. Garr. The jury disagreed. Denhardt was freed on bail, pending a new trial.

General Denhardt was shot down in front of the Armstrong Hotel on Sept. 20. Mrs. Taylor's brothers stepped out of the shadows, fired seven bullets.

"The Garr Boys" (left to right: Jack, Dr. E. S. and Roy) surrendered to police. Claiming Denhardt reached for his hip before they fired, they plead self-defense, were released on bail.

The General's funeral was held with full honors in the Denhardt Armory, which is named for him. A handful of political bigwigs attended the burial at Bowling Green.

LIFE ON THE AMERICAN NEWSFRONT: WOMEN OF K. K. K. MEET IN WASHINGTON CHURCH

While the Ku Klux Klan was casting its shadow on the Supreme Court, the Court itself was a most interesting shadow on the Ku Klux Klan. Only two blocks away from the marble palace where the Court sits, stands the First Methodist Protestant Church of Washington. There on Sept. 11, sat a group of women in the white robes and pointed hoods of the Klan. In front of the pulpit burned the Klan's holy cross. Purpose of this special meeting of the Women's Department of the Church was to present the pastor to Rev. A. E. T. Ramm, a white Christian, the white sisterhood of the Klan. While the regular church organist played away, the pulpit the Klanswoman sang, "The Cross of the Lord." The Rev. Mr. Ramm preached on "The Cross of the Lord."

EIGHT JUSTICES OF SUPREME COURT RETURN FROM VACATION TO RECEIVE NEW COLLEAGUE

The unhappy Mr. Justice Black furtively boarded the dinky transatlantic liner City of Norfolk at Southampton on Sept. 21 and sailed for home without having affirmed or denied that he was or is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He was to land at Norfolk, Baltimore or what Columnist Arthur Hock of the New York Times called a "Klandestination" on the Virginia coast.

Meanwhile, in the U. S. the Klan was basking in its brightest publicity since 1928. The week was marked by sound-offs from an assortment of Kleagles, Klepers, Klaliffs, Grand Dragons, Exalted Cyclops, Kladds, Kludds and the two living Imperial Wizards. Ex-Wizard William J. Simmons, who revived the Klan in 1915 but lost control in 1923, accused his successors of "betraying" it. "The organization now," said he, "is unworthy of any man." The present Imperial Wizard, Dr. Hiram W. Evans, a wealthy Atlanta dentist, was reached on the telephone by the London Daily Express, which quoted him as follows: "No, ma'm, Mister Black don' belong. He ain't no Klansman. Why, he don' even sympathize, as far as I know. And that is what I have told the Presiden'." Irked, either by the sense or by the spelling, Wizard Evans later denied he had said anything about talking to the President.

As Justice Black's ship steamed toward the Atlantic coast, President Roosevelt was streaking for the Pacific Coast, and their meeting was postponed. In Washington, however, another momentous reception awaits Mr. Black on Oct. 4 when he comes face to face, in the Supreme Court robing room, with eight stern and dignified gentlemen who are now his colleagues. From eight separate points the eight Justices were already trekking toward Washington for a new term. All but Justices Brandeis and Cardozo had spent active summers (see below). All kept their silence about their new colleague.

CHIEF JUSTICE & MRS. HUGHES ARRIVE AT THEIR WASHINGTON HOME

Justice Harlan F. Stone spent his summer in isolation at Isle au Haut, Maine, fishing and rowing. Once when his resignation was rumored, he sent a boatman ashore with a denial.

Justice Owen J. Roberts managed his 700-acre farm, called "Brynmored," near Philadelphia. No mere hobbyist, he produces chickens, alfalfa and milk for sale in the local market.

Justice Pierce Butler played with his dog "Boo-Boo" at Blue Ridge Summit, his home in Franklin County, Pa.

Justice James C. McReynolds went to England, seemed delighted that he "got as much attention as a matinee idol."

Justice George Sutherland took his wife on a summer-long tour of Europe, visiting England, Scotland and France.

LIFE ON THE AMERICAN NEWSFRONT: THE BLOAT DOWNS A PRIZEWINNER

The 77th Minnesota State Fair was the biggest in its history. Between Sept. 4 and 11, some 700,000 farmers and cityfolk cocked critical eyes at livestock and farm machinery, stared credulously at freaks and Otomi Indian acrobats, spent over $1,000,000. Among contestants there was no group more enthusiastic than the 3,000 boys and girls of the 4-H (Head, Hands, Heart, Health) Clubs, each a winner in his own county fair, each now seeking a State prize for pies, pigs, preserves, poultry.

Of them none was more eager than 16-year-old Virginia Nelson, whose fine Jersey calf had been judged best in the Kanabec County Fair. When the State Fair opened between Minneapolis and St. Paul, Virginia brought her calf to the grounds, placed it in the cattlehouse to await the judging three days later. Each morning she called to see that it received proper care and rations. Arriving on judging day, she found to her horror that her calf had "the bloat," possibly from green alfalfa. Panicky, she led it outside, walked it up and down to relieve its distress. But after an hour the calf, still bloated, sank painfully to the ground (below) while Virginia Nelson, brokenhearted (right), wiped away her tears.

PAUL DRAPER DANCES IN MANHATTAN

Paul Draper came back to Manhattan on Sept. 24 to open again at the fashionable Plaza Hotel. There, for most of fall and winter, he will go through the imaginative routine of his dancing at a salary of $2,250 a week. He is worth this because tap-dance enthusiasts rank him only a little below Fred Astaire. Astaire is unmatched in mechanical ability. Draper has more creative intelligence. He combines tap with classical ballet dancing. Leaps, twirls, arm movements are more important to him than clicking feet. His popular numbers are danced not only to jazz but to The Blue Danube and to a 200-year-old Handel Minuet and Tambourino. (Below, he rehearses Tambourino.)

Draper is 27, red-haired, the son of Muriel Draper, noted Manhattan literary figure. His aunt is Ruth Draper, the monologist. A serious student of ballet, he trains with the American Ballet, has performed with the Boston Symphony. If he didn't stutter, he would probably be kept busy in the movies.

Private Lives

Francis Warren Pershing, only surviving child of General Pershing whose wife and three daughters were burned to death in 1915, will marry Muriel Richards (right). A partner in the brokerage house of Weicker & Co. founded by his Yale roommate Frederick Weicker, young Pershing plays a modest game of squash at Manhattan's University Club.

Muriel Richards, who will become General Pershing's daughter-in-law, is the eldest of three attractive granddaughters of Jules Bache, banker and art patron. A frequent visitor at the luxurious Bache camp in the Adirondacks, she plays excellent tennis. An amateur fashion model, her measurements are 5 ft. 6 in., 120 lb., size 6 glove, size 5 shoe.

Sylvia Gould, daughter of the Kingdon Goulds and great-granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, may desert Manhattan for Cincinnati when she marries Charles Dabney Thomson of that city. Daughter of a onetime Italian governess in the Gould family whom her grandmother tried to discourage from marrying Kingdon, she is an accomplished harpist.

Madeline La Ferriere, whose private life as Mussolini's mistress made front-page news last March when she shot and wounded the Count de Chambrun whom she suspected of warning Il Duce against her, was recently turned back from Spain near the frontier. A journalist who charmed Mussolini at an interview, she hoped to interview General Franco.

Norman Smith, C.I.O. organizer who was trying to unionize a Ford plant at Memphis, looked like this after unidentified men clubbed him with pop bottles. Local police, whose Commissioner several days before had said, "We know Norman Smith and will take care of that situation," took him to a hospital, then to jail where he was held without charge.

William Munsaker Brill, wealthy 25-year-old Californian who last March married Mrs. Nan Pierson Brooks Macy, won an annulment when a California judge decided Mrs. Brill's 1934 Reno divorce from George Macy was invalid because her residence was "purely simulated" since she went there solely for a divorce. Nan blamed Brill's mother for her troubles.

Lady Cynthia Asquith, beautiful daughter-in-law of Margot Asquith and secretary to the late Sir James Barrie, was recently bequeathed £30,000 and half the residue of a £167,000 estate by her former employer's will. Daughter of the 11th Earl of Weymouth and the mother of three children, her books about children originally attracted Barrie's attention.

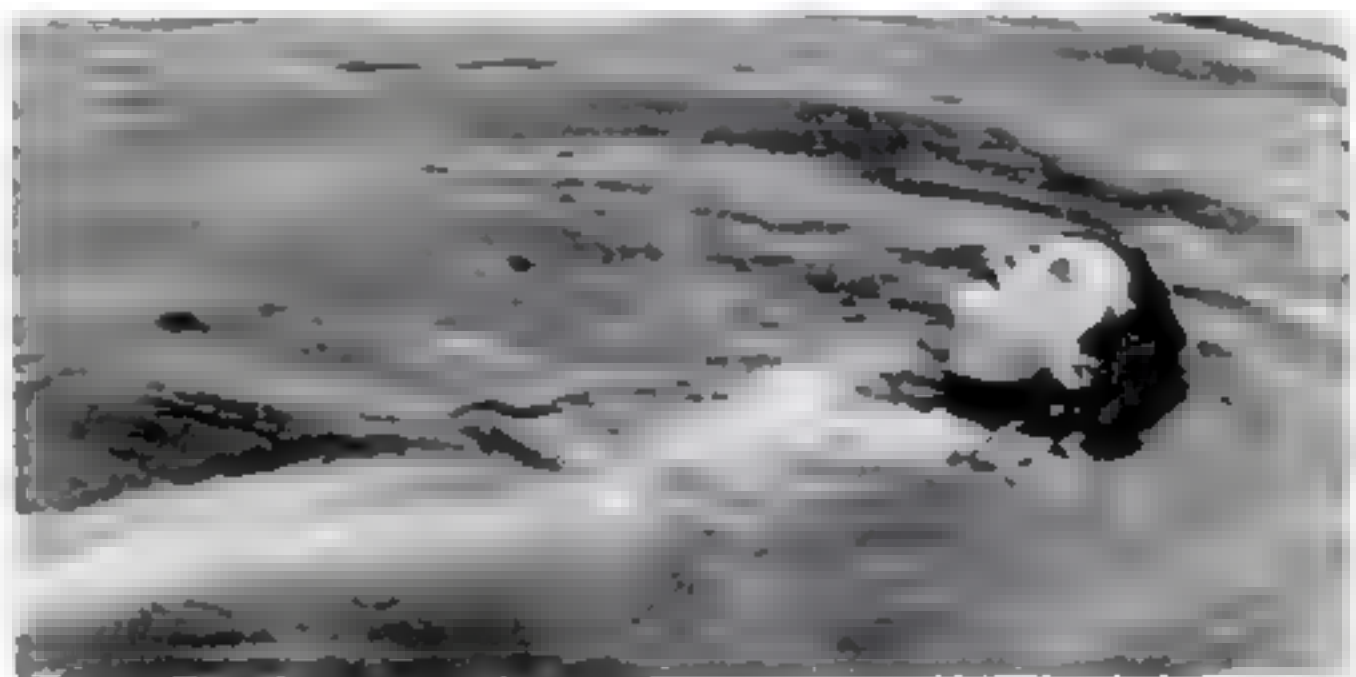

Mrs. Dolphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde announced her engagement to pugilist Jack Doyle, Sept. 8. In Reno to divorce Mr. Godde, she was whisked to Europe, decreeless, by her mother, Mrs. Hugh Dillman. Contradicting her attorney who said wedding was off, she snapped "Rumors about our romance breaking up make me darned mad."

Nicholas Collins who killed his Mayaville, N. C. neighbor Abe Collins (no kin) Oct. 17, 1910 promptly fled, remained at large for 21 years. Lately his private life was rudely interrupted when he was arrested at Dendron, Va., where for 15 years he did odd jobs on farms. Now Collins, who says he is 80 years old, has been sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Philip H. Philbin Jr., who was arrested January 1934 for an alleged $1,000,000 mail fraud involving stock of Atlas Tack Corp., got out on bail and skipped abroad for two years. Lately Department of Justice agents nabbed him in Manhattan in the car of his swank friend, Mrs. Marie Barrows Porter "I'm not a bad fellow," said debonair Mr. Philbin.

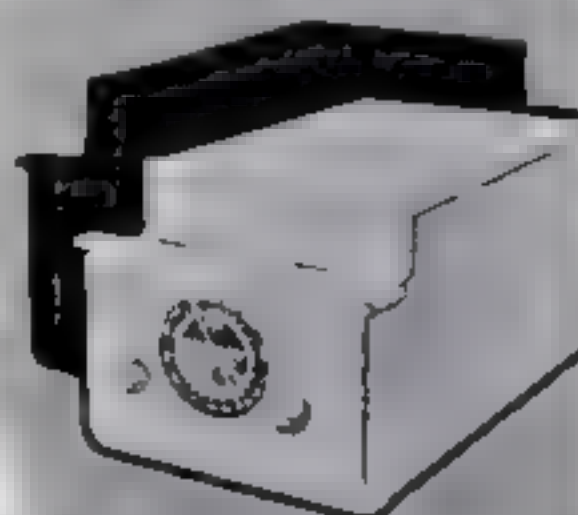

Hedy Kiesler is getting a divorce from Austrian Munitions Tycoon Fritz Mandel who has spent close to $300,000 trying to suppress the movie Ecstasy in which his wife appeared nude (above) and committed adultery. Ecstasy was filmed in 1933, the year before Mrs. Mandel married and quit acting. The latter's recent plans to turn actress again brought to a head a rift which has had smart Vienna buzzing for weeks. When Mrs. Mandel told her taciturn husband that she had been asked to act in the American play The Women which will be put on in German at Vienna's Josefstadt Theatre, he forbade her to visit the theatre or to leave the house. Now Hedy, whom Max Reinhardt called "the loveliest girl in Europe," can do both.

WYOMING'S GOVERNOR FINDS $1000 SPORT KIT IN HIS SHOES

Feet with renewed youthful vigor bring success to many other contest entrants

"Win a $1000 Free Sport Kit," we said, "with a 25-word statement explaining which you prefer in Wright Arch Preserver Shoes for Men—their vigorous smartness or their comfort-plus."

Because thousands—including the Governor of Wyoming—sent in their votes, it took an out-of-the-ordinary statement to win. But Governor Miller had a head start in writing what proved to be the winning statement—for he had worn Wright Arch Preserver Shoes for ten years.

1 "For years," said Governor Miller, in a letter sent in with his vote, "I suffered from trouble with my metatarsal arch, and sought foot comfort without success. Standing was agony; walking, torture. And, much as I hated to give up those friendly foursomes, golf or any other exercise became virtually out of the question."

3 "Fortunately, in these unusual shoes I found welcome relief before being honored with the Governorship. . . . For now receptions, speeches, and all manner of State occasions force me to be on my feet for long hours at a time. Yet with all this round of activity—in Wright Arch Preservers mine again are the feet of youth."

2 "Then, one day, I heard about Wright Arch Preserver Shoes for Men, so I decided to find out what these shoes could do for me. I learned about the four patented features (all cleverly concealed)—and saw that Wright Arch Preservers had smart styling to boot. I bought a pair then and there—a smart move."

AS WRIGHT ARCH PRESERVER SHOES SPELLED FOOT HEALTH FOR OTHER CONTEST WINNERS

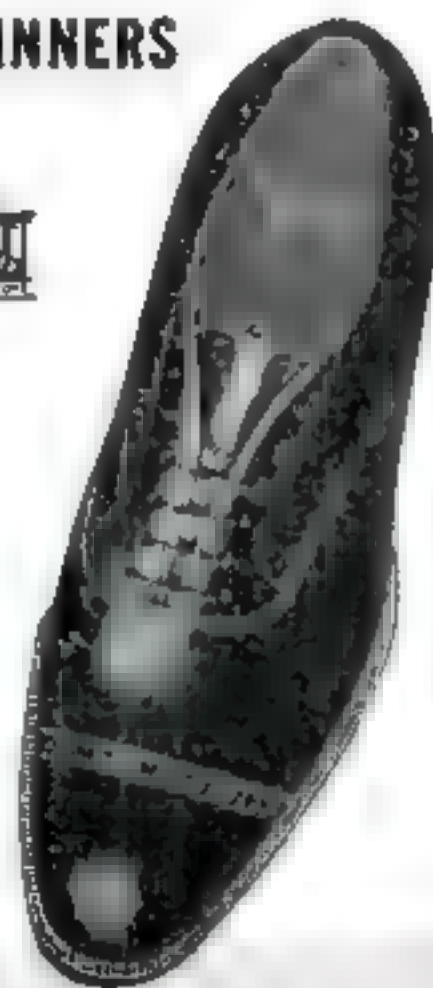

● The Grand Canyon in grand comfort—That's what Wright Arch Preserver Shoes meant to Roy C. Lyle of Seattle, Washington. He walked top to bottom—a trip of trips—in new Wright Arch Preservers—a test of tests! No wonder he votes for their comfort.

● Salesman needs easy-street comfort—Pounding the pavements is no cinch. And tired feet mean a tired body, tired nerves. So the springy ease of Wright Arch Preservers means plenty to Leonard K. Black of New York City—helps him keep his pep and his good disposition, gives him real foot freedom even at five o'clock.

● Mr. C. W. Merritt sums up—In choosing the buoyant comfort of Wright Arch Preservers . . . Charles W. Merritt of Atlanta says, "Gentlemen the world over know that the most comfortable shoe will always be the smartest."

WHEREVER you go, whatever you do—it's smart to have real foot comfort. To normal feet, Wright Arch Preservers give plus-protection; to ailing feet, glorious relief. For these grand feeling and smart looking shoes have four patented features: protective doubly-anchored arch bridge—absolutely flat forepart—scientific metatarsal support—superb heel-to-ball fitting. These exclusive details, all carefully concealed in the trim lines, will keep you out of the foot-ills group. So mail the coupon today for free booklet, "New March-of-Style Models."

Life Goes to a Party

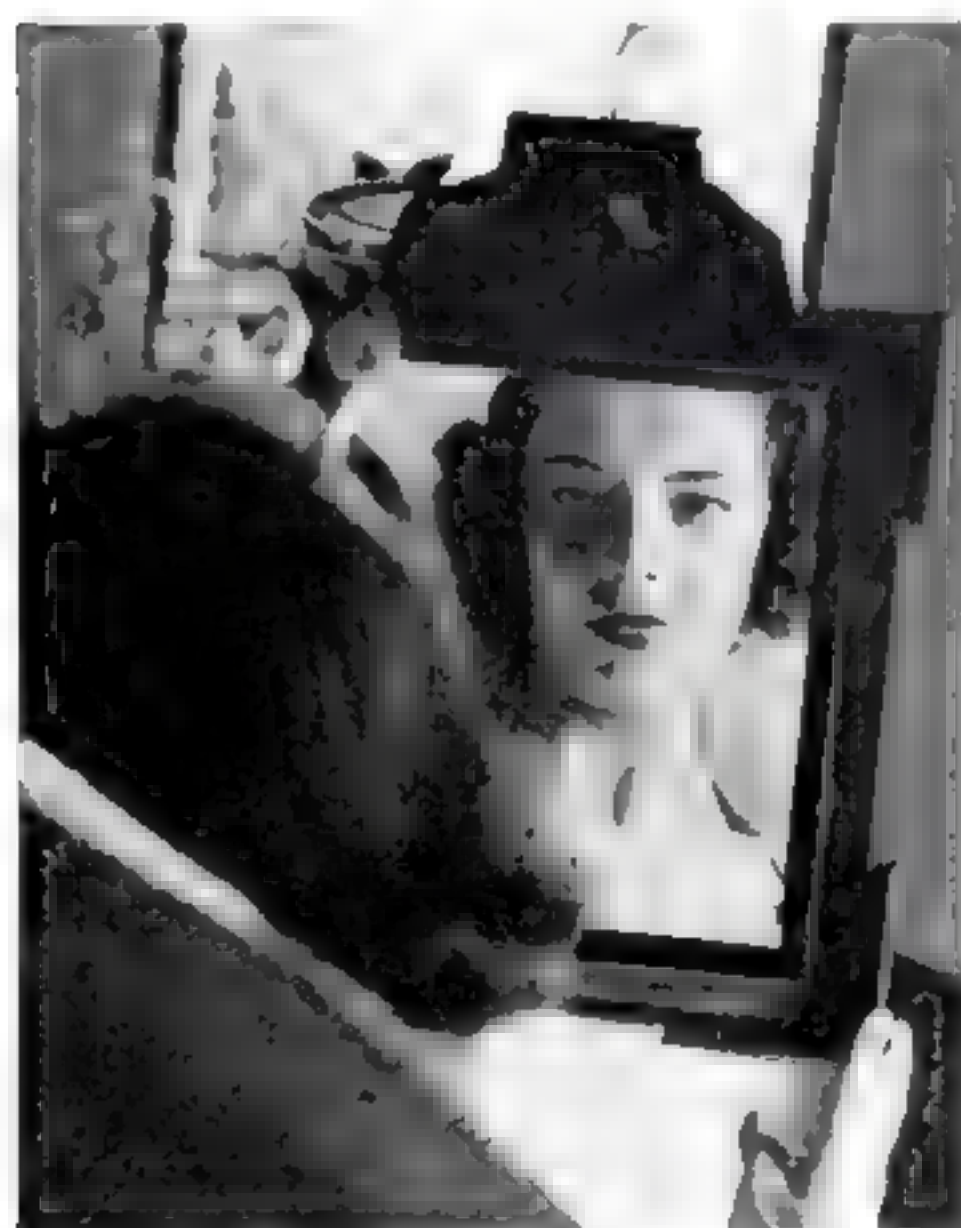

With Cotton King Clayton whose daughter is a Queen

Best view of Chattanooga is from the top of Lookout Mountain where you see the city across the Tennessee River. At left, a tablet commemorating the Civil War battle there.

On Mr. Clayton's terrace the afternoon before the party: Mr. and Mrs. Clayton (at rear); Daughter Julia (in shorts); Cousins Susan Vaughan and Dorothy Wilson (hatless).

Cotton Queen Julia Clayton prepares for the Ball in the modest 8-room Clayton summer home. A graduate of the Spence School in New York, she is now a Vassar Senior.

Cotton King Will Clayton in his Chattanooga home helps his daughter Julia with her crown (right) while a colored maid adjusts the long train of her white and silver dress.

The cotton season is in full swing in the South. Preceded by the Cotton Carnival in Memphis last May (LIFE, May 31), its progress was celebrated on Sept. 10 in Chattanooga by the fifth annual Cotton Ball which took place in Memorial Auditorium. Chattanooga's leading summer resident is a Texan named William Lockhart Clayton who is far and away the greatest cotton merchant in the world. From his Houston headquarters this topflight tycoon of the South dominates the industry, and his name is mentioned with awe on the world's cotton exchanges. Though his critics call him a speculator, three Federal cotton investigations have failed to pin anything on Mr. Clayton. In 1928, en route to Virginia, he passed through Chattanooga, liked it so well he built a modest summer home there. This Cotton King's attractive 20-year-old daughter Julia, a cotton princess in her own right, was chosen Queen at this year's Cotton Ball where Coca-Cola was the sportiest drink served and the last guest left at 1 a.m.

Cotton Belles were presented to Cotton King and Queen, helped lead the grand march while the local orchestra played. The group also included Miss Frances Little of Chattanooga. Sitting at far right is Miss Rose Hyde of Washington. Belles wore white organza gowns, carried white hats fitted with clusters of cotton bolls.

A final puff and a sip of Coca-Cola's enjoyed by Queen Julia before the Big Apple was her King. Also here is Montague Jr., only one of the party's sports who the

The Big Apple was a feature of the party held night before the Cotton Ball at Look-out Mountain Hotel. The man in white trousers is giving signals for the various steps.

Dancers raise hands and close in during the Big Apple. This pre-Ball party was given for out-of-town guests who came to Chattanooga's Cotton Ball from as far away as Schenectady, N. Y.

HEALTH WANTED

A message to men and women who want to regain intestinal health...and youthful regularity

"PEOPLE who really feel healthy rarely think about health." Sufferers from habitual constipation do not often enjoy that kind of care-free well-being. They fall into the habit of thinking about themselves. They worry.

Does that describe your own state of mind? Then consult your doctor about trying Saraka.* This is a new-type laxative which has been signally successful with cases of constipation. Many users recall their healthy youth when constipation was a thing never thought of.

LAZY MUSCLES

Sufferers from constipation usually have intestinal muscles that have "gone soft". In civilized life, we get too little exercise—eat rich, over-refined food. Result—our intestinal muscles generally become weak and flabby. Saraka helps correct that condition. Saraka gives intestinal muscles the exercise they need—internal exercise.

The principal ingredient in Saraka is bassorin (sap of a tree found in India) in the form of tiny granules. After passing into the intestines, these granules absorb water. Gradually they ex-p-a-n-d. They turn into soft, smooth BULK.

This extra bulk is the secret of Saraka's "exercising action". It encourages the lazy intestinal muscles to get busy. It gives them something to exercise on—encourages them to do their duty. The results are not violent or purgative. There is no embarrassing urgency. That is why so many users say "Saraka isn't always reminding me that I have taken a laxative."

In addition to its bulk-producing bassorin, Saraka also contains a specially-prepared cortex frangula (bark of a European shrub) which mildly stimulates the intestines to keep waste products in motion. So you have Bulk Plus Motility.*

HOW TO USE SARAKA

You will find this laxative very pleasant to take. The tiny granules are easily swallowed with water. Usually it is not necessary to increase the dose. In fact, since Saraka tends to strengthen intestinal muscles, many users find that the quantity can be gradually cut down.

The coupon below will bring you a free trial-size tin of Saraka. While you are waiting for it to arrive, we suggest that you ask your family physician for his opinion of this laxative—and be guided by his advice. Mail coupon today.

William Lockhart Clayton, shown with his wife in their Chattanooga summer home, is something more than a proud father whose daughter (below) has just been crowned Queen of a Cotton Ball. No. 1 cotton merchant of the world, he heads the great Houston firm of Anderson, Clayton & Co. which annually handles some 2,000,000 bales of U. S. cotton, has $40,000,000 capital, credit good for four times that sum. Astute, widely-traveled, as modest and good-humored as he is rich and powerful, "Cotton King" Clayton was spending his vacation at Chattanooga when his daughter's charm won her the social title analogous to his in the world of affairs.

FIRST MODERN AMERICAN CANVAS STARTS FIGHT IN AUSTRALIA'S NATIONAL GALLERY

A painting by Philip Evergood (above), a modern American artist, inspires some to applause, others to fury. Such opposing factions, 20,000 strong, jammed the recent Evergood exhibition at Australia's National Gallery in Melbourne. Bitter arguments between the academicians and modernists led to blows and extra guards were required to end the fighting. Sir John Longstaff (left) eminent Australian artist, not only took up the cudgels for Evergood, but helped to raise a fund with which the American's Art on the Beach (below) was purchased and presented to Australia's No. 1 gallery for its permanent collection.

Barber Finds Old Book in Trunk Sells It for $4000

A small town barber discovered an old copy of "Pilgrims Progress" in a trunk that had been unopened for years. He hoped to sell it for a few dollars. Imagine his joy when he was offered more than $4,000.00 for that one book. This is cited from rare book annals, as one of the many such cases. The American Book Mart, Nationally known buyers of old books, will pay $4,000.00 for each copy of the same edition. They buy thousands of dollars worth of books annually — they want certain old school books, Bibles, story books, poetry, histories, travel, almanacs, letters, newspapers, magazines, etc. Many books, even as recent as 1931, wanted. A single book hidden in your old trunks, attic or basement, may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 each for certain books. Better investigate now! Send 10c today to American Book Mart, 140 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 297 Chicago, Ill., and they will send you latest list of old books they want to buy and cash prices they will pay!

WHO NEVER SEE A PRAIRIE

OUT on the winding open road and in the thick of city traffic you have undoubtedly noticed that some motorists squint through their car windows, while others sit back calmly and gaze serenely on the passing parade. Personal characteristics, habit and other factors may be responsible for this difference, but often it is due simply to the fact that ordinary wavy window glass is used in the Safety Glass in some cars, while in others the Safety Glass is made entirely of the finest polished PLATE Glass. ¶ All window glass, regardless of the scrupulous care with which it is manufactured, has an unavoidable wave; and when sheets are laminated, as in Safety Glass, the vision is distorted and eyestrain, fatigue and unbecoming squint frequently result. ¶ On the other hand Safety PLATE Glass is first carefully ground to eliminate waves, and is then painstakingly polished to a mirror-like brilliance. Its greater clarity and freedom from waviness minimize eyestrain and fatigue; and its sparkling beauty lends distinction to your car—adds immeasurably to your pride of ownership. ¶ Before you buy a new car make sure that it has Safety PLATE Glass in every window. Many car manufacturers, continuously striving to bring added comfort, enjoyment and satisfaction to motoring, are now completely equipping their cars with Safety PLATE Glass at no extra cost to you.

WILLIAMSBURG GRAVEYARD

Sirs

While a student at William & Mary, about 1930, I had occasion to take the enclosed photograph (right). At that time the Rockefeller Restoration of the City of Williamsburg was at its height. A high fence surrounded this property, and the small entrances were guarded by armed watchmen. My curiosity was aroused to such an extent that I climbed a nearby water tower. One of the watchmen noticed my camera and shouted at me to come down. He drew a revolver and pointed it at me. On the way down, I raised my camera and took this shot.

The picture shows several rows of graves being uncovered. As I understood it, the Restoration authorities were loathe to give their excavations among the dead any publicity. Had the inmates of these graves turned out to be the forefathers of the present residents of Williamsburg, ill will might accrue from the disturbance of ancestral bones.

This is the first time that this exclusive picture has ever been published.

The damage was estimated at $1,500 which the air-conditioning system contractor had to pay for. They had some cork piled up under the stairs that caught fire. It was put under control in 15 minutes.

 WELCOMED to Mount Vernon, Washington's friends were privileged to refresh themselves with marvelously good American straight rye. There it was first made for the plantation's private stock. To our day it remains the true American whiskey for Americans — distilled with a care worthy of its distinguished name. It is full 100 proof, and bottled in bond under U. S. Government supervision, according to the strictest requirements of any nation in the world.
